STRIKE CONFERENCE AT CAPITOL SATURDAY

Governor Will Meet Delegation of Motor Transport Operators.

By The Associated Press.

Gov. Cochran and a delegation of motor transport operators will confer at Lincoln Saturday on the seven weeks old truck strike, the governor's office has announced. The conference was asked by Dan Beach, secretary of the Douglas County Truckers association.

At Omaha, seven union drivers were freed and one was fined $25 and costs as hearings opened in municipal court of approximately 60 cases arising from alleged violence in the strike.

Clarence Cox, Omaha, identified by three Howells truckers as one of several men who tossed a piece of cement thru the windshield of their truck, was found guilty of assault and battery. Picketing and destruction of property charges against them were dropped.

Among those freed was M. G Love, union official, charged with violation of the antipicketing law.

The governor's office announced also it had received a petition from Omaha bearing less than 100 signatures, requesting the removal of Sheriff Hopkins for alleged failure to enforce the antipicketing law.

KING COMMENTS ON STORY

Sees Some Error in Story of Iowa-Nebraska Plans.

"I don't know where that statement came from," said President King of the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power company Friday, commenting on an Omaha newspaper's analysis of plans of Nebraska hydroelectric districts to buy the Iowa-Nebraska and the Nebraska Power company. The article gave details of the alleged financial set-up.

"Some things in the article are correct and some aren't," Mr King said, "but it isn't my place to go into the matter in detail."

Asked whether this wasn't the first public admission that the Iowa-Nebraska was for sale to the districts, he said:

"Well, there have been a lot of rumors."

FORMER SOLON IS DECLARED PERJURER

Nathanson Accused in Connection With Brooklyn Bond Racket.

NEW YORK (AP). Former State Assemblyman Jacob P. Nathanson, 37, was arrested on the way to his law office and charged with grand larceny, subordination of perjury and forgery in connection with a Brooklyn bail bond racket.

Nathanson was quoted by police as saying: "If I'm indicted, I'll blow the lid off this bail bond business."

The former democratic assemblyman Thursday was called before the grand jury investigating alleged bail bond frauds but was not questioned when he refused to waive immunity.

Nathan appeared before the supreme court justice Algeron I. Nova last July and asked him to accept a $15,000 bond for a client, Albert Fitzgerald, who was awaiting sentence as a violator of the anti-gun law. A signature on the bond was subsequently found forged.

Nathanson was accused by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick L. Kopff of having helped perpetrate the forgery and assisting in the false oaths which the bondsmen gave before Justice Nova. The grand larceny charge arose out of an allegation that Nathanson charged the Fitzgerald family a fee of $532 for the bond, whereas the legal fee for a $15,000 bond is limited to $300.

Dist. Atty. William F X Geoghan said the same fraudulent bond had been used "seven or eight times" in bail cases.

Informed of Nathanson's reported threat to "blow the lid off" the bond racket, Geoghan remarked: 'I'll be happy to take every word he cares to say."

Geoghan also signed warrants for the arrest of Louis Kassman, 49, a salesman who was questioned in the line-up at police headquarters this morning, and his wife, Mrs Rose Kassman.

Geoghan said he would ask for $25,000 bail each on the trio all of whom he charged with grand larceny and forgery

PFEIFFER KNEW ALL ABOUT THE U.S. DESTROYERS

Woman Witness Says He Criticized Defects of the Plans.

NEW YORK. (UP). Capt. Lieut. Erich Pfeiffer of the German naval intelligence bureau at Bremen was so familiar with the plans for U. S. navy destroyers that he could discuss their defects, a witness testified in federal court. So reluctant to testify that she was characterized by the court as a "hostile witness," Mrs. Kate Moog Busch said that Pfeiffer boasted to her in Germany that he had the destroyer plans. She learned also, that he was the direct superior of Karl Schlueter, one of the contact spies for the eastern seaboard.

Pfeiffer, she said, told Dr. Ignatz Griebel, fugitive spy and her traveling companion, that he had "business with Voss about planes." Otto Hermann Voss, a skilled mechanic at the Seversky aircraft plant, is one of the three defendants on trial charged with selling American defense secrets.

Mrs. Busch said she met Pfeiffer at a champagne party.

Dr. Griebl, she testified, was promised rewards by Lieut. Commanders Ugo von Bonin and Hermann Menzel of the German war ministry, both of whom are under indictment, but no specific mention was made of his duties.

In March, 1938, Mrs. Busch said, she received a note fro Schleuter in which he enclosed a paper match box containing a code and asked her to hold it until a girl named Boehm called for it. This was Eleanor Boehm, Hunter college graduate, who met Schleuter on a German boat.

Miss Boehm called for the match book a few days later, Mrs. Busch testified. She was admonished repeatedly by Judge John C. Knox to "stick to the facts" and "tell the truth."

Because of her attitude, U. S. Atty. Lamar Hardy curtailed his examination and disregarded portions of her statement to the grand jury to which he referred in his opening address.

Charles W. Phillipsbar, jr., attorney for Voss, had equally as difficult a time on cross examination and Judge Knox, obviously out of patience, cut her off in the middle of a sentence for the luncheon adjournment.

CONVICTED ON CHARGE OF PICKETING A TRUCK

R. H. Shiffer, Union Striker, Fined for Violation of State Law.

R. H. Shiffer, 2131 O, union truck striker charged with violating the state antipicketing law, was convicted in municipal court Friday morning. Acting Judge Jacobson fined him $25 and costs.

The defense attorney, Harry Holman, filed notice of appeal to district court, and Shiffer was released under $500 bond. He did not take the stand in his own behalf.

U G. Beltz, operator of the Rocky Mountain Transfer lines here, who filed the complaint with the county attorney, and Harry Paap, driver of the truck concerned, testified against Shiffer.

The complaint grew out of an alleged stoning of a transport truck about seven miles west of Lincoln on Oct. 6. Beltz and Paap testified that Shiffer threw the stone that hit the trailer of the truck just back of the driver. The truck was headed for Ogallala with a load of furniture.

Four other men were with Shiffer. They made no move, however, Beltz said, when he and other company employes, escorting the truck out of town, overpowered Shiffer and brought him to police headquarters

Atty. Holman moved for dismisal of the case on grounds that the action did not constitute violation of the anti-picketing law, and that the complaint was improperly drawn.. Acting Judge Jacobsen ruled that the offense rightly came under the statute.

This conviction marked the first judicial review of enforcement of the anti-picketing law against picketing truck strikers in Lancaster county. .

O'NEAL SAYS FARM PROPOSAL UNTRIED

Head of Farm Bureau Tells President Group Is for Present Program.

WASHINGTON. (AP). President Edward A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau federation said he thought Secy. Wallace's proposal for a two price farm program would represent an excursion into "an untried field."

The Wallace plan envisions purchase of surplus commodities by the government and their sale to needy persons at low prices.

O'Neal called at the white house with a group of southern agriculture officials to discuss the cotton problem.

He told reporters the group informed the president that the federation "is fightingly for the present program as it is."

"Some changes in construction may be desirable," O'Neal asserted, "but we are against any radical changes."

Asked whether the two price program would be a "radical change," O'Neal replied: "It might work and it might not."

The farm officials said that he and his associates stressed the possibility of additional cotton exports as one solution to the cotton problem. Greater exports might be possible thru operation of the reciprocal trade program, he said.

Asked about a plan for unlimited cotton production now being discussed in Texas, O'Neal asserted that it "violates all the laws of supply and demand."

Cliff Day, president of the Texas Agricultural association, also expressed opposition to the plan, which, he said, would involve the dumping of cotton abroad under a two price system.

REPORTER CATCHES YEGGS

Thought Story No Good, So His Paper Scooped.

NEW ORLEANS. (UP). Cub Reporter James Aldige was trying to square himself Friday with a dazed city editor still unwilling to believe that what heretofore has occurred only in journalistic myth had actually occurred on his newspaper.

Aldige came upon three men holding up a messenger boy in an ally With fists flying, he waded in, captured one, forced the others to flee. Dragging his captive to a telephone he called police and they caught the other two. It turned out to be the gang which has been robbing messengers for weeks. Aldige was the hero of the day but he neglected to telephone his city editor who, after being scooped, finally got the story for page one from the police reporter

"I didn't think it was a story," Aldige said.

GASOLINE TAX LAW UPHELD BY COURTS

Supreme Judges Say Not a Tax on Interstate Commerce as Alleged.

The supreme court affirmed Friday the action of the district court of Holt county in holding Homer Smith and others doing busi.. the New Deal Transport lines and Carl A. and Tony Asimus, their bondsmen, liable for $1,464 unpaid gasoline taxes and 10 percent more as a penalty for refusal to pay. Defendants had challenged the constitutionality of the 5 cents a gallon gasoline tax law, alleging that the special session of 1935 had no authority to enact or reassess the tax, which had theretofore been declared unconstitutional in a test case in supreme court involving the bill passed at the regular session. They also claimed that it was a tax on interstate commerce, and as such forbidden by the federal constitution.

The supreme court, in an opinion by Judge Messmore, holds that while the law is well settled that a state cannot lay a tax on interstate commerce in any form,

TEACHERS OF STATE ELECTING OFFICERS

Educators, Officials Speak at Second Day of District Conventions.

By United Press.

Friday's highlights at the district conventions sponsored by the Nebraska State Teachers association:

OMAHA—Chancellor Boucher of University of Nebraska said, "Our desire at the university is to be known for a policy of helpful cooperation with the high schools, rather than for boorish and destructive criticism of them. . . The university should not be guilty of even trying ,to dictate to the high schools their programs or the manner of administering them."

NORTH PLATTE.—Teachers frequently need to learn how to play, Dr. W. T. Wait of the Colorado State Teachers college in Greeley told elementary school principals. Dr. Wait pointed out that most communities regard the teachers' role outside of the class room as purely one of service. He suggested that school administrators help their teachers develop a wide variety of interests

M'COOK.—Dr. Floyd W. Reeves of University of Chicago asserted a teacher's job is not done when pupils complete high school; that if the federal government continues to provide funds and the local community continues to provide sponsorship of the project, it is for the educator to furnish the correlated training and guidance to fit youth in the right job.

CHADRON. — Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, minister of the national radio pulpit, New York City, said, "The root causes of our moral revolution are not to be found, as so many say, in the late World war, in prohibition, or in the revolt of youth. The basic trouble is that

TWO BILLIONS TO BE EXPENDED FOR POWER EXPANSION

Dozen Utilities Join With Government in National Defense Plans.

WASHINGTON. (AP). A dozen big utility companies, joining hands with the federal government in its national defense program, disclosed they would spend $2,000,000,000 in the next two years to expand the output of electric power.

This amount, said Floyd L. Carlisle of the Consolidated Edison company of New York, would virtually double present such expenditures.

As the first step, the utilities announced "definite commitments" for enough factory orders to supply generating equipment capable of producing 1,000,000 kilowatts.

The commitments were given as a part of the administration's efforts to strengthen power facilities of the nation's strategic war material manufacturing centers.

Announcement of the program came from a session of the national defense power committee headed by Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, which has been making a survey of power needs since early this year.

Government Financing.

Carlisle, acting as spokesman for the group of utilities executives which met with the power committee, said "substantial government financing was involved, but would not be in the form of grants.

The government, he said, would "do nothing more than lend money or buy securities, in the same manner as a bank."

The new equipment for 1,000,000 kilowatts of generating capacity represented about one and one-third million horsepower equivalent to the total power produced by two or three middlewestern or southeastern cities. New York City's generating capacity, they

MUST CURB THE TAX EATERS, SAYS ARNOLD

Nebraska Realtors Open Their 21st Annual Convention Here.

Convention committees announced by O. H. Johnson, Norfolk, association president, were: Nominating, Amos Grant, Omaha, chairman; L. F. Farrell, Lincoln, Paul C. Huston, Grand Island; C. D. Wildy, Scottsbluff; P. N. McKinley, Sutherland.

Resolutions, Grant Benson, Omaha, chairman; C. E. Higginbotham, Hastings; Al N. Dafoe, Tecumseh.

Auditing: Charles Stone, Hastings, chairman; B. G. Seger, Scottsbluff.

"The total value of everything that I and my immediate family now own is only a small fractional part of what we have paid in taxes," Frank G. Arnold, Fullerton, president of the Nebraska Federation of County Taxpayers Leagues, told the 21st annual convention of the Nebraska Real Estate association, meeting Friday afternoon at the Cornhusker.

"A few more years of excessive taxation and it will all have been confiscated to satisfy the greed and ambition of those on the public payroll," added Mr. Arnold.

Several hundred of Nebraska's most prominent realtors met to hear the man who has been preaching the gospel of economy in government. The session opened at 1:30 p. m. with an address of welcome by Mayor Copeland. The response was made by Edward Bedford, Omaha. Jess Nickles, president of the Lincoln association, extended greetings. F. H. Johnson, association president, presided over the sessions.

"The Farm Program," was the subject of Fred Wallace, agriculture conservation commission head, following the talk by Mr. Arnold. Harry Grant Atkinson, Chicago, will be the principal speaker at the banquet which will be held at 7 p. m. at the Cornhusker.

Mr. Arnold said that every realtor was personally interested because of the character of his business, which involves not only direct monetary returns on work and loans, but because excessive taxation kills off prospects. He said that there isn't a single citizen who hasn't been affected in the past few years by politicians sticking their noses into his business, interfering with his business and telling him how to run it.

The speaker said that when he appeared recently before the Economic club of Detroit the men who spent two hours desperately trying to break down the theory of taxation and government that obtains in Nebraska were a group of educators, research directors and government "experts."

Mr. Arnold said that in all seriousness he wanted to say that the country over the one aggregation of dealers and owners that have been made the biggest aggregation of saps and taken for the longest, roughest and toughest ride by the promoters of waste are real estate owners and dealers. He said it is the method and not the amount o ftaxes that makes heavy burdens, but the ease with which people accept the word of promoters that their own taxes can be lightened by a new tax shifting the load onto other shoulders, without a thought that it may, in fact, hurt them ten times more than the taxes now being paid.

Research work in Nebraska, he said, has developed that while there are inequalities that work to the detriment of a few, they are unimportant when the great waste of government is considered, and warned against ballyhooing that stresses inequalities without touching the great source of loss, government waste. He said that if it were possible to present the true picture of taxation as research has found out there wold be a bloodless revolution and that the people would lose their taste for new forms of taxes.

Mr. Arnold said that a great deal of "rot" was coming out of the universities, and gave one instance of what he called "rot" in which a nebraska university professor tried to argue that taxes eventually come back into the hands of the people. "When these wastrels," he added, "want more money, when they want to put into effect some of their crackpot schemes, are we going to do as we do in our business, keep their fingers out of our pocketbooks?" He instanced one declaration that adequacy of government service is not to be measured only in terms of dollars saved, and answered this by asking if that adequacy be measured only in dollars wasted.

C. Y. O. MEETING CLOSES

Physical activities, the athletic phase of the Catholic church, furnished the half-day discussion ammunition at the Catholic Youth Congress winding up the meeting at the Lincoln Friday noon.

For the girls, Esther Griffith, York, and Anna Mae Smith, Lincoln, discussed volleyball, and Agatha Pettinger, Steinauer, softball.

"We live in a period which is youth conscious," said Bishop Kucera, keynoting the youth meeting. "The Catholic world is interested in youth, because in the plastic years of youth, lasting impressions are acquired. Social activities have their own peculiar educational values."

Dudgeon, before coming to the university, attended the University of Chicago for two years, enrolling here in 1936. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Dudgeon of Norfolk, where he graduated from high school in 1934. He received his A. B. degree from Nebraska with the 1938 class and is at the present time a junior in the law college. Recently he was elected secretary of his class.

The names of the five candidates were sent to Chancellor Boucher Friday by the committee composed of Dr. C. H. Oldfather, dean of the arts and sciences college, chairman; Dr. R. J. Pool, chairman of the botany department; Dr. J. P. Senning, chairman of the department of political science; Dr. L. C. Wimberly of the English department and Dr. C. B. Nuting of the law college.

"KNOW NOTHING ABOUT IT," COCHRAN STATES

So Comments on "Coercion" —asks Warner Explain Pension Stand.

In six words, Gov. Cochran Friday summed up the situation, so far as he was concerned, he said, in the "coercion-collection" case of the democratic party in Nebraska, about which Lyle Jackson, republican state chairman, has asked a federal investigation.

The governor's words:

"I know absolutely nothing about it."

The governor, however, was more voluble upon the question of old age pensions.

"Mr. Warner, my republican opponent," said Gov. Cochran, "would save more for pensions by saving on administration costs. The law allows 2 percent of the assistance fund for state administration and the state is actually using 1.6 percent. Only 3 percent is permitted for county administration. How much of this would Mr. Warner save and how much more would it pay in pensions?"

About the general truck situation he announced that he would confer with Fremont truckers Saturday morning at the statehouse and said that "roads in Douglas county are to be safe and open to all kinds of traffic.

"This statement is not based, however, on the anticipation of need for direct action by the state.

"Since I have had knowledge of these petitions (those asking removal of Sheriff Hopkins) being circulated I had had investigation made and we are continuing this investigation.

"Capt R. F. Weller of the safety patrol has reported that there has been no disturbance or hampering of traffic during the past two days and from present indications it would appear that this condition will continue."

RITES FOR MRS. STEWART

Widow of Manila Editor Is Buried Here Friday.

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Stewart, 67, who jumped from the 15th floor of the Medical Arts building in Omaha, were held Friday noon at Lincoln. Burial was in Wyuka beside her husband. A short service was conducted here by Dr. Frederick W. Clayton, Episcopal pastor, before the body was taken to Lincoln.

Mrs. Stewart's deceased husband, Mortimer Stewart, was a former resident of Lincoln. For many years he published a newspaper in Manila, P. I. The couple went to the islands shortly after their marriage in 1902.

When a man is too sick to do anything else he puts in his time making good resolutions.

LOW BIDS UNDER ESTIMATE

Road Project Deleted When Bids Too High.

Low bids on 22 construction and 33 maintenance jobs on Nebraska highways were announced Friday by the department of roads and irrigation to be more than $35,000 under the estimated costs.

Construction bids totaled $327,916 and maintenance bids $97,490. Original estimates were $461,000 after bids on paving between Fort Crook and Ralston had been rejected as being too high.

GERMAN PAPER SAYS U. S. AN ENCUMBRANCE

Foreign Office Mouthpiece Declares It Hinders Conciliation.

BERLIN. (AP). The German foreign office mouthpiece, Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korres Pondenz, accused the United States of being "an encumbrance to European conciliation efforts" since the peace of Munich.

In a bitter attack on "American meddling in European affairs," the publication said "it already has gone so far that authorized English sources have found it necessary, in the face of American objection, to justify the conduct of western European powers."

The attack apparently was prompted by President Roosevelt's Wednesday night address against "peace by fear." The nazi press has treated the speech with derision.

"It appears more and more the intention (in America) to lay down the law to European countries on how a state of peace is possible for them and how it is not possible," the publication declared.

"It is time America remembers she is a daughter of Europe who physically and culturally took with her a sizable dowry from the old world.

"It is not the task of the new world to lecture Europe.

"Much less is it the new world's task to set people in countries from which it sprang against each other and by groundless suspicions thrown them once more into enmity.

"The United States are rightly proud that with their Monroe doctrine they have maintained themselves in the rest of the world—a fact that today is recognized everywhere.

"On the other hand, this fact ought to cause certain American circles to use a little more tact."

CORRECT EATING IS NEED FOR RESISTANCE

As Important as Heredity, Dr Church Tells a Health Group

KANSAS CITY Mo (AP) A Rockefeller Foundation scientist declared that correct eating is as important as heredity in the ability of a person to resist disease Many persons have a natural resistance to infection acquired from their parents Dr Charles F Church, director of the foundations nutrition fund declared while others succumb readily to tuberculosis colds measles diphtheria, pneumonia and a host of other diseases

It is becoming apparent however that the right diet for both mother and child is just as important if not more so than the factor of heredity in building up disease resistance Dr Church, who is also a children s specialist at the University of Pennsylvania medical school told the American Public Health association

In a series of experiments on mice infected with the bacteria salmonella enteritidis which causes food poisoning it was found that an optimum diet would protect both the mother mouse and her children to a high degree even to the third and fourth generations if the diet was continued he reported

The protection thus afforded lasted at least until maturity was reached in all the experiments and progressive improvement took place for at least three generations on the same diet Dr Church said adding that the influence of diet upon resistance may thus be on a par with the influence of heredity

The inclusion of mineral salts in the diet is apparently just as important as including vitamins he added When the quantity of these elements was reduced to one-fourth the normal in one group of mice the number of deaths increased four times And when the amount of calcium the essential element for forming bones and teeth and promoting body metabolism was reduced to one-fifth of normal the fatality rate increased five times when exposed to infection

Two former patients one a business man the other an attractive woman addressed the meeting The business man said he remained an exile from his home town because of the stigma he felt was attached to him

Thieves looted the shop of George Schneider at 2249 Y Wednesday night and escaped with goods valued at $35. Police reported six refrigerator case lights and a platform scale were missing.

Suit of Helen M. Kilian against Thomas C. Woods and Thomas C. Woods, jr., for $15,000 damages, went to trial to a jury in District Judge Shepherd's court. The suit grew out of an automobile collision.

Nov. 6 to 12 has been designated as American Educational week in Nebraska by proclamation of Gov. Cochran Friday. Last year more than 10,000,000 persons actually visited the schools of the country during the period, he said.

A jury in District Judge Shepherd's court Friday returned a verdict for $1,050 for James A. Kilian against Thomas C. Woods and Thomas C. Woods, jr. The suit grew out of an automobile accident on Dec. 30, 1936, near Gretna.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Lincoln and Lancaster county chapter, American Red Cross, Mrs. C. F. Ladd was appointed roll call chairman, William J. Newens was elected to the board of directors and named publicity chairman.

Petition for administration of the estate of James Hogan was filed in county court. Heirs named are William and Oliver, brothers, of Princeton, and Elizabeth, sister, of Fort Dodge, Ia., and a number of nieces and nephews. It is asked that Henry Riley be made administrator.

Deadline for filing contributions and wage reports for the quarter ending Sept. 30 is Oct. 31, Monday, the Nebraska unemployment compensation division warned Nebraska employers Saturday. Delinquent contributions bear interest at the rate of 1 percent per month. Wilful failure to report also carries a fine.

Campfire girls, from the different groups, this week are folding tuberculosis seal sale letters, and placing seals on backs of outgoing envelopes. On Friday the American Legion auxiliary kensington performed a like service in the home of Mrs H. H. Dudley, general chairman. The Christmas seal campaign will open on Thanksgiving.

Dr. V. Royce West, assistant to the president of Omaha Municipal university, will speak at a public meeting Friday night at Elm Park Methodist church, following a father-and-son banquet. His topic is to be "Will the Powder Keg Still Blow Up?" He will analyze the critical situation in Europe. Dr West is a former Lincoln man and was graduated from University of Nebraska in 1927.

The supreme court has sustained the request of Sophia Eckles to dismiss the appeal she had filed in an action brought against the estate of Festus Corrothers, one-time wealthy stockman of northwestern Nebraska. The court below held that she had not been the lawful wife of Corrothers, as she claimed, hence was not his widow and not entitled to nominate an administrator of his estate.

There is a law in Nebraska against shipping game thru the mails, and local postal authorities are respecting it. Three pheasant shipments have been received, and in each instance the state game commission was notified for purposes of confiscation. Officials here concede that local postmasters out in the state should have brushed up on the law and refused the shipments. Under the Nebraska law, the hunter must accompany his game.

Testimony for probably at least one more week will be given by R. H. Willis, chief of the state bureau of irrigation in the tri-state hearing before a special master concerning the division of the waters of the North Platte river. Willis, who had previously given considerable testimony in direct and cross examination is now testifying on redirect and is explaining, correcting and amplifying previous statements concerning the canals and ditches of Nebraska.

The railway commission was advised by interested parties that the Milwaukee and Northwestern railroad companies have applied to the interstate commerce commission for a merger of their properties, under conditions set out in a plan, a copy of which was attached. The railway commission has power to object if it disapproves of the merger, which the companies claim will forever remove them from dangers of bankruptcy and that will not materially damage lbaor.

Advising the normal training teacher, as such, to get out of that occupation as soon as possible and over into another one, Dr. Harry C. McKown, editor of School Activities Magazine, talked to the normal training sectional luncheon at the Cornhusker. He said the normal trainer is having the job taken away by teachers' colleges. He advised, as long as they remained in the business of teaching teachers, that more attention be given the quality of the students taking normal training, than the quantity.

The supreme court affirmed Friday the conviction in Hall county district court of Glen O. Haines on charge of issuing insufficient fund check but held that in view of the circumstances and evidence the sentence should be modified so Haines may pay $100 and costs instead of serving one year in the penitentiary. Haines, a horse buyer, gave a check for a herd of horses to the Grand Island Livestock Commission company, and when he learned his partners in Illinois had not deposited money in the bank at Monmouth, Ill., to cover the check as per agreement, according to the testimony, tried to help the payee in every way possible in returning some of the money.

The supreme court held Friday that the deficiency judgment entered in Douglas county for $5,207, in a mortgage foreclosure instituted by Rose Filley is void as against Mary Mancuso, the wife of Samuel Mancuso, but good as against the latter. The court refused to set aside the sale because the sheriff was ten minutes late in arriving to make it. Mrs. Mancuso is held not to have bound her separate estate, but merely to have signed the instruments, according to custom, to perfect a lien on the property to secure the debt. The court says the general saving statute preserves a right of action on a claim for deficiency judgment in a suit to foreclose a mortgage not due or in litigation at the time the legislature, without any special saving clause, passed an act repealing the statutes which permitted such a judgment.

GUEST MASON COMING.

East Lincoln lodge No. 210, A. F. & A. M., will receive instruction in Masonic degree conferring Friday night when they entertain guests of Chariton, Ia., lodge No. 63 at the temple, 27th and S. About 30 officers and drill team members are coming to Lincoln. They will confer the master mason degree on one of their own candidates as a part of the Masonic education program started this year. Arrangements for the meeting are in charge of Louis C. Anderson, master of No. 210, and his officers. All past masters will serve on the reception committee.

TEACHERS ELECTING

we are not adjusted to our machine age. Middle age, rather than youth, is now the really dangerous age."

OMAHA. (AP). The Second district teachers approved a proposed increase in dues to make at least $2,000 available to the state association as a "war chest" for use in sponsoring legislation before the unicameral legislature. The action, in the form of an amendment to the constitution of the state association, requires the approval of at least four of the state's six districts. R. R. McGee of Columbus, member of the state executive committee, said a teachers' retirement plan, shared equally by teachers' contributions and the state, is "No. 1" on the legislative program.

Litherland Elected.

M'COOK, Neb. (UP). Supt. John W. Litherland of Culbertson, was elected president of district No. 5, Nebraska State Teachers association. Supt. Philip H. Mitchell, Arapahoe, was chosen vice president and Co. Supt. Lucile McCue, Beaver City, secretary-treasurer. Registration totaled 860.

OMAHA. (UP). Supt. I. J. Montgomery of Blair was elected president of division 2, Nebraska State Teachers' association. Mrs. Charlotte Meadows of Ralston was elected vice president, and H. O. Peterson, Omaha, secretary-treasurer. Great interest was taken in the election because of reports of a battle between Omaha and Fremont teachers for next year's convention. The three officers select the meeting place later. However, all candidates disclaimed any interest in the battle.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb. (UP). Miss Jennie M. Conrad, Kearney college instructor since 1920, was chosen president of district No. 4, Nebraska State Teachers association. Supt. C. H. Hare of Arnold was named vice president; Paul Sala, Hastings, secretary, and Paul E. Extrom, North Platte, treasurer.

Margaret Knapple, Lexington, was elected a member of the district executive committee and Raymond A. Watson, Hastings, member of the state executive committee. Herbert Cushing, Kearney, and Glen Miller, Lexington, were chosen delegates-at-large. Subdistrict delegates include: Dora Carriker and Gladys Sheridan of Hastings, Adams county; Elizabeth Cummings and A. W. Nelson of Kearney and Goldie Stark, Odessa, Buffalo county, and Bertha Carter and Geraldine Norton, Lexington, Dawson county.

Rural Schools Praised.

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP). Miss Chloe C. Baldridge, state director of rural and elementary education, told district No. 3 state teachers' convention here that rural schools have an advantage in training minds of students because of their small enrollments.

Miss Baldridge said she was told by an educational authority that the Nebraska rural school set-up "Gives the boys and girls the advantage of the private, ungraded school of the east for which parents pay large tuition in order that their boys and girls may attend. Go home and tell your rural teachers what a wonderful opportunity they have at this time, when so much attention is being given to individual differences."

She praised the courage of rural school district teachers for "The heroism, the sacrifices, the tenacity, the perseverance, the discouragements, the financial failures, the supreme efforts put forth, the faith and willingness to start again found in every rural district during these last few years."

Says War Coming.

CHADRON, Neb. (AP) Cornelius J. Vanderbilt, jr., New York journalist and scion of one of the nation's wealthiest families, predicted here "There is a war coming in Europe—and it's going to be a horrible war."

Speaking before the Sixth district State Teachers association, Vanderbilt told of prominent Europeans he has interviewed, including Hitler, Mussolini and former President Benes of Czechoslovakia. Benes told him several years before the Munich agreemnt, "the day will come when England will throw my country to nazi Germany rather than to throw the doors of England open for the bombing of London."

He described Mussolini as "a great actor," and Hitler as the man who said, "Germany was never vanquished. Germany will soon rule the world."

NORTH PLATTE.—Miss Sarah T. Muir, nominee for the office of state superintendent of public instruction, was the speaker for the dinner sponsored by the Women's Educational club of the Fourth district here.

"Wherever I have gone in the state this fall, I have detected an awakening determination in educational, civic and religious circles to bring Nebraska back to her rightful place as a power in education," declared Miss Muir. "In the past 12 years we have been slipping. I do not refer here to the financial side. I am talking about the lack of leadership in instructional advance."

Miss Muir called attention to the fact that in 1926 Nebraska was considered one of the leading states in improved instructional methods. Now, thanks to a laissez faire policy in the chief elective office of education, each school has to work out its own plans from scratch, unaided by the state office.

"Nowhere in the whole school system is an alert, vigorous course of study more important than in the one room country school. Instead of getting ready for a mechanical set of examination questions eager boys and girls should be preparing for life as it exists in Nebraska today," she declared.

CHADRON, Neb. (AP). W. L. Nichols of Oshkosh was elected Sixth district state teachers president. Other officers: P. F. Bogle, Morrill, vice president; C. N. Anderson, Kimball, secretary; Arvilla Hansen, Chadron, treasurer; E. L. Rouse, Chadron, executive committeeman. The Sixth district association voted $100 to the state campaign fund for securing enactment of teachers' retirement legislation, denounced the proposed amendment to legalize slot machines, and endorsed the amendment which would make the state superintendent of schools a member of the board of educational lands and funds.

NORFOLK, Neb. (UP). Group 3, Nebraska State Teachers association, elected Supt. G. C. Hansen of Battle Creek president; Ira George of O'Neill, vice president; Theodore Skillstad, Norfolk, secretary, and Floyd Davis, Tilden, treasurer. K. N. Parke of Wayne was named executive committeeman and Norfolk chosen as site for the 1939 convention. Nearly 1,300 teachers attended, setting a new record.

passage of a "sound retirement bill" in the 1939 legislative session. At the instigation of Asst. Supt. Bimson of Lincoln, the teachers resolved to "vigorously oppose" advertising which connects teachers "in any manner, either individually or as a group," with liquor.

The district teachers paid tribute to the memory of the late secretary, Charles A. Bowers. They urged the president and congress "to work intelligently, co-operatively and unselfishly for world peace." The teachers also joined with other districts in advocating the proposed constitutional amendment to be voted on Nov. 8 that would make the state superintendent of eduaction a member of the state board of educational lands and funds.

Is Not Proud.

Supt. M. C. Lefler of Lincoln told the teachers that a statewide teachers' retirement system is the number one objective of the Nebraska State Teachers association. He said the 1939 unicameral legislature would be asked to enact into a law a bill designed to give teachers "fair treatment" by according them protection similar to that received by others under the national security act.

"Nebraska may lead the nation as its 'white spot,' she may justly boast of her $10,000,000 capitol building constructed on the pay as you go plan. . . . But there is little reason for pride in comparison with the majority of the other states when it comes to its support of education and the treatment it accords to its long time and faithful teachers who become incapacitated by reason of age," Lefler said.

He pointed out 28 states already have teacher retirement plans in active operation. Under terms of the proposed bill, the teacher would contribute half of the retirement annuity and the state would furnish the other half, estimated at $80,000 a year. Lefler said the plan resembled annuity insurance. The minimum allowance at retirement would be $25 a month and the average would range between $30 and $50. Retirement would be optional at 60, compulsory at 65, or after 35 years of service.

In his opening address on "How the School Can Assist in Developing Character," Dr. Harry C. McKown of Gilson, Ill., took issue with common descriptions of the teachers as a "sour-pussed old flatfoot." Too often, he said, "the lady teacher is burlesqued as a wasp-waisted, psyche-knotted, mutton-sleeved, vinegar-faced, lantern-jawed, sour-pussed old flatfoot—a poor matrimonial bet; the man teacher as an effeminate brother who could not hold a job in a real man's world.

"All such caricatures are, of course harmful, and considering the basis on which a teacher is selected—personality, character, training and experience—they are grossly inaccurate." The teacher, Dr. McKown said, plays an important part in character training, which has as one of its purposes the development of an intelligent respect for society's conventions.

Other purposes include the development an ability to discern causes and relate effects, to develop a recognition an acceptance of responsibility in organized society, and to develop "a harmonious adjustment and integration of one's personality.

Importance of Character.

"The great importance of good character at the present time can be appreciated when one recognized the many undesirable settings and relationships extant in America's rotten politics, appalling crime, disgraceful parole system, easy divorces, liquor consumption with its many resultant degrading actions, shameful child labor, unprecedented unemployment, inequitable distribution of wealth, curtailed educational facilities, intelligence-insulting advertising and propaganda both political and commercial, cheap entertainment and diversion, inadequate medical attention, vicious racial prejudices and hatreds, childish internationalism, labor and industrial difficulties, and a lowered respect for the home, church, legal and other authority."

O. K. Amendments.

In their business session, the teachers also heard that their vote had favored two proposed amendments to the state N. S. T. A. constitution. The first calls for repeal of a paragraph requiring adoption of uniform badges for teachers at conventions. The second would raise the annual dues for teachers receiving $1,001 and up. Those receiving $1,000 or less will continue to pay the two dollar fee. bTe scale goes up according to salaries, with those receiving $1,500 or more per year paying four dollars for dues.

At the morning session Dr. Grayson N. Kefauver, dean of the school of education, Stanford university, energetically called a halt on what he sees as a general "retreat to the past" in education. "It is easy to go back," he said, "but difficult to realize that the changes in the next generation will be more basic and more rapid than the changes in the past generation."

Education, said Dr. Kefauver, "should focus its chief attention on the problems of this generation and of the future, rather than on those of the past." Rapidly sketching the vast improvements man has made in his physical environment, the youthful educator declared, "The basic difficulty is our failure to make similarly rapid changes in the social fields." He said that he felt strongly "the need of accelerating changes in the social fields."

Dr. Kefauver charged that educators in general "have not helped young people to live understandingly in the modern world." Pointing out the tendency, in such subjects as literature, music and art, to turn always to the past and to ignore or scorn productions of our own time, the Stanford professor said, "You can't understand our culture unless you understand its expressions and interpretations."

Strikes at Lethargy.

Dr. Kefauver struck at the "disposition to take things today as something sacred and unalterable." This disposition, he said, is "one of the hardships facing the American people in meeting its problems." The people, he said, should be stirred out of their lethargy and made to realize that evils can be righted and are not necessarily a part of our civilization. Dr. Kefauver also said.

"Our young people ought to come to know what democracy means. x x x Whether or not we preserve our democracy depends on whether or not we can be more successful in our educational institutions in developing understanding of the major social questions of this period." The speaker implied the threat of a virtual dictatorship in this country unless the people understand what democracy is and take an active part in its preservation.

estimated, is about 2,900,000 horsepower.

Stressing that the commitments were "not the final step" Johnson indicated the administration hoped other utilities would agree shortly to enter the expansion program.

The areas directly affected by the projected construction are in part those in which the production of munitions and other war materials would be in great demand in event of hostilities, a war department announcement said.

Some of them were listed as Baltimore-Washington, Birmingham, Boston, Bridgeport, Buffalo-Niagara Falls, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Rochester, St. Louis and Schenectady.

Can Handle New Orders.

Officials indicated their studies showed manufacturing plants were ready to handle the new orders without delay. The war department said the administration group was arranging conferences with equipment manufacturers with a view to standardizing their products to expedite production, reduce costs and prevent runaway prices.

Carlisle declined to discuss a suggestion the projected expenditures indicated better feeling between the utilities and the administration, but did say "we were delighted to make the studies with the government."

Carlisle said the new facilities would be operated by the companies as tho built solely for normal peacetime needs. He expressed confidence demand was sufficient to use the additional output.

From 1920 to 1930, Carlisle said, the annual capital investments of the utilities increased from about $600,000,000 to around $1,000,000,000. In the last two years such expenditures have been around $500,000,000 a year.

On methods of finance, Carlisle said "the industry wants as much equity and stock financing as possible."

The type of securities sold to the RFC, he said, "presumably will be the type which can be sold to the public when the market can take it.

"What the RFC will purchase will be no different from what the market would take thru normal channels," he said.

GAS TAX LAW UPHELD

whether on transportation of subjects of interstate commerce, receipts therefrom or the occupation or business of carrying it on, the tax imposed by the law in question is an excise tax upon the use and distribution of gasoline within the state. Such a tax may be imposed by a state without violating the commerce clause of the federal constitution and is consistent with the due process and equal protection clauses of the 14th amendment to that constitution.

The court says defendants, by their conduct, brought themselves within the provisions of the law and have represented themselves as licensed importing dealers and resellers, gave bond and paid taxes. Having done so, and having failed to show they are engaged in interstate commerce as dealers, they are estopped to claim the contrary. It also says the record is void of evidence that they paid taxes under protest or that coercion was used against them. As the case can properly be disposed of without passing upon the constitutionality of the act, it will not be declared unconstitutional in this action.

MAYNARDS MAKE UP.

LOS ANGELES. (AP). Cowboy Ken Maynard and his wife, who accused him of associating with another woman in her separate maintenance suit, have decided to make up, Mrs. Maynard's attorney said in filing a dismissal of her action. The attorney, J. T. Russell, did not reveal what brought about the settlement of the Maynard's domestic difficulties.

WOMAN ARRAIGNED.

Irene Norval, 27, former Elkhorn school teacher detained in Omaha upon the request of Lincoln authorities was returned here Friday and arraigned in municipal court on a charge of writing a no fund check. She pleaded not guilty and her trial was set for Nov. 4. Bond was fixed at $500.

TO SET FARM ACREAGES

ACP Plans Series of Meetings for November.

The Nebraska agricultural conservation committee announced plans Friday for a steady drive to set all 1939 farm acreage allotments by the first of the year.

A series of meetings during November with county and community ACP committeemen and office clerks will signal the opening of this campaign, says Fred S. Wallace, chairman of the state ACP committee. He pointed out the following benefits to be gained by setting allotments earlier than ever before.

Farmers co-operating in the conservation and adjustment programs can plan their year's work during the slack season and far in advance of spring planting.

Farmer-committeemen and clerks can complete a large share of necessary ACP administrative work while their own farm operations are light.

Wheat allotments for 1939 were set several weeks ago. County committees expect to begin setting individual farm goals on restoration land first. Corn, potato, and general soil-depleting acreage allotments will be set about mid-December, according to present plans.

The November meetings also will serve to instruct all county and community ACP employes in details of the approaching corn loan program, and in collection of 1939 wheat crop insurance premiums and inspection of insured acreage. Exact provisions of the loan program on 1938 corn will depend on the price and supply-demand situation for corn on Nov. 15; hence details of the loan probably will be announced soon after that date. Nov. 10 is the deadline for payment of wheat crop insurance premiums.

Subsequently he worked for Wells-Fargo and its successor in Wisconsin and Nebraska, and became general agent at Omaha in 1927. Surviving are the widow; a son, James of New Hamtpon, Ia., and a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Kozelka.

TO TURN DEMOCRAT.

OSSINING, N. Y. (UP). Village President Howard Dunscomb, a loyal republican for 35 years, announced that because republican officials of Westchester county have been giving him the "usual song and dance" every time he asked for a low automobile license number the past three years, he was going to vote the democratic ticket henceforth and urge all his friends to do the same.

STOCKHOLDER LIABILITY.

In the welter of partisan politics connected with the coming election one important proposal has been lost sight of by most voters. This is a proposal to amend the constitution so as to relieve stockholders in state banks of double liability. At the present time if a person purchases stock in a state bank he assumes the obligation of paying an amount equal to his stock investment, should the bank go into a receiver's hands and the assets prove insufficient to pay all claims in full. If he invests in a national bank he assumes no such liability. At one time he did, but the federal government no longer writes that into the contract as a part of the law. The law has been repealed.

During the last 16 or 18 years five or six hundred state banks have gone out of existence. Their places have not been taken by national banks, save in a few cases, because capital requirements for the latter are larger than good judgment dictates shall be invested. The result is that a large number of towns in the state capable of supporting a small bank are without these necessary adjuncts of trade. So long as the double liability exists it is difficult to interest either local or outside capital, as was once easily possible. Repeal of double liability, it is held, would attract investment on the part of citizens of substance who now are not interested because in addition to paying assessments to keep a bank from failing they are still liable on their stock.

The main purpose of the double liability provision was to give added protection to the depositor. Double liability has disappeared entirely with respect to national banks and largely with state banks because most of the latter as well as all of the former are insured by the federal deposit insurance corporation. That is why the national bank stockholder is no longer held to the old liability.

In practice the double liability proved a poor reed upon which to lean for deposit protection. By the time a receiver could lawfully enforce the stock liability, it was found that either the stockholder had suffered impoverishment along with the bank or had transferred his property. Estimates based on a group of receiverships examined shows that only about a third of this liability has been collectible.

Repeal of the constitutional provision would place state banks on an equality with national banks in this respect. It would not prevent future legislatures from taking similar or other measures for desired or necessary protection of depositors. It would permit future legislatures to change this liability, if continued by a legislative act, so as to meet changing conditions from time to time.

THE STRACHEY CASE.

The barring of John Strachey, British communist, from landing in America where he proposed to lecture on the virtues of that form of government, has aroused the derisive scorn of those among us who claim to hold most dear the right of an individual to freedom of expression. An examination of the constitution will disclose to inquiring minds, if they do not already know it, that it contains no unrestricted guaranty of freedom of speech. It does not even permit an individual to speak the truth unless he does it with good motives and for justifiable ends. It holds every individual liable before the criminal and civil law for his utterances. The reasons are obvious.

Those who say that Strachey should be free to attack the democratic form of government here if he wishes to do so and to seek to convince us that we should change that form, overlook one thing, and that is that they are arguing that those who believe in democracy should freely accord a right that is inherent in democracy to a man who proposes to argue for a system of government that denies that right. It takes a lot of nerve for a foreigner to come to this country and under the shadow of the right of freedom of speech demand a privilege that is denied citizens of this country in those nations where communism, fascism and nazism are in operation.

The facts of history dispute the contention that these are harmless agitators. What led Neville Chamberlain to say that England would emerge from a war as a left socialist country? The fact is that England has allowed full freedom of utterance to those who demand that form of government. What induced Germany and Italy to swing to the authoritarian form? Full freedom to those who waged it to loose the floods of demagoguery upon a discouraged and shaken peoples.

All three of the political dogmas that control the continent of Europe preach force against the citizen. We have used force to bar Strachey from a land in which he is not a citizen; he doesn't seem to like it.

FOOT IN THE DOOR.

The United States has thrust its foot in the open door to China in an effort to prevent its closing by Japan. The state department has delivered a rather forceful note to the Japanese. It warns them against "unwarranted interference" with American rights in China. It voices a demand for the traditional "open door" policy. It is this note that is the wedge or outthrust shoe that prevents the door being closed tight at this time.

Unofficial foreign affairs experts suggest three steps the government might take. It might place restrictions on the trade of Japanese merchants with the American market; it might denounce the commercial treaty of 1911, which provides for equality of business opportunity for Americans in Japan and Japanese in this country; it might also place Japan on the United States economic blacklist, preventing that country from obtaining the benefit of tariff concessions.

As long as this is as far as the administration goes, the public will not feel great concern. The public in general is not greatly worried about our trade in the orient. The country cannot afford to lose any of it, to be sure, times being as they are, but if it will do any good to put pressure on Japan by this method, the public will not complain. The people as a whole are willing to make some sacrifice, not so much for business interests in China, Standard Oil and the rest, but because of the chastening effect the process will have on the military minded Japs.

As long, then, as the administration does not go any farther than utilization of these peaceful devices, its policy will not meet with great objection. What the public fears is that the process cannot be stopped here.

The American people have seen gunboats operating miles up Chinese rivers, protecting property there. It has seen other militarist demonstrations in the orient which promise nothing but serious trouble.

The public is not exactly ready to use military force in the orient. The prize is not worth the price. Putting our foot in the door is all right as long as we have sense enough to pull it out again if keeping the door open means war.

The French government, glorying in the peace that Chamberlain has brought to France, is framing pacts which it hopes to enter into with Germany and Italy. The new French policy which Daladier is framing calls for friendly relations with its neighbors and concentration on the development of its empire. What France is trying to do, briefly, is to keep her place in Europe thru accords with Italy and Germany, based on close co-operation with Britain. There is only one cloud on this picture, the price France must pay. If events of the last few years give any indication, that price will be high indeed.

The Chinese government is running into internal difficulties with its policy, voluntarily or involuntarily, of giving ground and drawing the Japanese forces out over more and more territory. Some Chinese leaders regard this policy as a mistake. They would continue to fight and resist every foot the Japs advanced into the country. The Chinese have made some attempt at resistance with no great success. The impetuous leaders may be mistaken in their theory of the proper tactics.

In the middlewest at least, the number of persons on WPA shrank during September. The number put to work was smaller than the number released from work. Regional Director Hunter regards this as a very favorable sign and it is, for surely the administration would not cause the rolls to shrink just preceding election, and as a result the decline is voluntary, caused by increased private employment.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL.

Several years ago C. Petrus Peterson had occasion to call on the secretary of the treasury in Washington. He desired to discuss a rule relating to liquid loans. He made the statement to the secretary that the government was applying to banks in the agricultural west a rule that worked very well on the Atlantic seaboard, but not so well where money turnover is not quite so rapid. The secretary was in no mood to discuss this subject and rather abruptly intimated that the interview was over. "All right," said Mr. Peterson, "this is not the end. Nebraska has a senator down here, a senator by the name of Norris, and I shall go over and see him." "No, don't do that," said the secretary, with much concern, "We'll talk this matter over now." The interview was continued with more satisfaction to Mr. Peterson. "And that," says Mr. Peterson, "is the only time that Senator Norris ever did me any good."

Business men in the smaller communities of the state are being interested in a constitutional amendment that would remove the requirement imposing double liability on state bank stockholders. It is pointed out that a great many small towns are without a banking institution and that in a few instances state banks are considering nationalizing, unless they can get this relief. The law does not impose a double liability on the national bank stockholders. Many buy stock in an effort to aid their community in securing a banking house. Many of these are not bankers, and have no more than a community interest in making the investment. It is pointed out that a stockholder in a mercantile concern, or a lumber or coal company, is not burdened with a double liability on his stock. He may lose his investment but he is not penalized because of that. Further, it is pointed out that depositors have profited very little thru the operation of the double liability law.

At a dinner at the Cornhusker hotel Thursday evening, attended by about 80 business men of Lincoln, the sentiment expressed was almost unanimously in favor of removing this liability requirement. After that is done, the legislature may act as wisdom dictates. It may still retain a liability, or it may remove it altogether. One of the plans suggested by bankers, to further protect depositors of banks, is that all state banks be required to lay aside 10 percent of their earnings until such time as their surplus equals their capital stock. They would not be permitted, under this plan, to pay dividends until the 10 percent had been laid aside.

The republican organization has appealed to the United States senate committee which has been assigned to an investigation of political corruption practices. The republicans, struggling along without an adequate campaign fund, are opposed by the democratic organization, which has collected money from officers and jobholders under the state and national administrations. They are making an offer to the committee to lay information in their possession relating to the misuse of political power in its hands.

Altho the case from Omaha involving the constitutionality of the antipicketing law was once on the proposed call for the state supreme court, it has not yet been argued. Attorneys on both sides asked, after the appeal had been filed by the convicted picket, that it be submitted to the full court of seven judges, which is his right where the constitutionality of an act is challenged. The death of Chief Justice Goss in August reduced the number of judges to six. George H. Turner, clerk of the court, communicated with the attorneys and they replied they preferred to wait until the new justice elected took his seat, Gov. Cochran having decided that there was no reason for filling the four month vacancy by appointment.

The legal controversy over the substitution of municipal court for the justice of the peace courts of Lancaster county has been a long drawn out affair. In a former law there was a provision that the municipal judge was to be elected by the voters of the city. The supreme court held that law unconstitutional. The controversy now has narrowed down to the question of when the change under the new law, providing for a county-wide vote for municipal judge, goes into effect. The justices of the peace have won their contention that they are entitled to be placed on the ballot. This carries an implication that the substitution of the municipal court for the justice courts does not take place until January, 1941.

Produce houses have taken advantage of the changed situation and send their own trucks out to the small towns loaded with sugar or some other heavy commodity that local merchants want, and trade their cargoes for produce. They can charge for the sugar haul whatever they please or make no charge at all, because their trucks had to make the route anyway. As they can buy sugar as cheaply as can the jobbers, the latter have lost much of their small town business in these commodities to the produce men, and the commercial trucker has lost the haul. A number have already been forced out of business by reason of this practice.

FOOTNOTES.

Some time ago the city library board, following the suggestion of the expert from the national library association called in to indicate what betterments might be made, adopted a schedule of pay for staff members based upon experience and library school training that represented substantial increases for most of them. Now it finds that having thus certified to the capability of the staff members these are being repeatedly attracted to other cities and to federal agencies that pay higher salaries. The salary schedule now in force is about the average of libraries of like size and importance, but larger libraries with more funds at their disposal, looking for assistants, keep raiding their staffs apparently on the assumption that they are just the type of trained persons they seek.

"No, I wouldn't want to live in anything resembling a dormitory," said a Lincoln professional woman, who like most of her age and occupation, keeps up an apartment. "Business girls are too mature, to put it delicately, and set in their ways for any such mode of existence." This comment was aroused by an item in print concerning a proposed residence building in town corresponding to the newest dormitory for girls on the campus.

"The one reason I could see for such a structure," she added, "is the apartment situation in Lincoln, which is deplorable, no less. If I had capital to invest, I'd run up a building of two room and three room apartments. There are almost none in town, and few in good condition. They could be made comfortable, convenient and modern at not too great cost. As it is, I myself pay exactly the same rental for five rooms in the capitol neighborhood that two of my friends and their father pay for the same amount of space, with more air and sunlight, in Washington Heights, New York City."

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

Address questions, stamped envelope enclosed, to Frederic J. Haskin, Journal Information Bureau, Washington D. C.

Q. How many Italians now live in Ethiopia?

A. The Italian population of Ethiopia has now reached 335,000.

Q. Please give Clarence Day's tribute to books.

A. It is as follows: The world of books is the most remarkable creation of man. Nothing else that he builds ever lasts. Monuments fall, nations perish, civilizations grow old and die out, and, after an era of darkness, new races build others. But in the world of books are volumes that have seen this happen again and again and yet live on, still young, still as fresh as the day they were written, still telling men's hearts of the hearts of men centuries dead.

A. How large is Alcatraz Island in San Francisco bay?

A. The island contains 12½ acres.

Q. Is there a method of making sawdust fireproof for insulation purposes?

A. Wood shavings, or sawdust, may be made fireproof by using a solution of borax in water. About two pounds of borax in three gallons of water is a good proportion. The shavings can be either dipped or sprayed and should then be thoroly dried before being used as insulation.

Q. Who said, My work is best for me?

A. The quotation, "My work is best for me" appears in a poem by Henry Van Dyke entitled "Work".

Q. Is it safe to leave a boat out of water in summer weather?

A. The forest service says that wood naturally tends to swell in absorbing moisture and inversely to shrink on losing moisture below a value of approximately 30 percent known as the fiber saturation point. If a boat is subjected to summer weather for two months it will probably dry enough to open up the seams.

Q. Please give some information about the life and work of Winold Reiss.

A. Fritz Winold Reiss was born in Germany. He is a painter, teacher, and architect. He studied under Franz von Stuck, and attended the Royal Academy of Fine Arts, Munich. His works include decoration of the Apollo theater; South Sea island ballroom of Hotel Sherman, Chicago, Illinois; restaurants—Crillon, Robert, Bonaparte, Rumpelmayer, Caprice, all in New York City; Tavern Club, Chicago, Ill.; Hotel St George, Brooklyn; mosaic murals, Cincinnati Union Terminal. One of his most important works is a collection of 81 portraits of Indians, which has been exhibited in principal art institutes and museums in Stockholm, Paris, Munich, and the United States.

Q. How much alcohol does absinthe contain?

A. The best absinthe contains from 70 to 80 percent of alcohol.

DAVID LAWRENCE.

WASHINGTON.—Inadvertently perhaps, but nevertheless not without considerable significance, President Roosevelt has opened up the whole subject of the conduct of commissions as well as congressional committees with respect to rules of evidence.

The president objects to the fact that the Dies committee of the house of representatives investigating un-American activities has not been governed by rules of evidence. He said, for instance, in his public statement this week:

"Mere opinion evidence has been barred in court since the American system of legislative and judicial procedure was started."

But has it? Take, for instance, the national labor relations act, usually called the Wagner act. It was signed by President Roosevelt himself, and contains a provision with respect to proceedings growing out of complaints of "unfair labor practice" as follows:

"In any such proceeding, the rules of evidence prevailing in courts of law or equity shall not be controlling."

This has been one of the chief sources of friction between the labor board and its critics. Hearsay and opinion are not only included, but a trial examiner is permitted in his report to give his "impressions" of the credibility of witnesses. The procedure of the labor board is naturally in conformity with the language of the statute, so no blame attaches to the board for carrying out the law as written by congress and approved by the president.

Mr. Roosevelt's solicitude for persons who are mentioned in congressional hearings is very much in line with the complaints that have been heard for years about the way investigating committees injure the reputation of persons and yet are not amenable to any libel laws.

If the president's interest has been awakened to the point of considering what is or what is not a fair hearing for the citizen or fair treatment by a governmental body, especially with respect to "mere opinion" or hearsay evidence, he will find in the proposals to amend the Wagner act some interesting suggestions. Thus, John Lord O'Brian, noted attorney who happens just now to be running on the republican ticket in New York state against Senator Wagner, but who previous to this campaign has been liberal enough and able enough to be one of the chief attorneys for the government in the TVA cases, had this to say a few nights ago in a public address bearing on this very point:

"There is no fair hearing provided in this statute (the Wagner act.) What is the method prescribed? The national labor board files a complaint with itself. To hear and try out the complaint, the board appoints a trial examiner whose salary is paid by it. It designates one of its own lawyers to prosecute the case. The trial examiner holds a hearing or trial and later reports his recommendations to the board. The board itself then reviews the record and makes the final decision upon the complaint originally filed by it, prosecuted by it, and heard by its trial examiner.

"If there is any substantial evidence which will support its decisions on the facts, the findings of the board as to these facts are binding upon the courts. In some fields of departmental government involving purely administrative questions, arguments might be made for justifying this type of procedure, but not in cases of the character arising under the labor act, where fundamental questions of human right and even of human liberty are constantly involved. These issues are very different in character from those dealt with by the so-called quasi-judicial bodies like the interstate commerce commission. They concern human relations. As the spokesmen of the American Federation of Labor have pointed out, they are judicial questions of grave character and import."

The A. F. of L. in its recent convention announced advocacy of certain procedural changes, but not a word has come from the president about them, even tho they relate to fair hearings. Nor has the president indicated that the rule which he wants the Dies committee to follow by barring "mere opinion evidence" may now, with his consent, be written as an amendment to the Wagner law.

DR. BRADY'S HEALTH TALK.

In certain cases of overweight or rather say oversize south of the equator, the fat accumulates mainly about the hips and thighs, and the face may be positively gaunt. Intelligent moderate regulation of the diet—sometimes the patient finds it hard to consume all the food the physician prescribes—together with endocrine treatment, that is, administration of pituary hormone by the physician, will bring about a redistribution of the fat. In some cases judicious use of thyroid hormone alone or with pituitary, gives better results—but that is a problem for the physician to consider in each individual case.

Aside from that, I know of no method or means of causing either a deposit of fat or flesh in a particular place or removing fat or flesh from one portion of the body without affecting the fat or flesh elsewhere. But then, I don't believe in Santa Claus any more either. If you are susceptible to persuasion there are plenty of charlatans who are willing to show you, at your expense, that they can bake, massage, burn, dissolve, break down or otherwise get the fat off or on wherever you want it off or on. I'm telling you, without obligation on your part, that it can't be done. You pays your money and takes your choice.

But now we come a-runnin' with good news for the Slim Jims and the Skinny Winnies. Remember the insulin method of gaining weight which we suggested here some time ago? Well, that proved highly satisfactory in a few instances, moderately effective in more, disappointing in most cases, I gather from the tone of the reports that trickled in from various parts of the country.

But here is the good word, and I hope 10,000 skinny readers will make a note of it and begin the treatment without delay.

One who has been underweight for years, of low vitality or vite, with poor appetite, nervousness, rapid pulse rate, will generally improve in every respect if he or she supplements the regular diet with not less than 1,000 international units of vitamin B, in the form of vitamin B complex tablets (each tablet contains 250 units of vitamin B) or vitamin B complex syrup (each teaspoonful contains 150 units of vitamin B) or not less than six or eight ounces of wheat germ daily or not less than four or five ounces of dried brewers' yeast daily. Until the appetite improves perhaps the vitamin B complex tablets are easiest to take. But remember, vitamin B complex is food, not medicine, and you would not expect to benefit much from food unless you took it every day in the year, would you?

Says There Are Many Relief Stories Not Told by Committee.

LINCOLN.—I have before me a circular being sent out by the democrat state committee. It carries a story about an aged couple at Friend, whose assistance allotment is $35.50 per month. They are 81 years old and if the home is theirs in which they live, it is deeded to the state.

But there are ten thousand other pictures that are not shown in that circular. Here is one of them—that of an old man at Arcadia. His allotment is $10 per month. He was given a nanny goat. When the kidlets came, a quart of milk was sold daily for 6 cents. It was a sick baby's requirement.

But the case worker heard about it and investigated. The story was true. The assistance check immediately dropped to $8.20. An old lady in Saunders county who, while on assistance, went east to visit a daughter. She fell and broke her hip and could not return home for over 12 months. When she did return, her assistance check was stopped on the grounds she had been away from her state 12 months. There is a case like that in Gosper county.

And so these are the pictures the democrat state committee has overlooked in the Cochran collection. There are thousands of them.

Present Taxes Should Be Lightened or Changed Before Others Are Voted.

ARNOLD.—The grange, in its state convention, justified its long and efficient record as a sane well balanced farm organization, wanting those political changes which are best for all and refusing to accept or condone the various tax remedies of the medicine show variety. Homestead exemption is not asked nor needed by those who have truly earned their homestead. They appreciate the opportunity to have done so. One of the tenants of a government farmstead will probably ask it but anyone who truly earns what he gets feels that he owes to society a return for such a chance and gladly pays his share of tax.

However, the tax in Nebraska is not evenly distributed. The value of manufactures exceeds the value of farm products. Since that is true it certainly indicates that land and property should not bear more than 50 percent of the taxes. Manufacturing and transportation create a salaried or income group whose occupation makes property holding superfluous and burdensome. Since all share in state government benefits, all should share in its support.

The graduated personal income tax and retail sales tax with feed and seed excepted, as advocated by the grange in their resolutions should help to distribute the tax burden fairly and justly.

"White Spots" to the contrary, the Nebraska tax system needs an adjustment to align with growing industrial importance of the state and to adequately meet the educational and governmental needs of the state. Certainly the present taxes should be lightened or changed before others are voted else we may have both and thus gain nothing but an additional burden.

Beware of Voting for Name Only In Coming Election.

HASTINGS. — Certain school heads who have seen a number of terms of service are again seeking re-election. One taxpayer said that it might not be a bad idea to elect them for life provided they would submit to receiving salaries which parallel the incomes received by farmers during the last six years. Numbers of these taxpayers have college degrees and could use larger returns any time.

As soon as elected these persons will begin to advocate higher salaries for educators, but just now they state they are opposed to any unnecessary increase in taxes.

Prediction is also made that election of opponents will lead to changes which will not be desirable. Considering the extent of unemployment and relief, our schools certainly need change.

Some of these candidates boast about the length of time they have been executives. That means that they have not been in direct contact with children and youth in the classroom for many years, and they do not know the problems of the school room first hand. Teachers make the schools, not executives who have attended Columbia university.

Beware of voting for a name only on the non-political ballot. Be sure you know something about the candidates, and tell your neighbors what you learn.

CAROLINE BENGTSON.

Disagrees with Mr. Stappenbeck on Munich Pact and Czech Crisis.

MILLIGAN.—P. Stappenbeck of Brock is much pleased with the Munich pact, which has no comparison in history as to its unhuman, unmoral act of so called powerful democracies against their small but true friend. Perhaps he will see the effect of it in his later life. Everyone must see that the much better system, democracy, (altho degenerated by greediness) had to bow before brutal threat and force of the arrogant dictatorial system. Yes, brutal force is victorious for the time being, but civilization will continue its forward march over the rocky road and when awakening fully from the brutal impact caused by its own weakness, truth will win under the revived democracy.

Now as to the Czechs' squawk pertaining to the crisis caused by brutal arrogant Hitlerism and shyster trading Chamberlainism. These forces, very much in contrast as to ideals and setup, are equally destructive of justice, morality and honor, the very foundation of real democracy.

Mr. Stappenbeck, if not prejudical, shows a lack of knowledge as to describing parallel of dissatisfaction of Czechs under treatment received under the old German-Austrian rotten monarchial system and the treatment received by them now under the Munich pact, or comparing their treatment over their German minorities. I will not attempt to describe or bring facts as to the Czechs' treatment received under the old German-Austrian government. I lived in the said borderland where German minority under the guidance of Austrian rule gave their uncivilized treatment to the Czech majority living in their own country. And the treatment received by German minority under the model democracy in the Czechoslovakia republic was a perfect heaven—rather too good treatment as to allow them to become traitors to their own country in which they lived over 1,000 years, in which they moved, or Germanized themselves under economic pressure.

Sees No Future In New Deal Except For Those Administering It.

WILCOX.—Six years ago "We need a change" was a familiar campaign slogan. We got a change all right, but not the kind we needed. We were promised reduced unemployment, a return to prosperity, particularly on the farm, less public debt and taxes and less corrupt politics. Unemployment is still at the depression high level. I am a farmer, and in my experience new deal hard times are as hard to endure, and worse, than any in my recollection. I believe a majority of my neighbors and all other farmers will agree with me. In spite of the billions poured out in payments and AAA administration costs, the average farmer is not a nickel's worth better off than six years ago. In many cases hope has been displaced by discouragement. As to public debt, taxes and political corruption, what a change! However, the new dealers practically ignore this. They rather make reckless spending and all sort of PWA projects a virtue. This policy is inevitably leading us into government ownership and control of all wealth.

There is no future in the new deal except for the ones having to do with its administration. It is the opposite of representative democracy. In our own state we should retire our new deal minded governor and put in his place not only a farmer but one who knows something about taxation aside from the receiving end of it. In this district we should retire our present congressman and send instead one whose ideas of good legislation center around something other than socialistic, inflationary money-tinkering. All along the line, the republican ticket is the safe ticket to safer government.

We do need a change!

SAYS KruGon's ACTION SEEMS ALMOST TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

Mrs. Spann Felt Miserable All The Time; Gas, Bloating Made Her Life Miserable; Bowels Refused To Function Correctly, But KruGon Changed All.

"People tell you of medicine 'just as good as KruGon' but I have tested many of them and as yet have never found KruGon's equal," said Mrs. Ivah Spann, a well known and highly respected lady who lives at 2027 N. St., Lincoln, in a recent statement of praise reaching the Raymond Bauer Drug Co., N and 13th Sts., this city;

MRS. IVAH SPANN.

"It actually seemed that everything was wrong with me," continued Mrs. Spann. "I was badly constipated and felt sluggish and miserable all the time. I was so draggy and worn-out that I could hardly get about it seemed. I was also troubled so much with bloating. Everything that I ate caused me to bloat until I could hardly stand it. Even to drink water I would bloat to excess. I had awful pains in my back and limbs continually although I don't know what caused them. I tried everything that I had any hopes of helping me but was always met with the same results—failure. I had gotten to the place that I thought nothing was able to help me when I heard about KruGon but I realized that something had to be done. I could not let my poor health condition go on and on growing worse each day, and not knowing what else to try, I got a package of KruGon and began using it. Why what KruGon did for me in a weeks time is almost unbelievable."

"KruGon has since regulated my entire body to my satisfaction," continued Mrs. Spann. "I am now feeling fine, sleep like a child and eat and enjoy my regular meals without any bloating or after distress. All the aches and pains are gone, my bowels are regulated and I get the proper elimination. My strength and energy has been renewed, that tired listless feeling is gone and I am feeling better than I have for a long time. I cannot express how thankful I am that I decided to give this wonderful laxative-tonic, KruGon, the opportunity to change my years of suffering into good and glorious health."

KruGon is sold by the Raymond Bauer Drug Company, N and 13th Sts., this city, and by the leading druggists in surrounding towns.

SHINING WINDOWS

by Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE.

"Michael, what a fool I am!" Joyce said, still red from embarrassment. "I don't know what I was thinking of!"

He put a hand on her shoulder. "There's always been Paul. And I didn't want to make you uncomfortable and perhaps have to go away.

"For a little while after he went to England I hoped that the Paul dynasty was over; then he came back and the letters commenced again. I think he loves you. I don't think he knew it in that first year or two; it sounds more as if he did now. I'm not in the picture at all."

"I'm horribly sorry I said that stupid thing!" the girl murmured. "You've done so much for me; you've been so wonderful when I was heartbroken and impatient and—and dumb about everything. You've let me talk to you when I couldn't talk to anyone else. I'm crying, but I don't know why!" she said, smiling with brimming eyes. "I'd say you were like a brother to me, Michael, only you're nearer than Ben ever was And if ever I've made you unhappy I'm sorrier than I know how to say. You—you—" She stopped out of words, flushed and confused. "You know that, don't you?" she stammered in conclusion.

"It would be vary hard for any man to have been here as I've been during these years, and not love you, Joyce," Michael said. "You were an adorable child when you came; you're a woman now. I've seen you cooking, playing with your kitten, raking the yard, scolding, happy, crying, comforting them all when you needed comfort so badly yourself! I've seen you in old sweaters on picnics and drying your hair, and dressed as Lady Teazle—

"But I've never seen you when you weren't the most wonderful woman God ever made," he added in a silence. "You know how poor I am; you know exactly what life would be up in the shack. I've never offered it to you and I never will! I'm going to stay on here after you go away, and work out things with your father; you'll come back for visits, and so will Dodo and Lissy and Ben, and pretty soon I'll be Uncle Mike to the crowd."

"You know that what you have has had nothing to do with it, Michael," the girl said in a voice she held low and steady. "I was in love with Paul when I came here. When I thought he didn't care for me it didn't make any difference; I loved him just as much."

"I knew you did!" Michael said. "And this June he will be home again?"

"Well, perhaps later than that. His stepfather died and he's been helping his mother get her estate. But they say it will be all settled in June or July. Then he comes out here."

"To stay?"

"To practice law. He'll be in his father's firm."

"And then I suppose we'll have some news?"

"I don't exactly know," she said hesitantly. "He writes as if we—sort of—belonged to each other, but he doesn't say."

The man looked down at her gravely.

"Then we'll just have to wait for midsummer," he finally said "And suppose that even then it isn't right, Joyce?"

"I don't know," she said.

There was the click of a latch behind them and they both turned to see William Ballard in his pajamas.

"I'm glad you're up, Joyce," he said. "Your mother isn't well. She's got a pain in her side. I'm going to get a doctor, and you go up to her."

"I'll get Nubbins," the younger man said. "I'm dressed."

Despite warning weeks of illness the end seemed stunningly sudden. Joyce felt dazed when it was over. When Lissy and Ben and Dodo had gone away, the house was empty.

Her father was strangely quiet; he wandered about like a person in a dream. That Sally had been unreasonable, difficult, unhelpful in all the crises of the last few years, was all forgotten now. They only remembered her fierce loyalties, the vibrant energy that spread about her like a visible thing and made life exciting. It was very real grief that was felt by all Sally Ballard's children.

Joyce got into the habit of following the men about the farm.

"I see what you get out of it, Dad," she told him.

He and Michael adored her and did their best to spoil her. They never returned from San Francisco or San Jose without bringing her a little present; a cake of fragrant soap, a penknife for her crossword puzzle pencils, a pair of fine silk stockings. In the evenings, when she sat flushed and lovely between them, the two men would watch her as she talked, lose the sense of her words for the sheer pleasure of watching the red mouth enunciate them

Now and then Paul wrote to Joyce. There was never anything but nonsense in the letters, but the sight of his handwriting always made her heart leap. She would keep the letters unanswered as long as she could force her courage to do so, after ten days, two weeks, she would write him in the same flippant vein; she would save ridiculous anecdotes, work out fantastic phrases to make her replies amusing. It was sorry business; she loved Paul, she didn't want to write to him in his fashion, but he had set the pace and she could only follow. Neither Michael nor her father ever heard her speak of Paul, but deep in Joyce's heart lived the undying thought of him; he was never long absent from her mind.

She wondered how they would close the gap of this parting or if ever they would see each other again. She would not go to meet him this time; she would never again enter that hot crowded hurried world of his to be confused and hurt. It wasn't her world It wasn't the world of girls who had kitchen work to do, who fed baby chickens and watched the tiny radishes and lettuces come up in the chill sweet spring sunshine. "He must still like me, or he wouldn't write to me," Joyce would muse. "But there may be a dozen other girls in his life now. I'd never know it if there were!"

Arthur Tallant came out from England and Michael went up to San Francisco and spent two days with him, bringing him down to the farmhouse on a March afternoon when spring was just tiptoeing into view. The willows all along the creek were green, the first fruit blossoms were out, and yellow mustard had washed like a wave over the fields Everything looked its best and Joyce looked her loveliest, too, as she welcomed the English visitor

She and her father and the two men scrambled up the long hill to Michael's cabin after luncheon. Arty liked the cabin immensely; it had been much improved in the years since the Ballards had come to the neighborhood; it had a porch now and a shower.

"Why couldn't we bach it here for a bit?" Arty asked enthusiastically.

"Why shouldn't you stay in our spare room?" Joyce said It was settled the English cousin should stay for a fortnight anyway, and he and Michael should divide their time between the farmhouse and the cabin.

Your Problems

By Mary Gordon.

Dear Mary Gordon: A man I know of made it a rule never to say anything about another until he had put the substance of the intended statement to this test:

Is it true?
Is it kind?
Is it necessary?
If it wasn't true, that ended it, so far as he was concerned.

If it was true, but unkind, he wouldn't say a word unless it was necessary.

A simple rule, but not easy to follow. For the tongue is the most unruly of all the body's members. It constantly tempts us to say whatever comes into the mind, and few of us place any such sentinels as the above at our speech exits

Sometimes I wonder why Mother Nature didn't make it a tireable muscle! If talking produced tongue fatigue in the way walking produces leg fatigue, think what a lot of trouble would be saved! Maybe the fact that nature is feminine had something to do with this exemption.

The fact that one can talk and talk and talk without wearing out anything but the patience of his or her hearers—and sometimes without so much as doing that!—is one of the chief causes for the vast flow of thoughtless, useless, hurtful or dangerous words which daily floods the channels of human relations.

Another reason for this disquieting, damaging overflow is the too common practice of letting thought follow, rather than precede speech.

It's so easy to loose words without stopping to think where they may hit or whom they may hurt It's so easy to rattle along, lured by the sound of one's voice into lightly-made statements which may do no end of harm.

Won't your readers stop and think a moment and maybe be a little kinder in their speech—and maybe talk less to an exhausted world?—Sam

A. Perhaps a speechless week is what we need, now and then.

FRANCE TO REPEAT HISTORIC POSITION

Part in Peace of Munich Compared to Partition in 1870.

PARIS. (AP). The adage that history repeats itself will have ample justification in France if Premier Daladier turns the nation's energies away from a fight to lead Europe to salvation in her vast colonial empire. Once before France abandoned her fight to lead in European power politics to find recovery and union outside the continent.

After the disastrous war with Prussia in 1870, a divided and shaken France won the world's second largest colonial empire and prosperity in the 40-odd years before the World war.

Today, altho Daladier stoutly denies it, many French commentators have compared the French part in the peace at Munich which partitioned Czechoslovakia to the battle of Sedan in 1870. In that battle France's power was broken before the growing strength of Germany.

Daladier's speech before the radical socialist party conference Thursday was not taken to mean that France would give up her present role in Europe,—of seeking peace understandings with her neighbors.

In the years following 1870 she played an active part in the concert of continental powers. But she abandoned her historic policy of fighting to be dominant in European leadership to recover and develop her strength outside the continent, because Germany's power made it difficult to recover and develop that strength in Europe.

Massive rearmament in Europe followed the 1870 defeat. Daladier has pressed for massive rearmament today.

Whereas the years that followed the Sedan defeat were engaged in conquering and building colonies a similar French policy today would seek economic development of those lands.

In Europe, 45,000,000 Frenchmen compare with nearly 80,000,000 Germans. Military competition is extremely difficult for France unless she has other continental allies to back her up.

But there are 65,000,000 population in her overseas possessions for compensation—provided their lands are developed and their status raised to somewhere near European levels.

Frenchmen declare France has failed to develop markets for her industry in the colonies and has neglected them as sources of supplies.

It is his custom to look for a new topic each year Last year he discussed the origins of monotheism and the year before the gorgons the three sisters of Greek mythology

As the Baldachin is said to trace back to Babylonia it was recalled that the kaiser visiting an Amsterdam museum during the recent Czechoslovak crisis refused to talk about anything less than 2 000 years old

Princess Hermine the kaiser s wife attended the session at which her husband spoke In the audience also were a number of savants whose names were withheld in order to avoid international complications

It was believed this might have meant some of them were 'non-Aryan The Doorner arbeitsgemeinschaft has several American members but none of them was present

England Would Fight Rather Than Hand Colonies to Hitler

BY DR GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

NEW YORK —Evidence of a stiffening of public opinion in England toward Hitler s drive for territorial expansion is revealed in a survey just completed by the British Institute of Public Opinion affiliate of the American Institute

This study shows that an overwhelming majority of Britons are not only against giving back to Germany any of her former colonies but say they would actually fight rather than hand them over Moreover sentiment against the return of the colonies has been increasing, for the current survey shows a greater percentage of opposition than did a similar survey taken a year ago—before Hitler grabbed Austria and annexed the Sudetenland

The British Institute whose reports appear in England in the London News Chronicle asked a cross section of British voters in the latest survey

Are you in favor of giving back any former German colonies?

For Returning Colonies	15%
Against	85

Those who voted against the return were asked Would you rather fight than hand them back? The vote was

Yes	78%
No	22

A year ago the vote on returning colonies was 24 percent for 76 percent opposed

Will Vote Affect Chamberlain's Policy?

The solid wall of votes against return of the colonies is especially significant at this time because it is reported that Hitler will soon present emphatic demands for the reich s lost possessions the lion s share of which went to Great Britain in 1919 This would bring him up against public opposition in England The question remains whether Prime Minister Chamberlain can afford politically to negotiate with him on the colonial question in the face of disapproval at home

The rank and file voters of Chamberlain s own party are against the return of the colonies by just about as large a majority as the voters of the opposition parties Those voters who favor the present Chamberlain government are more than 8 to 2 against return

	Favor Return	Against Return
Government	17%	83%
Opposition	13	87

According to reports of Chamberlain s speech in the house of commons Sept 28 the prime minister discussed briefly with Hitler the colonial question and the implications seem to be that the subject was still open for further discussion

But Chamberlain declared in the commons that Hitler had told him the issue of the colonies was not one over which Germany would go to war leading from the British Institute survey however it is a question over which a majority of British voters say they would take up arms

Altho the United States took none of the former German colonies after the war public opinion in America is almost as opposed to seeing them returned to Germany as public opinion in England The American Institute of Public Opinion conducted a survey early this month in the United States and found a vote of 22 per cent for returning the colonies 78 percent opposed

HOLT SAYS PLAINTS TO OBTAIN A RULING

Believes Congress to Prohibit the Use of Relief Money for Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) Senator Holt (d W Va) predicted that complaints of WPA activities in the election campaign would lead congress to prohibit use of relief money for political purposes Holt a critic of the WPA charged that manipulation of relief funds to influence voters had become a national scandal that should lead to some grand jury indictments

He praised the work of the senate campaign expenditures committee which has investigated charges that the WPA was being used for the benefit of candidates

The committee has criticized relief officials in some states

Certainly Holt declared no one can say that Senator Shepard (d Tex) who is chairman of the committee is not an administration supporter And no one can say that the committee has been biased in any way in investigating these charges

Sheppard s committee will meet again next Wednesday and Thursday to hear final reports on investigations in a half dozen states

Sheppard said further information on charges of WPA political activity in Pennsylvania North Dakota Tennessee Kentucky and New Jersey would be included along with reports on other investigations in Ohio and Illinois

MURPHY VICTORY IS REGARDED AS VITAL

Importance of Michigan Race Explains President's Unusual Endorsement.

By Joseph Alsop, Robert Kintner.
Copyright by the NANA (The Lincoln Journal and other newspapers).

WASHINGTON.—The president would never take an elephant gun to kill a donkey, or issue an elaborate public statement merely to refute a Dies committee witness. His eager defense of Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan needs explanation.

The explanation is fairly simple. To the president and his new dealers, the re-election of Frank Murphy in Michigan is just as crucially important as the re-election of Herbert Lehman in New York. Murphy is the only well known public official outside of Washington whom the new dealers accept as a 100 percent true believer. He is on terms of the closest intimacy with most of them, from the president down. And his victory is vital, because he symbolizes the kind of democratic leadership for which the new dealers fought in the purge.

Add that the new dealers have received pessimistic reports from Michigan, where Murphy is given an edge, but only a very slight one, and the reason is clear for the ringing presidential indorsement of Murphy.

McKinley's Ghost.

Under normal circumstances, Murphy would have an easy time with his republican opposition in spite of Michigan's traditional republicanism. The republican gubernatorial nominee is a bumbling old guardsman, Frank D. Fitzgerald, who has already served an undistinguished term as governor and was licked by Murphy in 1936. Fitzgerald's chief backer is Frank McKay, an enterprising politician of Polish extraction, whose history would throw the calmest good government league into a fit of hysterics.

McKay and his ally, Edward Barnard, of Detroit, have marshaled the broken winded hacks of the old time republican machine into a paunchy, cigar smoking army, which would never fight at all if the commissariat were not so well supplied by Michigan's labor hating business. In fact, the Michigan republicans have ignored the exciting examples of their colleagues in New York, Massachusetts and Ohio. They are still trying to beat Franklin Roosevelt with the ghost of William McKinley.

But there are two additional factors which change the balance of the situation. The first is the sitdown strikes. Leaving on one side all the moral arguments, the strikes scared the pants off the farmers and the middle class. There is some evidence that the motor manufacturers themselves warned Governor Murphy against strong measures. After all, General Motors' Chevrolet sales would not have been improved if machine guns had been turned on the sitdowners in the Flint plant. But the Michigan middle class undoubtedly blames Murphy for weak handling of the sitdowns.

The second factor working against Murphy is even more interesting, the democrats' intraparty struggle did not end with the purge. The new dealer, Murphy, is the victim of the hatred of the organization democrats, just as the new dealers tried to make organization democrats their victims in the purge.

The leader of the Michigan democratic organization is the state high way commissioner, Murray Van Waggoner, a shrewd, genial, youngish man whom Jim Farley esteems highly. Thru the highway department, Van Waggoner controls far more patronage than any other Michigan official. And he has shown the greatest reluctance to put his men behind Murphy. He will act in secret if he acts at all, but, if he finally decides to risk stabbing Murphy in the back, the wound is likely to prove mortal.

Furthermore, Van Waggoner's attitude only reflects the feelings of the entire party organization in the state. Murphy has made himself bitterly unpopular with the pap and patronage boys, partly by parading his intellectual new dealism, partly by an irritating theatrical manner, and partly by insisting on such aids to good government as a decent civil service

Brother Hall and Others.

A few weeks ago, Murphy's prospects were far worse. Factional strife in the automobile workers union threatened the unity of his labor support. The president's brother-in-law, G. Hall Roosevelt, capriciously attempted a stop Murphy movement, which might have got somewhere if the president hadn't asserted himself, and Fitzgerald had not had time to exercise his talent for putting his foot in his mouth. Today, the issue is still doubtful. If Murphy loses in the end, the new dealers will be thoroly punch drunk.

DENTAL SOCIETY ELECTS

Next National Convention to Be in Milwaukee.

ST. LOUIS (AP). Teeth of all kinds—both natural and "store" varieties—resumed their everyday tasks Friday after playing a prominent part during the week in lectures, clinics and exhibits at the annual convention of the American Dental association.

The association, now aligned with organized medicine in approving major principles of the proposed $850,000,000 a year federal public health program, named Dr. Arthur H. Merritt of New York as president-elect for 1939-40.

Dr. Merritt will take office at the close of next year's convention in Milwaukee. Dr. Marcus L. Ward of Ann Arbor, Mich., selected a year ago, assumed the presidency of the association for the coming year, succeeding Dr. C. Willard Camalier of Washington. Vice presidents elect for 1938-39 are: Dr. O. A. Kelly of St. Louis, Dr. P. C. Lowery of Detroit and Dr. J. O. Hall of Waco, Tex.

Presidents elected of affiliate groups included: Dr. Leon R. Kramer of Topeka, American association of public health dentists; Dr. Mabel M. Dixon of Hastings, Neb., American association of women dentists; Miss Helen Baukin of Honolulu, American dental hygienists association.

HAVE FAST WAR PLANE

U. S. Ship Passes Test at Six Miles a Minute.

WASHINGTON. (AP). A six mile a minute war plane is the army's immediate answer to European rivalry for speed supremacy in the air. A 360 mile flight in 61 minutes from Dayton, O., to Buffalo, N. Y., Thursday by Lieut. Benjamin S. Kelsey lifted the wraps from a pursuit ship about which the air corps previously had little to say.

The plane, the Curtiss P-37, already has passed the experimental stage. An initial squadron of 13 ordered last December soon will be delivered, officials said. Without halting to gloat over the P-37, the army intends to announce in a few days another and presumably even faster plane, Designated the P-40, it is an experimental job, and most details will not be disclosed for the present.

Both Germany and Great Britain have combat planes for which they have boasted even greater speed than that attained by the P-37. But the air corps has a ready answer.

BAG PUNCHING IS OKAYED

Boston Woman Haled Into Court as Nuisance.

BOSTON. (AP). Sixty-three year old Mrs. Mary Sullivan had permission to continue bag punching as exercise to help her arthritis notwithstanding objections of her south Boston neighbors who didn't like the noise. Major Peter Borre, a master appointed by Suffolk court to hear their objections, reported the noise "does not in fact constitute 'a disturbance or a nuisance."

"I am of the opinion," he wrote, "that the volume and the effect of the noise complained of was more or less illuminated by imagination and peculiar sensitivity to the noise on the part of some of the witnesses."

PLATE IN REVERSE.

WALTON, N. Y. (AP). They're going to pass the plate in reverse at the First Methodist church here Sunday. Rev. Grant Robinson explained that every member of the congregation will take $1 "from the plate instead of putting something on it." "Each," he added, "will invest the dollar in any way he believes may be profitable and will later return the dollar and the profits to the church."

Personal Rights Problem Newly Acute in World

The Sunday school lesson for Oct. 30 is "Personal Rights and Where They End. Subject: International Temperance Sunday."—Ecclesiastes 2:1-3; 10, 11, Romans 6:17-23; 14:21.

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

This week the international lessons diverge from the study of the Ten Commandments to permit recognition of International Temperance Sunday, and to provide a consideration of "Personal Rights and Where They End." This anniversary is a reminder of the world-wide unity of the forces of religion and righteousness. It is educational to recall that in Scandinavia and Great Britain and South Africa and Australia there are agencies for society's upbuilding which are quite as deeply concerned and as efficient as any in the United States and Canada. Godliness is fighting on a world front.

And everywhere morality is tangled up with politics. We cannot study the old question of personal rights without coming upon the ominous truth that today in whole nations personal rights have been largely extinguished. The totalitarian state, with its grim menace to human personality, is a creation of the present generation. It is a new issue with which the whole world must grapple. "Rugged individualism" is on trial for its life. Any consideration of the theme of personality must take into account this larger phase of the situation.

These are days for thought. Everybody must sit on the inquisitor's seat. This duty may not be delegated. Editorials and campaign speeches abound in advice; but each of us must make his own decisions, formulate his own philosophy, steer his own course. Independent thinking is the first evidence of personality. If German, Italian and Russian citizens once determine to think for themselves, the totalitarian state is doomed. And if all of us do the same in the realm of morals, the ancient and vexatious question of intemperance will come near to solution. But it takes real and conscious and deliberate thought; and most of us are lazier in our thought processes than in any other function of life.

A Paradox of the Times.

In this matter of personality, the currents flow two ways. Politically, the tide runs strongly toward the submergence of the individual and his rights. Rule by the state is superseding the initiative of the common man. The day's mood is to shift responsibility to the government. This tendency has reached its zenith in Germany and Italy, where individual thought and speech and action have been practically submerged.

On the other hand, in the realm of morals, we have come to a "do-as-you-please" era. "Obey that impulse" has become more sacred to myriads than the Ten Commandments. Whatever the heart of man desires, that he does, heedless of consequences. Personal morality has been at a horrifyingly low ebb, especially amidst the postwar generation. Chastity, truthfulness, law observance, and social responsibility have been treated as lightly as the whim of a summer day. Business ethics have been revealed to be upon as low a level as political disinterestedness. This state of affairs must give every good citizen pause.. For an ordered society cannot be maintained on the basis of "Every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost."

Lake Walden a Picnic Resort.

We must guard ourselves against too sweeping criticism. The evidence of the ills of our time is thrust constantly before our eyes, while the sturdy virtues stand unheeded in the background. There are more churches than night clubs in New York City; yet we read daily of the night clubs and seldom hear of the churches. The good citizens of the land far outnumber the bad and the careless. The bulk of our population is law abiding, neighborly and God-fearing. They should be more vocal and insistent upon their fair claims to consideration.

It is in the country that personality comes to its fullest expression. The law of the city is conformity. Mrs. Grundy is queen of every urban center. The nearer to nature we get the better the opportunity for one's real self to develop. Thoreau went to Lake Walden to live his own life. Perhaps it is significant that Lake Walden, Henry Thoreau's retreat, once the home of solitude, is today a picnic resort. Still abides the need of society for more Thoreaus and fewer picnickers.

The Price of Personality.

A baby's life is entirely egocentered. It knows nothing, and cares nothing, for anything but its own wants. But as a baby grows into childhood and adolescence and maturity, it finds its self interest conditioned by relationships. It must recognize the rights of others. It can no longer either do as it pleases or offend the ears of the household by crying. Social obligation lays its strong hand even upon the most primitive group.

Some of the current cliches are simply unworkable. "I want to live my own life," cries rebellious youth. But it cannot, unless it become a Robinson Crusoe; and even the versatile Robinson found himself constrained by his livestock, his unknown enemies, and by his man Friday. Everybody is dependent upon other persons for his food, his work, his pleasures.

The problem confronting each person is how to maintain independence of character, and freedom of life, within the compass of essential relationships. The price of personality is respect for the personality and rights of everybody else. "Personal liberty," in the use of liquor or anything else, must have regard for others with equally sacred rights to personal liberty.

"The strength of the wolf is the pack;
The strength of the pack is the wolf."

Living by Royal Law.

Clear, repeated and insistent is the New Testament's teaching upon selfishness versus otherism. Perhaps the royal law of life is most explicitly set forth in Paul's declaration as to the purpose of of the death of Jesus Christ: "He died for all, that they which live should no longer live unto themselves." Again, we have his familiar injunction, "Destroy not with thy meat him for whom Christ died."

POLISH JEWS THE TARGET IN BERLIN

Routed From Their Beds in Nationwide Roundup for Deportation.

BERLIN. (AP). Police routed hundreds of Polish Jews from their beds in a nationwide roundup and hustled them to police barracks for detention, possibly a prelude to deportation. The roundup was believed ordered because German authorities feared Polish Jews, especially those who have lived in Germany for many years, would be declared by the Polish government to be Poles no longer under a law which is to become effective Oct. 30. Thus Germany seized this last minute to dump them on Polish soil.

The Polish embassy in Berlin immediately consulted police authorities regarding the raids. Polish authorities explained that the new Polish law requires examination of all cases of Poles living abroad to determine to what extent they still should be considered Polish citizens.

Berlin authorities were silent regarding the sudden raids, but it was indicated similar sorties were carried out in many German cities. No estimate of the number of Jews involved was given. It was believed they numbered several hundred in Berlin alone. Jewish circles estimated that some 4,000 to 6,000 individuals would be affected. Only men were held. Hundreds of Jewish women lined up outside two Berlin police barracks, hoping to see their relatives.

WILLIAM HARD RESIGNS

Was Secretary of G. O. P. Program Committee.

CHICAGO. (AP). William Hard has resigned his secretaryship of the republican program committee, an office he held since the group was organized last winter. Dr. Glenn Frank, committee chairman, said it was unlikely a successor would be appointed at this time. Hard wrote he desired to return to "independent political journalism" in Washington.

TRAFFIC DEATHS LESSEN

Nation's Toll First 9 Months 21 Percent Down.

CHICAGO. (AP). The nation's traffic death total for the first nine months of 1938 was 21 percent less than that of the same period last year. In reporting these statistics, the national safety council said the gains were general from coast to coast and that September was the ninth consecutive month this year to show a substantial reduction in fatalities. There were 22,130 persons killed in traffic accidents during the first nine months of 1938, compared with 27,950 for the first nine in 1937.

ITALIANS TO LIBYA.

GENOA. (AP). Genoa bade festive farewell Friday to 13,000 colonists sailing for African Libya, which the fascist grand council this week ordered changed from a colony to a status of provincial district. More than 2,000 were in the first group to arrive here. Naples and Syracuse similarly honored 7,000 who were to start from those cities on this 16th anniversary of fascism. Thirty thousand tons of food and 25,000 gallons of wine were loaded on seven ships in the Genoa harbor.

Marriage Meddlers

A Sequal to "Married Comrades"

By Adele Garrison

"It all fits in," I said at last, coming out of the tortuous maze of conjecture which had followed my discovery that the manager and the housekeeper of the Lansfield had gone stealthily to the suite occupied by Avis Arlen after my "kidnapping" of the girl and forcing from her a confession of her plot against Mary.

My tone invited comment—purposely. I knew that Miss Whitlock must be fairly consumed with curiosity. But I told myself that she certainly deserved my fullest confidence because of the signal service she had rendered us, not only in Mary's service, but upon the occasion when we needed to pretend that Allen Drake, in disguise, was my father recovering from a severe illness, when all the time "the chief" was upon a vital secret government mission where it would have been fatal, not only to him, but to his mission, to have his identity discovered.

Nurse Apologizes.

"What have you decided?" the nurse asked eagerly. Then she caught herself up.

"Please don't answer that if you don't want to," she said apologetically. "I don't want to be presumptuous, but I am terribly interested."

"You couldn't be presumptuous if you tried," I told her warmly. "And you surely are entitled to know everything that I know about this mess. Indeed, 'entitled' is not the word to use. If you are going to guard Mary effectually when I am not here, the phrase is not 'entitled to know,' but 'must know'."

"Thank you," she said sincerely. "And I can see where you are right. If you don't mind my asking questions, I would like to get this thing straight in my mind so that I will be able to plan what I am going to do."

"Ask me anything you like," I told her heartily. "I shall be glad to answer, not only on your account, but my own. I am none too clear about the whole thing. Your questions may clarify things a bit."

Hasn't Decided.

"Well! In the first place," she began, "have you decided yet whether Miss Arlen was on her own or was really representing Mr. Veritzen?"

"No, I haven't," I said, "but I am afraid I am being hampered by my reluctance to believe Philip Veritzen could do anything so despicable to his own son's wife, whom he knows his son dearly loves."

"Has he ever done anything like this before?" she asked practically.

I looked back over the years.

"Nothing that we could ever prove," I said truthfully. "Of course, we knew that he tried to keep Noel from marrying Mary. He was determined that he should marry the Princess Olina—I'll tell you the reason sometime; it's a highly romantic story—and failing that, he tried to divert his son's fancy to the girl you saw here tonight."

"That little snake!" Miss Whitlock permitted herself a grimace of distaste. "Where are the man's eyes? Compared to Mary she's an alley cat beside a highly bred Persian."

He Realized It.

"I know it," I said, "and to do him justice, I think Philip Veritzen realized it himself by the time his son married Mary."

"How did he ever come to give his consent?" she asked. "Or is that irrelevant?"

I felt my face flushing at the memory of that old time when I had persuaded Philip Veritzen to give his reluctant consent to the marriage of Noel and Mary, and had insured his making over legally to Noel the boy's dead mother's bequest, which gave him small but secure financial independence of his father.

"It isn't irrelevant," I said, "but I don't think I have time to tell it to you now."

Goodnight Stories

"Yes," said Ting-a-Ling, smiling at Knarf and Hanid, who were sitting in the front of the little rowboat, "I've just discovered a new way to go fishing."

"It's a great improvement over the old way," Ding-Dong broke in He was sitting next to Ting-a-Ling in the back of the boat.

"Show it to us," Knarf put in.

"Now the first thing we do in our new way of fishing," Ting-a-Ling explained, "is to make a little loop in the end of the line and put it around our little finger."

"How can you fish that way?"

"Why do you do that?" Hanid wanted to know.

"That's the end where you catch the fish on. You can't tie it around your finger," Knarf said in surprise.

"But this is a new way of fishing. It isn't anything like the old way, you see," Ting-a-Ling said, smiling again.

"It's an improvement," agreed Ding-Dong.

"Now just watch. We both have our little fingers looped very neatly in the lines. The next thing to do is this—"

With these words the two Chinamen dropped the poles gently into the water. They floated off a little way. But Ting-a-Ling and Ding-Dong kept them from floating away altogether by keeping their fingers looped in the line.

Upside Down Fishing.

Knarf and Hanid were quite astonished. "That's upside down fishing!" they cried. "The lines should be in the water and you should be holding the poles. How can you ever catch fish that way?"

"Oh, we don't expect to catch any fish," said Ding-Dong.

"Of course not," added Ting-a-Ling. "We expect the fish to catch us. For years and years—ever since anybody can remember—people have always been catching fish But no one has ever turned around and given fish their chance to have the same fun. It isn't fair."

"Not fair at all," Ding-Dong said.

"So we're going to sit here until the fish come along and make up their minds to catch us. And that's our new way of fishing."

Now what do you think of that?

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

[Copyright 1938 By Ely Culbertson.]

LAST FRIDAY'S QUESTION, RESTATED AND ANSWERED.

Question 7: You are West, declarer at a three no trump contract. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

DECLARER	DUMMY
♠ A 10 2	♠ Q 7
♥ K Q 4	♥ J 7 3
♦ Q J 9 2	♦ A 10 8 6 3
♣ A Q 9	♣ K 8 4

North's opening lead is the six of spades. What card do you play from dummy, and why? [One sentence will be sufficient for the explanation.]

Answer: You must play dummy's seven of spades, not the queen. Your possession of the spade ten makes this play obligatory: By ducking in dummy, you assure yourself of two spade stoppers, against any lay of the suit. If you play dummy's queen and South covers with the king, your ten spot will not be a second stopper if North [as is likely] holds the spade jack. [Twenty points demerit for playing spade queen.]

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question 15: You are East, defending against a three no trump contract. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

DUMMY [North]
♠ A 8 2
♥ K 7 3
♦ K Q 10 9 6
♣ A Q

YOU [East]
♠ K 4
♥ A Q 10 6 5
♣ 6 5 3 2

West, your partner, opens the spade jack and dummy plays the deuce. In a few words, state your best defense, as you see it. What is your "hope"?

TODAY'S HAND.

East, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

NORTH

SOUTH

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 club	*Pass	1 heart
Pass	1 no trump	Pass	3 no trump
Pass	Pass	Pass

*A trap-pass which had surprising success.

North, in this hand, had a definite case of "no trumpitis." Admittedly, if a hand will make as many tricks at no trump as it will at a suit, the former contract is preferable when playing match-point duplicate. In this case, however, North was a bit hasty in assuming that no trump would be just as good, or as safe as hearts. He overlooked the fact that he could make a bid which would explore the situation more thoroughly before the final decision had to be made. The correct course was to bid three hearts on the second round. If South (who could be depended upon to think of the superiority of no trump) repeated the no trump bid, North might well decide to retire from the auction. But there was, of course, a good chance that South would prefer hearts after a strong rebid from North. As a matter of fact, that is what would have happened. South would have gone to four hearts instead of three no trump, and instead of a poor score on the hand, North-South would have rolled up a very good match point score.

Tomorrow's Hand

HARD OF HEARING MEET.

The Society for the Hard of Hearing will meet at the Y. W. C. A. Saturday evening at 7:30. Rev. Mr. Williams, of Omaha will show pictures taken during his European travels.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS A $71,000 JUDGMENT

Albion Bank Stockholders Held Liable on Agreement Guaranty.

The judgment obtained in Boone county for $70,985 by the state banking department against officers and stockholders of the failed Farmers State bank of Albion was affirmed Friday by the supreme court in an opinion by Judge Eberly. The judgment was based on an agreement signed in 1931 by defendants that if permitted to continue the bank in business for the purpose of liquidation, they would guarantee payment in full of all creditors and depositors. Times became more desperate and after three years' effort to perform the task undertaken, the bank was closed by the department. After the department had liquidated the bank there was due creditors and depositors the sum of $95,821, but the district court cut the amount for which the signers had obligated themselves to $70,985.

The court held that the instrument provided for an absolute, not a conditional, guaranty of the bank's creditors in definite amounts at a time certain. The defendants claimed it was not to become binding until signed by all stockholders, but the court says no such condition appears. In addition the unexplained delay for three years, during which the bank continued to function under the terms of this obligation without objection, protest or dissent on the part of any of the appellants, is held to have operated as a waiver of this defense if it ever existed. Existence of the guaranty was also widely advertised.

The department, relying on the contract, permitted defendants to continue to have the bank open, and the court says it has ample legal powers to enforce its provisions. It was never advised of the present claims of defendants, and not chargeable with notice thereof.

Judgment was against R. T. Flotree, Milton B. Krause, Robert D. Flory, E. M. Johnson, P. R. Smith, Henry Becker, T. B. Bowman, M. C. More, and the estates of A. W. Lamb, S. B. Morehead, William Fischer and Fred Wiegman. The trial court released John Bentzjen and James T. Clipston.

WALLACE SAYS G. O. P. PLAYS BOSSES' GAME

Declares Interest Shown by Party in Farm Problem "Hollow."

READING, Pa. (AP). The republican forces once in control in Pennsylvania were pictured by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as seeking to turn the state "back to the big money bosses x x x playing the game of powerful and entrenched interests."

Wallace, one of ten top flight new dealers firing political blasts in the closing days of the fall campaign, told a group of Berks county democrats, however, that "I don't think you are going to let them fool you."

"I think you are going to take your stand for the kind of sane program progress the democratic party, under the leadership of President Roosevelt, has given you," he declared Thursday night, "and vote for George H. Earle for senator and Alvin Jones for governor, and for the men who are associated with them on the democratic ticket."

Wallace will be followed into the state Saturday by Atty. Gen. Cummings and Senator Barkley (d., Ky.)

Wallace declared that the interest being shown by republicans in the farm problem was a "hollow one" that would be forgotten "as soon as the votes are counted."

The republicans' lack of "interest" in these problems was shown, he said, by action of senate republicans who he declared tried to "hamstring" the present legislation with "impossible" amendments when it was up for consideration.

The vandalism was discovered by members of the church choir Wednesday night. The church is never locked, they said, making it easy to gain entrance No explanation was offered as a reason for the incident.

SAYS DIXIE INCOMPATIBLE

Wife of Key Racket Witness Arrives in Reno.

RENO, Nev. (AP). Mrs. J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, whose husband was a key figure in the New York City policy rackets trial, arrived here Thursday to tell her domestic troubles to a Reno divorce lawyer.

The former New York model said she would seek a divorce "on grounds of incompatibility—simply because she couldn't get along." They were married Sept. 21, 1932.

Health Talks

BY DR. HERMAN BUNDESEN.
President, Chicago Board of Health.

Excessive noise day in and day out over many months may cause deafness. Excessive noise may also cause disturbances of the nervous system.

Several years ago an investigator placed mice on the floor of a factory where hot steel bars were hammered into scythes. After 20 days of this noise, the mice began to show a breakdown of their hearing apparatus. In eight months they were completely deaf.

Observations with humans have revealed that in certain factories where there is a great deal of noise, many workers are often found to have bad hearing. In fact, it has been said that as many as half of the workers under 30 years of age in these noisy places may have some hearing defects.

Noise not only affects the hearing but it may also have other injurious effects on health, since it may cause loss of sleep, overtiredness and emotional disturbances.

May Also be Felt.

A noise may be so loud that it is felt as well as heard. Sound is measured in what is known as decibels (des i-bels). A noise of 90 decibels, which is about the sound produced by a pneumatic drill, is definitely harmful to the human ear. However, continued exposure to noises which are even less loud than this may have a harmful effect.

A study made of 75 smiths and machinists showed that 40 precent were definitely hard of hearing. Boilermakers also have been studied and it has been found that the majority of them had hearing trouble, too.

Very sudden noises, such as explosions, are particularly dangerous to the ear drums and the bony structures of the middle part of the ear. Thickening of the ear drum may also interfere with the hearing. If noisy work is performed in closed space it is likely to be more harmful than if it is done in the open air.

Effect on Digestion.

Noise, according to some workers, may have a serious effect on the normal digestion. It has been shown that a noise of 60 decibels lessened the movement and secretions of the stomach. A noise of from 80 to 90 decibels caused a one-third decrease in the number of stomach contractions per minute. It has also been found that a noise as loud as 60 decibels or more cut down the amount of saliva formed in the mouth by about one-half, and also reduced the flow of juices in the stomach.

Much noise is unnecessarily produced by the needless blowing of horns on automobiles, the operation of loud radios and keeping noisy animals. The noise in factories may be the result of worn out equipment.

Many modern offices are made noisy by the use of typewriters and other machines which are not efficient, and which are old. The use of silent or noiseless office equipment would reduce much of this noise and thus aid in protecting the health of the workers. Soundproof material on walls and ceilings also is helpful. The use of wax, cotton, or soft rubber ear plugs by those working in noisy places may be helpful.

Persons should bear in mind the health hazards of noise and do their best to help eliminate it. Doing so will pay many times over in more efficient work, less sickness and fewer mistakes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

"I have a five month old baby whose head has become quite lopsided and he is losing his hair on the right side. Will his head always be lop-sided and how can I make him sleep on his left side?"—Mrs. H. F. B.

A. It is suggested that you place a pillow at the child's back when he lies on his left side to make him remain on his left side. However, when the child begins to sit up his head will resume the natural shape and the hair will grow uniformly thruout the head.

"For the past few days my feet have been terribly swollen; my fingers also swell and are very uncomfortable. Please advise me."—Mrs. E. C.

A. It is necessary to determine the exact cause of the swelling of the feet and hands before I can advise treatment. The swelling may be due to heart trouble, kidney disease, or other causes. It is suggested that you consult a physician for an examination to determine the reason for your condition.

HOME ENTERED.

Prowlers ransacked the home of Robert Van Arsdall, 2242 T st., between 2 and 4 p. m. Thursday but took only a small gold baby ring. Police said entrance was made by tearing off a screen and crawling thru a window.

Join the "REGULARS"

The Spirit of 1938

Enlist in the Army of "Regulars." Intestinal sluggishness due to insufficient bulk is one of America's every-day ailments. If this is your trouble, don't let that bogged-down feeling hold you back. March ahead with the "regulars"!

IT'S FUN TO KEEP "REGULAR"
Millions are learning how!

Would you like to keep "regular" as reveille—without those discouraging trips to the medicine chest? Then here's some good advice.

Common constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. If this is your trouble, get at its cause! Instead of emergency medicines, eat a natural laxative food—Kellogg's All-Bran. All-Bran contains just the "bulk" you may need. In addition, it's one of the richest of all common foods in nature's own great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

You'll like this toasted, nut-sweet food just as a cereal. And you'll love the bran muffins it makes—crunchier than any you've ever tasted! That's why we say, "It's Fun to Keep Regular" the All-Bran way.

One thing is important—eat All-Bran regularly. Eat it every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Add it to your grocery order—today!

TEACHERS HEAR TALKS IN SECTIONAL MEETS

Rural Educators Told They Are the Hub of the Community.

Divisional and sectional meetings and luncheons occupied the attention of teachers attending the District 1 N. S. T. A. convention in Lincoln Friday afternoon. Added to reports of elections was that of the art section, which named Prof. Dwight Kirsch, University of Nebraska, chairman; Miss Mabel Souther of Lincoln vice chairman, and Miss Lida Dell Burry of Lincoln secretary.

At the normal training luncheon in the Cornhusker, Dr. Harry C. McKown of Gilson, Ill., recommended that training courses for prospective teachers should be planned to develop in the students the following characteristics:

A conception of the bigness of teaching.
A justifiable conception of the purpose of education
An open minded attitude toward education
An attitude of continuous self-evaluation.

The rural division meeting attendants at Everett junior high school heard Dr. McKown tell them they were unusually fortunate to be rural teachers. He described the rural school as the true center of the community, with the teacher at the center of the school.

Vocational Education.

In answering the question, "Why Vocational Education in a Time of Depression" before vocational education teachers at the Temple, Dean M. Schweickhard, assistant superintendent of schools at Minneapolis, declared that there is always work to be done, "and plenty of it, if all the material needs of humankind, even in our own nation, were to be supplied."

"A homely figure," Schweickhard said, "brings forth the observation that a depression is to a nation what a mud hole or a stretch of bad road is to the automobile driver. We would most certainly look upon the driver as foolish and shortsighted who would shut off the gas or the current under undesirable road conditions. Rather, under difficult conditions, the wise and judicious driver concentrates his attention more carefully upon the machine within his control, and applies more gas at the propitious moment."

Most of the sectional meetings were to elect officers at their Friday afternoon sessions. A wide variety of talks were heard in the various meetings, ranging from Dr. Kefauver's discussion of "Adapting Administration to Modern Education" to a speech on "Suggestive Readings in the Field of Constructive Direction and Control of Personality," by Miss Clara M. Slade, Lincoln school psychologist.

Friday evening at the coliseum, Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., famed journalist and world traveler, will be the featured speaker, discussing "Some of the Most Interesting People I have Interviewed." His talk will be followed by informal dancing sponsored by the Lincoln chamber of commerce.

HALLOWE'EN IS ON MONDAY

Warning Issued Pranksters by Chief Anderson.

"Harmless Hallowe'en jokes are to be tolerated... but only on Hallowe'en." That, in substance, was the sentiment Friday morning of Chief of Police Anderson as he went over the calls made by cruiser officers Thursday evening. The police radio log shows that between 8:45 p. m. and 10 p. m. Thursday night the police responded more than a dozen "kid" calls.

Many of the pranks were of a character that the police would not tolerate even on Hallowe'en night, which is Monday and not a "day sooner or a day later," Chief Anderson said. For an example, some boys scattered tacks and nails in the street in the vicinity of 23rd and Van Dorn and on Woodsdale between 20th and 24th. It was necessary to get out a street department crew to clean up the street.

Another prank of Thursday night was that of using a school stop sign to stop traffic at 11th and B. It was not just one group of children responsible for Thursday night's difficulty, because the complaints were turned in from all parts of town.

Chief Anderson is urging parents to co-operate with the police department in an effort to keep Hallowe'en property damage to a minimum. "The observance of Hallowe'en must be kept to one night, and that night is Monday," the chief said. "As far as the police department is concerned, malicious damaging and destroying of property is just as serious on Hallowe'en night as any other night in the year, and the culprits will be prosecuted just as vigorously."

MIDLAND GRIDIRON QUEEN

FREMONT, Neb.—Ilene Bishop, Leahara, senior, was crowned Midland college's ninth Queen of the Gridiron as the 19th annual homecoming program opened Friday.

The program will continue thru Sunday with 18 events scheduled. Highlights Saturday will be an alumni meeting in the afternoon and an alumni-faculty-student banquet and a minstrel show, directed by Samuel I. Berek of Fremont, in the evening. An oratorio chorus concert Sunday afternoon will close the program.

Attendants for the queen at the coronation were Mary Walling and Elaine Elmore, Fremont, and Mina Holbrook, Orchard, who had also been nominated for the grid queen honor; Vernon Waterman, Fremont; Sidney Simonson, Salem, Ore., and Henry Nolte, Broadwater, presidents of the senior, junior and sophomore classes; Donald Benson, Wausa, freshman representative; Myron Brock, Columbus, president of the "M" club; Martin Schroeder, Lincoln, president of the student council, and members of the Warriorette and Tomahawk pep societies. Two small Fremont girls, Betty Reck and Rosemary Motter, carried the crown and scepter.

TOO MUCH HIGH PRESSURE

According to complaints sifting thru to the city hall, high pressure methods concerning registration, are being practiced. Misinformation allegedly is being spread.

A woman, while paying her taxes at the city treasury Friday, told the clerk that she received a phone call, purporting to come from the office of the city clerk, at her home, stating that a city car would be sent to bring her in if she would register.

Two young men operating in northeast Lincoln asked householders whether or not they were registered and requested information as to political affiliation. They allegedly represented themselves as attaches of the clerk's office.

A woman in South Lincoln, called on the phone, was asked as to her registration and affiliation and was told that the call came from the junior chamber. The latter is interested alone in registration, not in party affiliation and states that no such question is being asked by their representatives.

Deputy Clerk Boeke, in charge of registration, drove out to make personal investigation of several complaints. His office had received calls from people who were indignant because of queries as to affiliation. The office of the clerk is not interested in affiliation nor in drumming up registration.

"It is not our business to call people to ask if they are registered, let alone ask as to party affiliation," said Director Berg. "We register only those who come in."

Thursday's registration reached the peak for the week to date with 677 customers handled, 226 at night. Of the total, 350 were new and 327 changes. Total for the week, not including Friday, 1,707. The office will be open Friday and Saturday nights, 7 to 9, for registration. No further opportunity will be given until after the general election.

Supreme Court Syllabi

The following opinions were filed by the court Oct. 28:

State vs. Smith. Appeal, Holt. Affirmed. Messmore, Judge.

1. Section 27-325, Comp. St. 1929, provides, in substance, that in any civil action instituted by the state, except in actions for the collection of revenue, defendant may, as a matter of defense, plead any set-off, counterclaim or cross-demand that he may have arising to him in his own right, and upon which an action could be maintained by him against the state. The case at bar is one for revenue and subject to the foregoing provision of the statute.

2. Section 66-407, Comp. St. 1929, provides the manner of bringing an action for failure to pay taxes, as provided in the motor vehicle fuels act, and contemplates an ordinary civil action in any county in which service of process can be had upon the defendant, in the instant case, the district court for Holt county is a court of competent jurisdiction for such purpose.

3. "In the absence of statute, taxes voluntarily paid cannot be recovered back. When a tax imposed is illegal and unauthorized for any purpose, an original action may be brought to recover the tax only by virtue of statutory or constitutional authority." Monteith vs. Alpha High School District, 125 Neb. 665, 251 N. W. 661.

4. The bond in suit required prompt payment to the state of Nebraska of the tax on motor vehicle fuels, imposed by law, with all penalties and interest, in the way and manner at the time provided by law, and an increase in the obligation of the bond by subsequent legislative enactment, by raising the tax on gasoline one cent a gallon, is not a sufficient or material alteration such as to release the sureties from their obligation. The obligation must be clearly and substantially changed in character and nature.

5. The law is well-settled that a state cannot lay a tax on interstate commerce in any form, whether on the transportation of subjects of commerce, receipts therefrom, or the occupation or business of carrying it on.

6. The tax imposed by House Roll No. 6 (Laws 1935, Special Session, ch. 16) is an excise tax upon the use and distribution of gasoline within the state.

7. An excise tax may be imposed upon the use and distribution of motor vehicle fuels without violation of the commerce clause of the federal Constitution and is consistent with the due process and equal protection clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Burke vs. Bass, 123 Neb. 297, 242 N. W. 606.

8. Where the evidence discloses that defendants have affirmatively brought themselves within the provisions of a statutory enactment, have become licensed as dealers in the state in the sale, distribution and use of motor vehicle fuels in the state, and have given bond for such purpose which has been duly approved, and have made reports to the proper officers of the state as to the amount of taxes owing by them, and have paid taxes as provided for by the act, and in all things have represented themselves as dealers in the sale, distribution and use of motor vehicle fuels in the state, they are estopped from denying that they are dealers in the distribution, sale and use of motor vehicle fuels in the state, within the contemplation of the act.

9. "Estoppel means 'the preclusion of a person from asserting a fact, by previous conduct inconsistent therewith, on his own part or the part of those under whom he claims, or by an adjudication upon his rights which he cannot be allowed to call in question.' Bouvier's Law Dictionary." Graham Ice Cream Co. vs. Petros, 127 Neb. 172, 254 N. W. 869.

10. "Whether or not the doctrine (of estoppel) applies depends upon the particular facts of each case." Rodgers vs. John, 131 Md. 455, 102 Atl. 549.

11. "A statute will not be declared unconstitutional unless necessary to proper disposition of pending case." First Trust company vs. Stenger, 130 Neb. 750, 266 N. W. 642.

Finds Tie Exists.

Swan vs. Bowker. Appeal, Buffalo. Reversed and remanded. Eberly, judge.

1. The proceedings for contesting an election provided for by the Nebraska statutes is, strictly speaking, neither an action at law nor a suit in equity. It is a summary proceeding of a political nature, and the terms of the statute are controlling as to all rights claimed thereunder.

2. The proceedings therein shall be assimilated to those in an action, so far as practicable, but shall be under the control and direction of the court, which shall have all the powers necessary to a right hearing and determination of the matter.

3. Assimilating the procedure in this class of cases, the principles of procedure must be in harmony with the provisions of our civil code relating to proceedings under special statutes (Comp. St. 1929, sec. 20-2228), provided, however, the practice adopted must be consistent with the specific provisions of the special act under consideration.

4. Statutes construed, and held that without reference to the state of the pleadings, in view of the facts of this record, the instant case did not stand for trial until May 21, or four days after the May term of the county court had closed. Further, there is no legal requirement that the contestee should file his answer during the May term of that court, and therefore no basis for the contention that he was in default in failing so to do.

5. The provisions of this special enactment, in the light of the code provisions applicable thereto, vests the trial tribunals proceeding thereunder with ample and complete powers of amendments of pleadings, to the same extent as those vested in courts of record.

6. The allowance of an amendment in an appropriate case is not to be denied solely because the trial has progressed to a particular stage, and amendments may be allowed, in the exercise of proper discretion by the court, even after the evidence is closed.

7. On appeal, actions under this special statute are heard de novo by the appellate court.

8. The record in this record, pertaining to amendments allowed in the district court, examined and held that, in substance and effect, the same did not exceed in actual scope the amendment sought by the defendant in the county court and the action of the district court in the allowance thereof is approved.

9. Record examined, and five voters named therein are found to be illegal voters, and two other voters, also challenged, are adjudged legal voters.

10. "Persons otherwise qualified as voters who come to the seat of a university mainly for the purpose of obtaining an education, who are not dependent upon their parents for support, who have not the intention of returning to their parental home upon the completion of their studies, who are accustomed to leave the seat of the university during vacation, going wherever they might find employment, and returning to the university when the terms opens, regarding the seat of the university as their home and having no purpose formed as to their movements after completing their studies, are entitled to vote at the seat of the university." Berry vs. Wilcox, 44 Neb. 82, 62 N. W. 249.

11. "The requirements of the Australian ballot law, that the names or signatures of the two judges of an election shall be written on the back of each ballot to be used, and that a ballot not so endorsed shall be void, and not counted, are mandatory, and are not inimical to constitutional provisions." Orr vs. Bailey, 59 Neb. 128, 80 N. W. 485.

12. The 19 ballots challenged as void by the respective parties examined, 7 thereof rejected, 8 thereof adjudged legal ballots and counted for contestant, and 3 thereof determined legal ballots and counted for contestee.

Wife Released.

Filley vs. Mancuso. Appeal, Douglas. Affirmed in part and in part reversed. Rose, chief justice.

1. "The general saving statute preserves a right of action on a claim for deficiency judgment in a suit to foreclose a mortgage not due nor in litigation at the time the legislature, without a special saving clause, passed the act of 1933 repealing the statutory provision which permitted such a judgment." Stowers vs. Stuck, 131 Neb. 409, 268 N. W. 310. See Comp. St. 1929, secs. 49-301, 20-2141.

2. Where husband and wife execute a note and also a mortgage on real estate to secure his debt without inserting in those instruments any provision binding the wife's separate estate, a deficiency judgment against her in a suit to foreclose the mortgage is unauthorized, if the undisputed evidence proves that she did not bind or intend to bind, her separate estate or engage in any trade or business or perform services for hire.

Reduces Sentence.

Haines vs. State. Error, Hall. Affirmed as modified. Messmore, judge.

1. "This court, in a criminal action, will not interfere with a verdict of guilty, based upon conflicting evidence, unless it is so lacking in probative force that we can say, as a matter of law, that it is insufficient to support a finding of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt." Williams vs. State, 115 Neb. 277, 212 N. W. 606.

2. Where there is competent evidence to support a finding of intent to defraud, the verdict of the jury will not be disturbed because there is testimony tending to indicate that there was no such fraudulent intent.

3. Intent to defraud may be proved by the circumstances surrounding the transaction.

4. The offense of obtaining money by means of an insufficient-funds check was completed at the time the check was uttered and passed, and the fact that defendant subsequently made some degree of restitution to the payee named in the check does not affect the question of his guilt.

5. Section 28-1212, Comp. St. 1929, does not contemplate restitution on the part of a defendant charged thereunder, and where the evidence discloses an arrangement made by defendant with certain partners, and such arrangement is not known to the payee of the check until after it had been returned for insufficient funds, such disclosure to the payee as to defendant's credit, is not to be considered in determining the guilt or innocence of defendant under said section.

6. Under the circumstances and the evidence, the sentence, as fixed by the trial court, is excessive and warrants modification as provided in section 29-2308, Comp. St. 1929.

Guarantors Liable.

Department of Banking vs. Flotree. Appeal, Boone. Affirmed. Eberly, judge.

1. Plaintiff possessed ample powers to bring and maintain this action. Department of Banking vs. Walker, 131 Neb. 732, 269 N. W. 907.

2. The instrument in suit provided for an absolute, not a conditional, guaranty of the payment of the bank's creditors in definite amounts at a time certain. The words of guarantee contain and involve no such express condition as that upon which the defense in this action purports to be based.

3. The contention, under the facts in this record, that the contract in suit was not effective, unless and until all creditors of this bank should sign it cannot be accepted. The evidence, direct and circumstantial, especially in view of the findings of the trial court, establishes a contrary conclusion. In addition, the unexplained delay for three years, during which the bank continued to function under the terms of this obligation without objection, protest or dissent on part of any of appellants, operated as a waiver of this defense, if such defense ever existed.

4. Evidence in the record examined, and held to sustain the findings and judgment of the district court.

STRIKE FOR $640,000.

SHANGHAI, (AP). Seventeen year old Pan Pihcheng and his bride of four months began the fifth day of a hunger strike. They hoped to force his wealthy parents to contribute 4,000,000 Chinese dollars (nominally $640,000) to help the Chinese cause against Japan. The father, a Canton merchant, Chinese newspapers said, agreed to contribute a million but the offer was rejected. The couple declared unless he gave 4,000,000 Chinese dollars they would starve to death, leaving the father without a son to carry on the family line.

Merry Strikes Marital Snag

Merry Fahrney, patent medicine heiress married recently to Count Oleg Cassini, faced a court fight for preservation of the marriage—her fourth—when an Illinois appellate court held void the divorce she obtained last February from her third husband, Baron Arturo Berlingieri. Merry is shown in her New York apartment after talking by phone with her Chicago attorneys.

GRAND CHAMPION CALF IS SOLD FOR $1,188

Mickey Also Won $37 in Prizes at Ak-Sar-Ben Stock Show.

OMAHA. (UP). Mickey, the Hereford calf exhibited by 18 year old John Gosch of Ida Grove, Ia., which won the grand championship in the Ak-Sar-Ben livestock exposition' 4-H club baby beef show, earned his young owner $1,188.75 at auction Friday morning.

The animal was sold to the Hosman restaurant at $1.25 per pound. Gross weight was 980 pounds, but deduction of 3 percent for shrinkage left a net of 951 pounds. The champion at last year's show brought $1.60 per pound.

Young Gosch said the calf cost him $65 and he has spent $58.31 for feed. The animal won $37 in prize money. Gosch intends to use the money to start a pure bred herd of his own, in partnership with his brother, Eugene. He will enter a calf in next year's show.

The reserve grand champion, an Angus owned by Mary Helen Boothe of Knoxville, Ia., sold to the Storz Brewing company at 40 cents per pound.

The champion Shorthorn, shown by Glenn Struve, Carroll county, Iowa, sold at 19 cents per pound to the Fontenelle hotel.

The reserve champion Hereford, owned by Gilbert Bolz of Stanton county, Nebraska, was bought by John Deere Plow company at 18 cents per pound.

The reserve champion Angus, owned by Rex Williams of Sac county, Iowa, brought 15 1-2 cents per pound. It was bought by the Guarantee Mutual Life Insurance company.

The reserve champion Shorthorn, shown by Beulah Larson of Shelby county, Iowa, sold to the Fontenelle Brewing company at 14 1-2 cents per pound.

BEAVER CITY.—Thirty-five persons have been taken from Furnas county to penal institutions in the past eight years, it is shown by records of the sheriff. Only 34 persons were committed in the period of 1896 to 1930, and 16 of those were committed between 1922 and 1930.

Poles Catch Fire.

BEAVER CITY.—Billowing clouds of smoke near the Burlington tracks gave the appearance of a larger fire than was found by the fire department upon investigation. Creosoted electric light poles belonging to the city caught fire from sparking from burning trash, which a city employe had started. The blaze was extinguished before great damage was done.

Quicksand Halts Digging.

OTOE.—An eight foot layer of quicksand for the second time halted a WPA project to provide a new municipal water supply to replace a well which last summer became dry and caused a water shortage. As the well is being dug by hand, workmen found it impossible to make progress in the quicksand. Previously, work was halted when sides of the well caved in.

For Teacher Retirement.

NEBRASKA CITY.—In a special night session, Nebraska City Parent-Teacher council adopted a resolution favoring a teachers' retirement plan and instructed its president to poll candidates on the proposal. Results of the poll will be disclosed at council meeting Nov. 1.

Hurt Chopping Wood.

NORFOLK.—Struck over the left eye by a piece of wood she was chopping, Mrs. Blossom Braden of Battle Creek suffered a slight fracture of the skull. She was brought to a Norfolk hospital.

BACK TO SCHOOL AGAIN FOR NEBRASKA TEACHERS

It was back to school again for another day, as thousands of school teachers, old and young, men and women, gathered for the Friday sessions of the district meeting. The illustrations:

RAILROAD MAN IS KILLED

George Bennett, Hastings, Between Steel Bars.

HASTINGS, Neb. (AP). George Bennett, 53, machinist for the Union Pacific here, was killed instantly when his head was crushed between two steel bars on a locomotive he was helping to "spot" at the roundhouse. Bennett and other workmen were preparing to drain the locomotive's boiler.

HOMECOMING AT YORK.

YORK, Neb. (UP). Homecoming and parents' day at York college will be climaxed Friday evening by the York-Dana football game. The college Panther club, headed by Billy Dean, is in charge of arrangements.

Chatter Valves Open Wide All Over Country As Star Orators of Both Parties Begin Spiels

WASHINGTON, (AP). Democratic and republican headquarters are rushing their star orators north, east and west for a rousing finish to the congressional election campaign. Little more than a week remains before millions of voters will choose 35 senators and 432 house members Nov. 8, but the closing rallies will have as much red fire and pointing-with-pride as all the political gatherings of the previous month. Only in the south, where few democrats have opposition, are the public platforms fairly free of candidates.

The climax of the democratic campaign will take place next Friday night, when President Roosevelt will deliver a radio speech from Hyde Park, N. Y. His address is expected to be primarily in behalf of the New York democratic ticket, altho many politicians believe he will make his theme sufficiently general to interest voters in all states.

Republicans have marshalled a corps of speakers that includes both former President Hoover and Alfred M. Landon, presidential candidate in 1936. Hoover will make the last of a series of three political addresses in Spokane, Wash., Nov. 5. Republican Chairman John Hamilton has finished a swing thru Ohio, scene of heated senatorial and gubernatorial contests. He has scheduled several addresses in other states.

Most active among the democratic cabinet speakers has been Secretary Wallace, whose program for bolstering farm prices has been the subject of republican criticism in the farm states.

Republican spokesmen reviewing the general situation contended they had better than an even chance to win governorships in Iowa, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Colorado and Oregon. They claimed at least even chances of victory in New York, Conecticut, Kansas and Rhode Island. All 12 states now have democratic governors.

Democratic leaders not only disputed these predictions but expressed hope of defeating republican governors in Maryland and California. They privately conceded the loss of perhaps 25 house seats, against republican claims of 75 to 80 additional seats.

SETTLE DAMAGE SUIT.

YORK (UP). The $20,000 damage suit of the estate of Louis Fiedler against the Gillan Baking company of York was settled for $3,500. The settlement was effected after a jury had listened to one day's testimony. Fiedler was killed in a traffic accident involving a baking company truck in Fillmore county a year ago.

HANES SUCCEEDS MAGILL

North Carolinan Undersecretary of Treasury.

WASHINGTON, (AP). President Roosevelt announced that John W. Hanes, now assistant secretary, had been made undersecretary of the treasury. Hanes came to the treasury from the securities commission on which he served as a commissioner. He succeeds Roswell Magill as undersecretary. Magill resigned recently.

Hanes' family home is at Winston-Salem, N. C. The promotion will raise his salary from $9,000 to $10,000 a year.

The new undersecretary has been in government service less than a year. He became a securities commissioner last December when President Roosevelt drafted him from a New York stock exchange firm to help conciliate differences between the exchange and the commission. He became assistant secretary of the treasury on July 1, after the commission and the exchange completed a program for reorganization of the exchange.

Hanes will continue to direct the tax research and administration of the treasury, and will participate with Secy. Morgenthau and Budget Director Bell in conferences with the president from now until the end of the year on preparation of the president's annual budget message to congress.

MRS. ROHDE TELLS OF DANISH PLAN SUCCESS

Says Co-operatives There Working on Fundamental Economic Law.

A people with their feet on the soil, their eyes on the stars, who have learned that liberty is not standing alone. This was Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde's description of Denmark for more than 5,000 people in the university coliseum Thursday night.

Her speech, "Democracy at Work in Denmark," climaxed the second day of the N. S. T. A. convention here. Registration of the First district teachers was 4,075 at 6 p. m., an all time record.

Terming her speech a "traveler's view" of Denmark, Mrs. Rohde declared her glimpse of the country as U. S. foreign minister had brought her to the cross roads of civilization.

"Fascism offers one thing, communism another, but these people by their co-operative effort are putting into practice what our forefathers taught us, that government should be for, by and of the people."

Mrs. Rohde was introduced by Dean F. E. Henzlik of the university teachers college faculty, who said, "We are deeply indebted to her both for properly interpreting us to Denmark and Denmark to us. Nebraska has had many eminent women who have won international prominence for their contributions to art, science, literature and government. Now we have these talents combined in a single personality. She is a speaker second only to her illustrious father, William Jennings Bryan."

Speaking without notes, and making frequent use of a dry, subtle humor which captivated the audience, Mrs. Rohde traced the history of the co-operative movement in Denmark and its effect on the national life. She illustrated the talk with insertions of personal experiences both there and in the United States.

"The co-operatives originated soon after Denmark lost her war with Germany. She found she must reorganize her farm production for domestic and British consumption, since she had lost her biggest market. The Danes have a saying, 'What you lose on the outside you must make up on the inside,' and they have worked the procedure over and over again," she said.

Mrs. Rohde said she had appreciated her stay in Denmark because it had allowed her to see the working of an apparently fundamental economic law on a "small and understandable scale."

"If we could get all our problems—those of international finance or packing the supreme court down to laboratory dimensions, or on a slide under a microscope, we might know what we are doing."

"I tried to find the 'catch' in the system," said Mrs. Rohde, "but I found none. I was worried about the middleman, who I thought must be displaced. But I found that most of them found positions as managers of retail and wholesale co-operatives.

"I found there a system of public health with better medical care provided to more people at a lower cost than is possible in this country, and I did not detect anywhere any injustice to the medical profession.

"To be sure, in order to finance these programs of better health, better education and the eradication of unemployment, Denmark has been forced to cut corners. Two years ago she gave up her steamship lines, and she has reduced armaments steadily.

"Today she is a country without adequate defense in Europe's armed camp. Now, however, the Danes are applying the co-operative principle even to international affairs in the hope of keeping peace. They believe that no one nation alone can deal with war effectively.

"Democracy in Denmark is a wholesale hearing of prayer by a government which is not purely mechanical."

A dramatic moment, witnessed by but a few people, came immediately after Mrs. Rohde's speech when she was introduced to Countess Alexandra Tolstoy who addressed a university convocation Thursday morning.

The two daughters recalled that their famous fathers had met in Leo Tolstoy's home in Russia in 1904. W. J. Bryan was on his way to visit Csar Nicholas II with whom he had arranged a special audience. After talking with Tolstoy for a few hours, Mr. Bryan was so impressed by his philosophy that he telegraphed to Nicholas and broke the appointment.

"I have a picture of your father and my father standing in the snow together," said Mrs. Rohde. Replied Countess Tolstoy: "I have one of your father riding my favorite white horse. He was so large and my pony so small that I thought surely the little animal would break under the load."

Main convention activities for the afternoon were sectional and divisional meetings in which speakers discussed various problems relating to their specific fields. A few elected officers, others will elect Friday.

Rolland Edle of Hebron was elected president of the social science section; Ralph Hanson Lincoln, secretary. New officers selected in the modern languages section were Miss Annette Sprung, president; Dr. W. H. Bowen, Lincoln, secretary. Students of Lincoln and nearby public schools provided music and entertainment for the afternoon meetings.

Josephine E. Wible, Lincoln, was elected president of the mathematics section. H. B. Kliewer, Henderson, was named vice president and Jessamine Fugate, Beatrice, secretary-treasurer.

HEINKE OFFERS PROGRAM

Suggests Aids to Farm, Industry and Labor.

SEWARD, Neb. (UP).—George H. Heinke of Nebraska City, republican candidate for congress in the First district, proposed a five point program which he said would aid "not only agriculture, but industry and labor as well."

"Today, after five years of experimenting, corn sells locally at 30 cents per bushel and wheat at 50 cents, about half the 1938 price," he said.

"After five dismal failures upon their part the new deal says to its critics, 'what have you to offer?' in answer, let me suggest the following:

Give to the American farmer the American market. This will put into his pocket about $00 million dollars that we paid to farmers of other lands last year.

Economize in government.

Lower taxes and leave the savings thus affected in the normal channels of business in the form of revolving payrolls.

Eliminate the useless boards and bureaus that are regimenting and destroying American.

Restore confidence in government by less taxes, less interference and by less appeal to group strife.

POST HIGHWAY BIDS.

The following low bids were tabulated by the state highway department late Thursday on four of the 23 projects on which they had asked bids:

LYLE JACKSON ASKS A PROBE OF SHAKEDOWN

Urges Senatorial Committee to Investigate "Brazen" Democratic Tactics.

A plea for an investigation of political activity and "brazen" extraction of campaign funds from federal employes to finance the democratic campaign was made Thursday by Lyle Jackson, Nelign state republican chairman, in a letter to Sheppard, chairman of the senatorial campaign investigating committee.

"This situation has become notorious," declared the republican chairman in his letter which referred to the business like methods used by the democrats in exacting "contributions" from employes.

The letter says that altho Nebraska does not have a senatorial election this year the purpose of the "slush fund" is to keep Governor Cochran in the political limelight for another two years so that he may be used as a candidate for 1940 against Senator Burke who is slated to be "purged" by the national administration.

No Denial by Governor.

The letter further points out that the governor has kept silent regarding the "contributions" and has not disavowed methods used, which were publicly approved by State Democratic Chairman Quigley.

R. M. Anderson, who has directed the campaign of Charles Warner, republican candidate for governor, said that he knew of the letter and that he thought it a proper matter for the senatorial committee to investigate.

"It seems to me," he said, "a bit pathetic to watch a candidate whose campaign fund is empty, and always has been, trying to buck not only a horde of political workers from the state house but apparently confronted with the resources available from federal employes, who have been forced to contribute in this manner.

"It is no secret that Nebraska now has a statewide machine, using Tammany tactics, that could give "Boss" Pendergast a few lessons."

Text of Letter.

The following is the letter sent to Senator Sheppard by Jackson.

Hon. Morris Sheppard:
Senatorial Campaign Investigating Committee,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Senator heppard:

Your committee having been named to investigate the exaction of campaign contributions from federal employes and office holders, we feel that your attention should be called to the situation in this state.

Campaign contributions for the democratic campaign fund are being brazenly exacted from federal employes here. This situation has become notorious. The Nebraska State Journal on the morning of the 18th carried a photograph on the front page of a room in the Cornhusker hotel where federal employes had been ordered to report and pay a substantial portion of their salaries into the democratic political campaign fund.

An "Open" Secret.

It is no secret that the exaction of funds was for the purpose of financing the campaign of the democratic candidate for governor as an adjunct of the new deal and to pay for campaign cards showing the picture of the president of the United States with a picture of the democratic candidate for governor, and with a list of the democratic state ticket on the reverse side of the card, a copy of which we are enclosing.

While a senator is not being elected in the state this year, Nebraska is electing five congressmen and a governor and the avowed purpose of this is to elect the present governor for a third term in order that he may be kept in the political limelight so the new deal democrats can have a candidate in the 1940 democratic primaries against Senator Burke, who is due to be purged at that time.

Show "Shakedown" Line.

We are sending you a copy of The State Journal containing the photograph showing federal employes standing in line to be shaken down after they have been ordered to contribute to the fund.

In Nebraska we have been waiting for Governor Cochran to disavow this act. Since its exposure, the democratic state chairman and national committeemen in a public statement said they had a perfect right to shake down federal employes in this manner, and the democratic candidate for governor has acquiesced by his silence.

We respectfully request your committee to investigate this political activity in this campaign in this state.

Respectively yours,
Republican State Committee,
Lyle Jackson
Chairman.

UNION OFFICERS DENY CHARGES OF NEW LOCAL

Claim Organization Is Initiated by Reactionary Employers.

Officials of Lincoln local No. 608 of the General Drivers union (A. F. of L.), engaged in a seven week old truck strike here, Thursday night assailed formation of the Independent Truck Drivers union here as "a move initiated by reactionary employers to defeat collective bargaining.

The A. F. of L. union officials further charged that the independent group, organized by W. W. Morphew seeks "to build a wall around the city of Lincoln to avoid paying a living wage scale to Lincoln truck drivers and helpers."

Morphew's charges that local union officers were unable to bargain for their membership were branded by the 608 officials as "falsehoods." Local officers have full power to negotiate contracts for city drivers, but authority to negotiate over the road contracts was delegated to a committee made up of 284 local unions covering a trade area of 11 midwest states including Nebraska, they declared.

This committee, known as the North Central District Drivers council, met at Chicago with a committee representing truck owners thruout the trade area and negotiated a contract for the area, they said.

This contract, the statement issued by the local executive board continued, "took some 400 hours to complete and was accepted by the local unions involved and by the committee of employers. Therefore, the local union cannot change the contract for a small group of operators within the area who want to chisel their employes. Such a statement made by a deserting union man is only a pretext to cover his unfaithfulness."

Officials of local No. 608 also denied Morphew's charge that Lincoln members had not received strike benefits due from the international union. The international, they declared, "has paid the local union various amounts of money which were distributed to union members in good standing with the local. Groceries, coal, gas and lights, rent and other benefits also have been given local members on strike."

Walter K. Stultz, president of local No. 554 at Omaha, who is now in charge of the Lincoln strike situation, assailed the independent organization set up by Morphew and Alfrey as "an old employer stratagem to smash labor unions."

Any attempt to injure the trucking industry in Nebraska was also denied by the officials of the A. F. of L. union. The only harm done the trucking industry," they said, "was done by interference of a labor hating organization not directly connected or concerned with the industry. It was done in an effort to stamp out the truckers union in Nebraska."

The union statement, issued by executive board of local No. 608, said in part:

"We take issue with the statement of Morphew that the drivers have been 'cruelly betrayed.' Certainly, the union has not, nor will it, betray a union man. The records of the North Central District Drivers council and of our international union, since its formation in 1903, is unblemished by any betrayal of its members. Betrayal of the working man rises from the formations of just such organizations as Morphew and Alfrey are trying to form."

C. W. Stein Addresses First Annual Youth Congress.

"There is no romance in crime," C. W. Stein, of Omaha, special agent for the F. B. I., told the first annual youth congress sponsored by the C. Y. O. at the Lincoln Thursday night. "Too many have found as Al Capone did that altho they have private homes on the east coast the government often provides another on the west coast, Alcatraz."

Continuing, he observed, "an organization of this type, which stands for the instilling of the spirit of Christ in our young people, is contrary to the principles of youth groups in other countries."

Father L. F. Obrist introduced Stein who gave the principle address of the evening. Others on the program were Charles Nowacek, the Cathedral choral group and the Most Rev. L. B. Kucera. Two hundred and fifty attended.

BUTLER SCORES BINDERUP

Charges Him With Failure of River Project.

CLAY CENTER, Neb. (UP) Hugh A. Butler, Omaha, republican national committeeman for Nebraska, in a speech here charged that Congressman Binderup was largely responsible for failure of approval of the Republican river flood control and irrigation program.

He said Binderup was the only one of Nebraska's five congressmen who had voted for the farm bill, and compared the present Fifth district representative unfavorably to the late former Governor Shallenberger, who for many years represented this district in the lower house.

"If a man of the Shallenberger type was our congressman today," Butler said, "it would not be so essential that we urge your support of the republican candidate, Carl Curtis."

The Republican river, Tri-County and other similar projects are non-political, Butler said.

"Send Carl Curtis down to Washington and he will get the Republican river job done," he said. "He has the intelligence and ability to gain the confidence of his associates. He will not be carried away with some 'phoney' crack pot currency scheme. And he will not have to put on a big circus to create a smoke screen to cover his record as Binderup is doing."

POSTAL ANNIVERSARY.

During the month of November the postoffice department will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the establishment, in 1913, of parcel post service. Lincoln postal officials are preparing to bring the parcel post feature to the public's attention. Every Lincoln postal employe will wear a parcel post silver jubilee button during the month. Cards also will call it to the attention of patrons.

URGES ELIMINATION OF MORTGAGE MORATORIA

Twentieth Century Fund Recommends a Gradual Tapering Off Process

NEW YORK (AP) The Twentieth Century fund an independent research organization founded by the late Edward A Filene recommended Thursday in a debt study the gradual abolition of mortgage moratorium laws passed during the years of economic crisis and still in force in many states

The present situation does not warrant immediate removal of existing mortgage moratoria the fund s committee on debt adjustment reported 'but plans should be laid for their gradual elimination by a tapering off process to begin as soon as business conditions improve enough to justify it

Based on the findings of its research specialists in a three year study of the nation s debt structure the committee suggested termination of debt holidays should be linked with scientific amortization

The amount of principal which creditors should be allowed to claim its statement said ought to be at least enough to reduce the debt to the bare value of the site within the economic lifetime of the buildings

Twenty-two states particularly in the middle west passed laws delaying foreclosure sales and otherwise protecting debt burdened farm and home owners it was noted

About $5 000 000 000 of the mortgage debt the committee found was refinanced thru federal credit agencies but a substantial proportion of the remaining $25 000 000 000 in farm and home mortgages remained under state moratorium laws

According to information received from the attorney generals of 16 of the 22 states with moratorium laws the statement added 13 were still in force at the end of 1937 and 3 (in Idaho New Hampshire and Oklahoma) had been allowed to expire

NATION'S SUPPLY OF READY CASH IS HIGH

National Income Also Moved Upward for Fourth Consecutive Month

WASHINGTON (AP) The nation s supply of ready cash stood at a new high figure while national income had climbed for the fourth consecutive month The commerce department s index of income payments to individuals rose from 82 5 percent of the 1923 level in August to 83 3 percent in September The September index was 2 9 points above the low point for the year but was 8 percent below the 1937 peak

Federal reserve experts estimated that bank deposits and currency in circulation had reached the unprecedented total of $57 700 000 000 including a great record supply of idle funds that might be loaned to stimulate business About $6 700 000 000 of the total was in currency and the rest in deposits The lendable portion of deposits was estimated at $3 280 000 000 compared with normal needs of $500 000 000

Deposits and currency have panded by $1 000 000 000 since June 30 largely due to the influx of foreign money seeking a haven from European war threats The previous peak was in December 1936 Demand deposits in banks of 101 leading cities went up $720 000 000 since June 30 and currency in circulation increased $240 000 000 Federal deposits in banks also went up somewhat but time deposits declined slightly

Since April the administration has taken various technical steps to increase artificially the volume of lendable money in the hope that its mere availability would encourage banks to make more loans Actually commercial industrial and agricultural loans have declined slightly altho showing irregular signs of recovery in the last four weeks

Stopping Paul Christman Husker Job In Homecoming Game Here

TIGER SOPHOMORE PASSES AND RUNS FOR TOUCHDOWNS

Missouri Averages Pair of Counters in Each of Four Contests.

ARRIVING HERE TONIGHT

BY WALTER E. DOBBINS.

Stop Christman!

That's quite an assignment for our Cornhuskers for this Maplewood, Mo., boy is just about tops in the nation as a forward passer. And against Washington U. of St Louis last week Christy gave the other Tiger backs a lesson in how to carry the apple.

In four games—Colorado, Kansas State, Iowa State, Washington—Christman has tossed 81 forward passes, completing 34 for a total gain of 634 yards.

In four games Christman has chalked up three touchdowns and is second high scorer on the Tiger squad. The leader is Sophomore Jim Starmer from Atchison, Kas. Starmer has picked up four touchdowns and four extra points from placement.

Missouri has accounted for 54 points or an average of two touchdowns a game while holding its opponents to six touchdowns. The only comparison that can be made at this writing involves the respective showings of the Bengals and Huskers against Iowa State.

It's Tossup Game.

The Cyclones dropped the Huskers, 8 to 7 and Missouri, 16 to 13. That makes Saturday's Homecoming fray with Don Faurot's lads pretty much of a tossup.

Nebraska fans firmly believe that the Scarlet gridmen are about to break out in a touchdown rash. They have scored only two markers all season. One was Jack Dodd's "steal" in the Minnesota battle and the other was Harry Hopp's 30-yard flip to Ray Prochaska against Iowa Satte.

Altho Missouri has relied chiefly on an aerial game to advance the ball into enemy territory, the Tigers have been able to plunge the ball across.

That's something the Huskers have been lacking and something that Major Biff Jones has made every effort to correct this past week.

From Thursday's drill it was quite apparent that the Biffer again will stick to his usual starting eleven of George Seeman and Ray Prochaska, ends; Bob Mills and Forrest Behm, tackles; Leonard Muskin and Bill Iverson, guards; Charley Brock, center; Harry Hopp, quarterback; Herman Rohrig and Jack Dodd, halfbacks and Bill Callihan, fullback.

This means that Marvin Plock, senior and game captain, probably will warm the bench at least at the start of the battle. It has been the Major's custom not to shake up his regular eleven even if the situation is such as it will be Saturday.

Hold Weight Edge.

The Huskers will hold a seven or eight pound advantage per man over the invaders. The Nebraska line averages 196 against 191 and the Scarlet backs average 189 against 178 pounds.

Both squads have suffered from injuries. Missouri's Porter Robb and Roland Orf are reported on the injury list while Nebraska's George Porter, Eldon Nuernberger, Edsel Wibbels and Bob Kahler probably will not get into the ball game.

Nebraska was scheduled to take its usual tapering off workout Friday afternoon while Missouri will work out in Kansas City. The Tiger squad will arrive at 9:30 Friday over the Missouri Pacific and headquarter at the Cornhusker. The lineups:

Nebraska—	Wt.	Pos.	Wt.	—Missouri
Seeman	185	le	181	Dickenson
Mills	208	lt	205	Guazin
Muskin	199	lg	182	Wallurf
Brock	195	c	200	Kinnison
Iverson	189	rg	180	Pickett
Behm	198	rt	200	Hass
Prochaska	192	re	180	Moss
Hopp	190	qb	190	Christman
Rohrig	195	lh	163	Faurot
Dodd	170	rh	175	Starmer
Callihan	200	fb	180	Hydzun

Average weight team: Nebraska 193, Missouri 186. Average weight line: Nebraska 196, Missouri 191; average weight backfield: Nebraska 189 Missouri 178.

Officials, referee Dwight Reed, Washburn; umpire F. E. Dennie, Brown; linesman, Pore Lewis Washington, field judge, A. L. Haskins, Oklahoma.

Bob Waldorf.

Chunky Bob Waldorf, brother of Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern's head football coach, lettered as a sophomore on Missouri's varsity last year and this fall has blossomed forth as a regular, in which capacity he will see service against Nebraska Saturday. Bob is also a brother of John Waldorf, former Wesleyan coach.

Bob Faurot.

Bob Faurot, younger brother of Coach Don Faurot, is listed as quarterback from which position he calls signals, but in actuality on the squad he is listed as a blocking back. Young Faurot, a junior letterman, also punts on occasion and does it left-footed. He will be in the starting lineup Saturday.

Poll Shows Pittsburgh Panthers Acclaimed Best College Eleven

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK. (Copyright 1938 by United Press.). The University of Pittsburgh has the greatest college football team in the country but it would be outclassed by the best of the professional elevens, a United Press poll of sports editors and writers decided.

Out of 135 ballots cast, 112 named Pittsburgh as the best college team, but only 38 favored it over the professionals. Because of widespread discussion about the class of the 1938 Panther squad, writers and editors were submitted questions with these results:

Do you think Pitt is the outstanding college team of the country? Yes, 112; no, 16; no commitment, 7.

Do you think Pitt could defeat any first rate professional, team? Yes, 38; no, 72; maybe, 25.

Most of those who questioned Pitt's greatness wanted to wait until after the Fordham game Saturday before unqualifiedly hailing Dr. Jock Sutherland's eleven. A few believed that Texas Christian, Tennessee, Santa Clara or California could beat Pitt. Flint Dupre, of the Dallas Dispatch-Journal, quoted Coach Matty Bell, of S. M. U., who lost to Pitt last week, as believing T. C. U. could turn the trick.

A typical comment from the Pitt yes-men came from Russ Green, Mahonoy City (Penn.) Record-American: "The Panthers are the Yankees of college football. They have power, precision and timing, and their offense and defense approach perfection. They're big enough and strong enough."

Pros Get The Call.

The vote showed that 53 percent favored a pro team to defeat Pitt, 28 percent chose the Panthers, and 19 percent were on the fence.

R. G. Lynch, sports editor of the Milwaukee Journal, believed Pitt would fall before the professionals because it would be unable to stop their passing attack. He said: "Pitt's line would have trouble opening a hole in a pro line. Pitt should be able to score but they could never stop a passing attack like Green Bay, Washington or the New York Giants would throw at them."

Joe Val, sports editor of the New York World Telegram, believed that in a "money game with the prestige of pro football at stake the pros would win decisively. The pros play 12 games and can't go all out in every game. That's why they are sometimes off form."

Hal Sharkey, Newark Evening News, believed Pitt would lose "because it hasn't the reserves to cope with the 25 or 30 first class men which such clubs as Green Bay, Giants, Detroit, Bears and Redskins have."

Most of those who championed Pitt favored them whole heartedly."

Worse Than Wrestlers.

Jack Ledden, sports editor of the South Bend News Times, said: "The pros are worse than the wrestlers. Pitt's down the field blocking and fast charging line against passers would ruin the pros who can't do much of either."

George S. Alderton, of the Lansing State Journal, opined: "Professional football is filled with silly mistakes third rate college teams wouldn't make. The college boys have the brains and don't let anybody kid you that they aren't the equal physically."

M. J. Quinlan, Niagara Falls Gazette, threw this harpoon at Pitt: "As one pro club against another the Panthers should win. They're in the wrong league now."

Irish-Army Go Pulls Out 'Grads'

NEW YORK. (AP). One of the most peculiar things about the football season is the annual game between Notre Dame and the Army, the 25th of which will be played Saturday at Yankee stadium before about 80,000 alumni of the two institutions.

The game is unique because of this terrific outpouring of the old grads, most of whom bought their tickets back in August. Otherwise the contest is not particularly distinguished, because Notre Dame usually wins and national honors very seldom are in the balance.

The 80,000 alumni who scheme and scrap for the privilege of paying $4.40 to see the game are not to be confused with the calmer type of alumnus who actually attended classes at one of the two institutions. The latter is comparatively rare and has become scattered all over the world, while the Notre Dame football alumni is concentrated right here in New York.

There are estimated to be about 300,000 of them in the greater city, men who for years have suffered agonies every time the Army threatened to score on their alma mater. Some of them have been loyal Notre Dame old grads ever since the days when Knute Rockne and Gus Dorais first came to the Plains and forward passed the Cadets into a state of collapse.

Naturally, they hold nothing but scorn for a great number of younger old grads who grabbed a Notre Dame football diploma only about 13 or 14 years ago, when the "Four Horsemen" were bringing fame to the South Bend academy. The veteran Irish supporters refer caustically to the members of this group as "ten year men."

GENOA HIGH DEFEATS CLARKS ELEVEN 14-0

GENOA, Neb.—Coach Glenn Justice's Genoa high school gridders added another win to their victory string by defeating Clarks high, 14 to 0.

Two perfect scoring plays accounted for the Genoa touchdowns. Irwin scampering 40 yards for one and D. Boss running 23 yards for the other. Halfback Booth and the Cook twins, tackles, were outstanding for Clarks.

INJURY JINX STRIKES AT NORFOLK ELEVEN

NORFOLK, Neb.—Norfolk chances of stopping the hard riding undefeated Neligh eleven here Friday dropped to zero minus when it was announced Quarterback Dick Childs and Halfback Virgil Carrico would not be able to start the game on account of leg injuries

Charles McMunn, substitute halfback, also is on the injured list with a dislocated thumb. This deluge of injuries, coupled with the loss of Fullback Wilbur Kimes, who now is ineligible to play due to the age limit ruling, has blasted Coach Virgil Yelkin's hopes of halting Neligh's non-stop flight in the football realm.

Yelkin Friday will have only one regular backfield player, Vernon Graber.

PORCUPINE FIGHTS DOGS

Animal Finally Shot by Farmer Near Shelton.

SHELTON, Neb. A three hour fight between two dogs and a porcupine, on the Norris Brown farm north of Shelton, ended about 11 p. m. when the porcupine was shot and killed. Mr. Brown saw the porcupine come from the chicken house and go into a cornfield. The dogs gave chase and barked and fought wit hthe animal for hours. Finally Mr. Brown took his shotgun and flashlight into the field, threw the light on the animal and then shot it.

The mouths and noses of the dogs were filled with the sharp quills. Mr. Brown succeeded in removing all bu two from the mouth of one dog, but the other dog would bite him when he attempted to touch the quills, some of which penetrated deep into the flesh.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MAY ADOPT NEW BALL

Junior Loop Looking With Favor on a 'Modified Lively' Sphere.

CHICAGO. (UP). American league officials considered the feasibility of adopting a "modified ball" for the 1939 season, similar to the socalled "dead" ball used in the National league.

William Harridge, American league president, revealed that managers of some teams have conferred with sporting goods manufacturers with the idea of changing the extremely "lively" ball which sluggers have knocked out for homers with comparative ease.

The National league adopted its 1938 ball at a meeting in Chicago last December, and altho its use showed it wasn't as "dead" as advertised, the league intends to keep it in play. It is a "modified" ball, one not as lively as the one used by the American league. The seams, too, are raised slightly.

"The main object in changing to a ball similar to that used in the National league," Harridge said, "would help the pitchers. The higher seams enable them to get a firmer grasp on the ball, and therefore have more control."

FORDHAM AND SANTA CLARA MAY BATTLE

LOS ANGELES, (AP). Superior Judge Thomas P. White announced that negotiations are under way for a post season football game between Santa Clara and Fordham universities, to be played in the Memorial coliseum here Sunday, Jan. 1.

Judge White said 12 Catholic laymen will meet next Wednesday to discuss the proposal. Tentative plans call for it to be staged as a benefit for the Associated Catholic Charities.

"I do not know what assurance we have that these two teams would be available, but you may say that the movement is definitely under way," the jurist declared.

Both teams are unbeaten, but Fordham was tied by Purdue, 6-6.

SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

NEW YORK.—Pittsburgh's desperate charge to break up a three year scoreless tie against Fordham with one of the greatest of all college teams—Harvard's dream of breaking at last into the winning column against Princeton—Army's slashing assault upon Notre Dame's unbeaten record—Minnesota and Northwestern in the most important of the Big Ten wars—Tennessee, Duke, T. C. U., Oklahoma and California struggling to retain a spotless slate—150,000 expected at the Pitt-Fordham and Army-Notre Dame contests—Luckman's arm against the Big Red platoon.

THE ROUNDUP.

PITTSBURGH-FORDHAM—Fordham would be an even bet against any other team on the map. There is no even bet against Pittsburgh. The Panther stands on top until he is beaten. It should be a hard, close game, with Pittsburgh breaking the three scoreless ties.

ARMY-NOTRE DAME—Another brilliant contest which should be featured by a flock of fine backs. Little to choose. Just an edge for Notre Dame.

YALE-DARTMOUTH—Yale has already waded into four hard battles without a breathing spell. The Michigan game must have taken its toll. Dartmouth should have the winning factor in McLeod, an extremely fine all-around back of the Clint Frank type.

HERE'S TOSSUP.

HARVARD-PRINCETON— One you can put in the tossup class. Harvard has lost four games. Princeton has won only two. That doesn't mean they are poor teams They are not. I doubt that any other two teams can show finer spirit. If there is any faint edge, it belongs to Harvard, playing at home.

PENNSYLVANIA-NAVY— You could call this one a draw and not be far wrong. Here is a game that can go either way on past form, but I like Navy by a shade.

TENNESSEE-L. S. U. Two of the strong teams from Dixie. Both have strong lines, but I like Tennessee's attack, headed by Cuzzo, one of the season's best.

COLGATE-HOLY CROSS—There will be no harder game played this week end. Colgate has Lube and Hoague. Holy Cross has Osmanski and Cahill. Both are strong defensively. I'll take a nod in the direction of Holy Cross.

SANTA CLARA-MICHIGAN STATE—Michigan State is good, but Santa Clara has one of her best squads. A close game with the call for Santa Clara.

MICHIGAN-ILLINOIS—This is always one of the hardest-fought of all the Big Ten shows. I believe Michigan is about due to reach her top form this time. Zuppke has no backfield to match than Wolverine attack. I like Michigan.

COLUMBIA - CORNELL—Cornell has a big edge in manpower and all around squad strength. Columbia still has Sid Luckman, and Cornell's pass defense hasn't been any too hot. Cornell should have too many guns. Cornell in a thriller.

OHIO STATE TOO STRONG.

OHIO STATE-N. Y. U.—The Buckeye has too much material for Mal Stevens' outfit. But there will be no 60 to 0 runaway.

SYRACUSE-PENN STATE—Syracuse plus Sidat-Singh has the jump here and should handle the situation.

VANDERBILT-GEORGIA TECH—Extremely close. On all-season form so far, you can figure this one a draw.

MINNESOTA - NORTHWESTERN—One of the Big Ten games of the year. Here again the margin is thinner than the segment of a toy balloon. If Van Every is ready, I'll take Minnesota.

NEBRASKA OVER MISSOURI.

I'll take Southern California over Oregon—Nebraska over Missouri—Arkansas and Texas A. & M. a standoff; both good—California over Oregon State—U. C. L. A. over Stanford—Tulane over Mississiupi State—Alabama over Kentucky—Temple to beat Georgetown.

T. C. U.-BAYLOR—The top game of the southwest—O'Brien vs. Patterson. I'll stick along with T. C. U. until someone knocks them over.

I'll take Iowa State over Marquette, and Kansas State over Kansas U. I'll take Lafayette and Manhattan, Clemson and Detroit.

OKLAHOMA-TULSA—Oklahoma has one of the best teams in the country this fall. Tulsa is no setup, but Oklahoma should make the grade.

CREIGHTON PREP TO MEET HAVELOCK HERE

Pairang Eleven Has Three in Row on Right Side of Ledger.

Coach M. H. Pairang will bring his Creighton Prep gridders, with three straight victories to their credit, to the Wesleyan bowl for a game with Havelock that promises to provide plenty of fireworks. It will be the first prep 11 man night game in Lincoln in over a decade

The Junior Jays, after dropping their first two games to Omaha South and Thomas Jefferson, have come back to bowl over Omaha North, Fremont and Omaha Benson in order. Meanwhile, Havelock also started out poorly, losing to Benson and tying Seward, but the Shoptowners have won their last two times out at the expense of College View and Auburn.

Al Gaeta Keyman.

Creighton Prep, boasting one of the state's best coaches in Pairang, will be decided favorites with their crafty attack. The Jays are built around Al Gaeta, guard and captain, who is serving his third year as a regular. He played with the last 30 seconds of play last week defeated Benson. Ed Mercarty, end, is another standout.

The backfield is versatile Billy Warthen, sophomore, is a triple threater, while Lee McGinn, 140 pound speed demon, is the chief running threat.

Havelock's chief weapon will be the forward pass, with Kenny McClure and Bill Malone as the throwing end. Bill DeBord 168 pound tackle is the mainstay of the line.

Save for Joe Ficenec, Prep end, who sustained a charley horse in the South game, both coaches will have full strength available. The probable starting lineups, weights and numbers.

Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri Seeking First Big Six Grid Wins

I May Be Wrong

By John Bentley

One of the few remaining opportunities to snatch some glory from the 1938 football season presents itself to the Nebraska Cornhuskers, Saturday, when Don Faurot brings his Missouri Tigers here.

It was Missouri a decade or more ago, that shocked Cornhuskerland by taking three straight victories from Nebraska. That happened in 1925-26-27 when Gwinn Henry was at the Tiger helm. It was under Gwinn, now athletic director at Kansas U., that Don Faurot played when he was an undergraduate at Missouri.

And the Huskers have their orders, Morris Lipp, editor of the Daily Nebraskan, in Friday morning's issue, writes a letter to Maj. Biff Jones. He says:

"Major, you know the Huskers are overdue now. If they read the sports pages—and what athlete doesn't?—they must realize a smarting challenge has been thrown to them. Has it been accepted? The team must answer Saturday to the plaintive calls for victory. Big Six feasting at the expense of Nebraska prestige must come to an immediate end."

But it isn't quite as simple as that.

Mathias Volz, who worked as an official in one of the games in which the Tigers played, says this year's Missouri team is the best since Don Faurot took over. The Cornhuskers were barely able to squeeze past last year's Tigers by a one touchdown margin.

Missouri has shown versatility in its offense. The team, sparked by Paul Christman, 190 pound sophomore fullback, has been able to advance the ball both by passing and rushing.

The handicappers have made Nebraska a favorite to win by 7 points.

Missouri, like Nebraska, was hard hit by graduation of key players. Only 13 of the 31 lettermen returned. But oddly enough, this year's Tiger eleven, given little consideration before the season, has shown far more than ordinary promise. Last year Coach Faurot was in the same position that Biff Jones found himself early this fall—the victim of too much optimism. That's one problem that Coach Don and his staff did have to contend with this fall. Among last year's Tiger standouts who were lost by graduation, illness or ineligibility were Houston Betty, center, who ranked high in the mythical choices of all stars; Simon and Kirk, guards; Frank Heidel, tackle; Nelson, end; Mason and Mondala, fullbacks; Malay, halfback; Murray, Johnson, Jett and Smead, backs. Smead sustained an injury playing baseball which kept him out.

The answer to the Husker problem seems to lie in whether Nebraska can take advantage of its scoring opportunities. Two touchdowns in four games—and one of those on a freak 91 yard run—is the total thus far that the Husker offense has collected. Some one of these days, Jack Dodd, Walt Luther or Marvin Plock, the breakaway runners, are going to get hot.

May it be Saturday!

Lincoln nimrod sends a clipping from the Whitefish Pilot, published at Whitefish, Mont., which carries an item regarding an advertisement that called for bids from men with machine guns to slaughter elk on the Circle H ranch near Augusta. The thing that has the sportsmen here more than ever resentful was this statement in the three column advertisement:

"We guarantee absolute protection against prosecution by either federal or state authorities as we have been advised by legal counsel of the highest standing, as well as by federal and state officials, that we have the undoubted right to kill all elk doing damage to our property and business."

It is admitted that 1,000 elk likely will be killed in this wholesale slaughter.

Bob Gaddis submits the name of Jack Best as another whose memory should be honored by naming one of the practice fields at Nebraska U...."I am sure," Gaddis writes, "that there will be several who will remember this fine man and the work he did in Cornhusker athletics years ago."...

Bud McBride, who worked a recent game in which Russ Bradford played, claimed the young fellow from Mitchell is the greatest halfback he's ever seen...Bradford was enrolled at Nebraska U. a couple of seasons back, but withdrew when homesickness overcame him...He later enrolled at Wayne Teachers college...

Clarke Smaha, one time Husker basketeer, now residing in Chicago, is here for homecoming and will spellbind a bit at the 40th anniversary celebration of Delta Upsilon...Coach Browne is taking his third look at the Pittsburgh Panthers this week end as they play Fordham...He will have one more look before the Panthers head west...Josh Williams, Pitt scout, has been following the Huskers in all but one start... Adolph Lewandowski is charting Jayhawk plays as K. U. meets K-State...

MISSOURI'S OFFENSE IS EFFECTIVE BUT ITS DEFENSE HAS LEAKED

Kansas Keyed to High Pitch for Meeting With K-State.

JAYHAWK IS CRIPPLED

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP). The three Big Six conference football teams which have yet to score a victory in league competition will get another chance to do something about it Saturday, but it doesn't appear likely that more than one will be able to take advantage of the opportunity.

Missouri and Nebraska Each seeking to put a mark in the victory column, play each other at Lincoln and the game may be the day's best. Missouri has the offense to stand up against any team in the middlewest, but can't keep the opposition from scoring. Nebraska, labeled the best in the conference at the start of the season, still is a potentially good team, but has lacked the offensive power to match its strong line play.

The third unvictorious eleven, Kansas, is keyed to a fighting pitch for the annual game with Kansas State at Manhattan. Coach Adrian Lindsey has been the target of campus criticism thruout the week, because of the mediocre showing of the Jayhawkers thus far. The players have shown no disposition to blame Lindsey and the game Saturday will be an effort to vindicate him. The Staters, however, looked like champions in their surprise 13 to 6 victory over Indiana last week ,and are at peak strength for the Kansas squabble.

Strong Running Attack.

State's powerful running attack has been the subject of praise wherever the team has played. Coach Lynn Waldorf at Northwestern said it was the best he had seen. Elmer Hackney, the piledriving fullback has been cracking the line at an average of four yards per try and he is flanked by two fleet runners, ack Blanke and Melvin Seelye, who are at best on open plays. Thursday Jim Brock, the team's point-after-touchdown artist made 50 straight place-kick conversions.

Kansas is crippled for the game. Ralph Miller, and Milton Meier halfbacks, both are out of uniform and numerous other squad members are nursing minor injuries.

The other two Big Six teams, Oklahoma and Iowa State, who lead the way with two conference victories apiece, and who are unbeaten and untied for the season, play formidable outside opponents

One Game at Time.

Iowa State will go to Milwaukee for a game with Marquette, the team against which they started a winning streak last season. Coach Jim Yeager has asked his players to "play one game at a time" and to forget about the two remaining conference games with Kansas State and Oklahoma in November.

Oklahoma will be seeking to avenge the defeat that Tulsa university handed the Sooners a year ago, but the task is not simple.

Tulsa has one of its strongest teams and has been pointing for the Oklahoma game The Sooners will play without the services of their star tackle, Gilford Duggan injured in the Nebraska game.

LEE PENNEY'S BROTHER SPARKS TIGER BACKFIELD

CRETE, Neb.—A light but extremely aggressive senior, John Penney of Tabor, Ia., is playing an important part again in the Doane backfield. He counted the touchdown that enabled the Tigers to gain a 7-0 victory over Dakota Wesleyan last week end.

JOHN PENNEY.

Penney, who is playing his fourth year of varsity football, weighs only 142 pounds.

The Doane halfback is also a brother of Lee Penney, who starred for the Cornhuskers a few years agu and is now coaching at Superior.

GREAT PASSING RECORD.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Wilmeth Sidat-Singh Syracuse's Negro halfback used sparingly in the first two games, has rolled up a remarkable record, mostly against Cornell and Michigan State. He has completed 26 passes out of 38 for gains of 447 yards, with five of the heaves going for touchdowns. He has averaged four and a half yards on every try carrying the ball, run back three kickoffs for 100 yards and turned in an outstanding defensive game.

THE BRIDGE MADE OF EGGS. The Charles bridge in Praha, Czechoslovakia was 143 years in building, a longer time than any other bridge in the world. Two hundred and two carloads of eggs were finally mixed with the mortar to give it resistance. Every one of the 202 towns and cities of ancient Bohemia contributed a carload of eggs for the purpose. At the time this bridge was built, Praha was the capital of Germany.

PEACHES 75 YEARS OLD. On the third day of the battle of Gettysburg, the grandmother of Mrs. Pfeffer was driven from her home on the "peach orchard" farm which became the scene of one of the bloodiest encounters of the battle. The fleeing family managed to save, among other things, 12 jars of preserved peaches from the orchard. The family has saved the jar Mrs. Pfeffer owns as a curiosity. The fruit seems to be in practically perfect condition.

Here Are Lardner's Grid Selections, East and West, Just All Directions

BY JOHN LARDNER.

Copyright by the NANA (The Lincoln Journal and other newspapers).

NEW YORK.—Poetic license No. X-104 takes the stand again, and shows you how to pick a football winner without matches:

Oregon State has one way fare
To the gruesome den of the Golden Bear;
So look the doors and pass the plate
For the widows and orphans of Oregon State.

In his heyday, the poet Kipling used to say that the best way to keep from guessing wrong on every football game was to predict one big upset. Since the poet Kipling compiled a lifetime average of .435, he must have had something on the ball. Therefore.

The crystal gazers union is
At liberty to bar me
If Notre Dame should win her game
From (vs. and heard me) Army.

Here is a little tune that King Henry the eighth used to play on the zither:

Chicago's gonna bent DePaw
Along about the seventh inning;
They've just found out there ain't no law
Against Chicago winning.

The poet Samuel Johnson claimed that oatmeal was a food for horses in England and a food for men in Scotland. He had no use for the Scotch. "Give me the rye every time," said the poet Johnson, "with just a splash of soda."

Your chance of finding Charlie Ross
Is Colgate's chance with Holy Cross.

We will now take a brief swing thru the south and southwest, a couple of steps ahead of the G-men.

The Texas team is sure to run
Its afternoon with S. M. U.

While Auburn, scoring once or twice,
Will make a Chinese meal of Rice.

And Tennessee,
It's all that's free,
And all that's holy, too,
Is just a touch—
Down's width too much
For L. S. U. (and I do mean U.).

Here is today's code special. Anyone who solves it wins the privilege of riding on the Nickel Plate railroad at the usual transportation rates:

To beat out Auxier, which beat Ky.,
The Providence team will to be B.

The Muse now takes us to the Pacific coast, at our own expense;

Bury me deep in the prairie, pal, if Oregon wins from Southern Calif.

Here is a good way to rhyme Onachita, if you haven't got anything better to do:

Emporia Teachers are apt to beat a
Team by the name of Onachita.

While here is something a little more special:

Queens on treys in Syracuse's Hand. Penn State has fives and deuces.

Getting back to the Poet Kipling, by way of Cape Horn, he was a very easy fellow to steal from. For instance:

When the Himalayan peasant meets the Bulldog in its pride,
He shouts to scare the critter, which will often step aside;
But the Indian, thus accosted, scatts the peasant without fail,
For the Dartmouth of the species is more deadly than the Yale.

Maybe the Poet Lardner has used that before, but, if he hasn't, you can be damned sure that the Poet Kipling has. While we are still in the Ivy league:

It's feeding time in the Harvard lair,
And Princeton hends the bill of fare,
Also:
For Navy the grief,
For Penn, the gravy,
(I'd just as lief
Be picking Navy).

Here is a natural history lesson that my Portuguese mammy used to sing to me in her fun loving Portuguese dialect:

Georgetown over Alfred Holbrook,
(Fish for trout in a very Col' Brook).

While out in the middlewest and near there:

By the sacred bones
Of Butler Jones,
Nebraska's due to win,
And it's my hunch
She'll land a punch
Upon Missouri's chin.

Northwestern-Minnesota might stump some other bard,
But a tie game is the answer, and it ain't a very hard.

We wind up with an intersectional dirge, in three flats:

The N. Y. U.'s are in the way
Of "Shut the Gates of Mercy" Schmidt,
And that's no place to be, they say—
Ohio State is quite a bidt.

The winner of our $1 contest for a rhyme for New Hampshire is a gentleman named Thomas Farley. His rhyme is technically accurate, but, in justice to him, I won't print it. It's not much good. This week's $1 calls for a rhyme for Tufts.

RUNS WRONG WAY.

CLARKSVILLE, Ark.—Center Ogilvie intercepted a pass and dashed 50 yards in the wrong direction Thursday night, giving the opponents of Heavener, Okl., high a safety and their only score. Nothing daunted, Ogilvie's Clarksville high teammates put on a whirlwind attack and scored 34 points, 20 of them in the final two minutes

"GOOD OLD DAYS."

DETROIT, Mich.—Take it from Gus Dorais, Detroit's veteran coach, the "good old days of football" are considerably overestimated. Gus points out that better high school coaching and facilities have produced more great players and more great teams than ever before.

MISSOURI LINE IS AT PEAK FOR YEAR

Return of Kenneth Haas Has Strengthened the Tiger Front Wall.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UP). The Missouri Tigers packed up their combination rushing and forward passing attack and started for Lincoln, Neb., Friday, still in search of their first Big Six conference victory of the season.

Coach Don Faurot took a squad of 33 players, leaving two regulars at home with injuries. Porter Robb, fullback, limping on a sprained ankle suffered last week, remained here with Roland Orf, an end, who broke a hand in practice this week.

Faurot said the Tiger offensive had clicked as smoothly as on past occasions, but that he was fearful of the team's defense. He indicated that the line would be stronger than at any other time this season, with Kenneth Haas returning to right tackle. Clarence Hydron, a big fullback, who is an excellent secondary defense man, also was expected to strengthen the Tiger lineup.

RACE WINNER AFTER $3,000 PRIZE MONEY

BOSTON. (AP). Ruddy faced Capt Angus Walters in no conciliatory mood, made arrangements for the champion Bluenose to sail from Boston Friday while he figuratively camps on the race committee's door and waits for his $3,000 prize money.

The Canadian skipper who successfully defended the international trophy against the challenge of the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, stood firm against hints by the race directors he ought to compromise on finances.

Walters also was unhappy over the disappearance of the silver cup put up as a race trophy in 1920

"That cup must be found—or else," fumed Capt Walters. And not even talk of his coming marriage to Miss Mildred Butler of Halifax could soothe him completely.

FERGUSON PICKING NEBRASKA TO WIN

Iowa State Given Nod Over Marquette, Pittsburgh Over Fordham.

BY HARRY FERGUSON.

NEW YORK. (UP). With a punt, a pass and a prayer, the weekly attempt is made to pick Saturday's football winners:

California-Oregon State—A west coast spy flashes this heliograph signal across the great divide: California 18, Oregon State 0.

Columbia-Cornell—Cornell unless Luckman starts throwing bulls-eyes.

Harvard-Princeton — Harvard, which hasn't won one this season, ought to get started here. Close.

Holy Cross-Colgate—A fine spot for a tie. A thin edge to Holy Cross.

Iowa-Purdue — Purdue without much trouble.

Kansas State-Kansas—A bad afternoon for Kansas.

Kentucky-Alabama—Tre Crimson Tide washes everything away.

Marquette-Iowa State—Iowa State on past performance.

Michigan-Illinois—Zuppke may have a surprise up his sleeve, but Michigan gets the call.

He Likes Nebraska.

Nebraska-Missouri—Missouri is strong but Nebraska is long overdue and should have a shade the better of it.

NYU-Ohio State—NYU tries the big leagues and regrets it.

North Carolina-Duke—Almost everybody says North Carolina is loaded for an upset, but we'll believe it when the scores comes in. Duke in a close one.

Northwestern-Minnesota—Minnesota has barely scraped thru in its last three games. A long shot guess that Northwestern takes it.

Oregon-Southern California—Southern California 20, Oregon 7.

Penn-Navy—Penn has a narrow edge in a game in which anything can happen.

Penn State-Syracuse—Syracuse, maybe very easily.

Pitt-Fordham—The game of the day. Pitt gets the call in a bruiser.

Rice-Auburn—Rice is beginning to roll now.

Tennessee-Louisiana—Dope says Tennessee; a hunch says Louisiana. The hunch wins.

Texas-Southern Methodist—SMU ought to have recovered enough from the Pittsburgh beating to take this one.

Do It With Passes.

Texas A. & M.-Arkansas—Arkansas does it with passes.

Tulane-Mississippi State—Brunner and Banker will do it for Tulane.

Army-Notre Dame—The Irish are favored in a game in which favorites don't mean much.

Utah-Decer—Utah, and maybe comfortably.

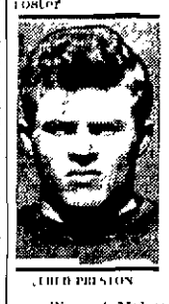
Vanderbilt-Georgia Tech—Vanderbilt after drawing straws.

Wisconsin-Indiana—Close, with Wisconsin favored because Indiana doesn't seem to have a scoring punch.

Yale-Dartmouth—Dartmouth has the power and only needs the luck.

MEET A HUSKER.

Standing 6 feet, 4 inches and weighing close to 190 pounds, Fred Hastings Preston of Fairbury, is the tallest wingman on the varsity roster.



FRED PRESTON

It is quite apparent at this writing that Maj. Jones has elected to keep Preston out of the lineup this season so that he will have further time to develop and thus have three full seasons of competition ahead of him.

Preston was a three sports ace at two high schools before enrolling at Nebraska. He was the main cog in the football, basketball and track squads at Bethany high for two years before enrolling at Fairbury and finishing under the wing of Clair Sloan, a former Husker back.

Fred was born at Burchard, Neb., on Aug. 20, 1917.

Grand Central's last game was terrific as all but one rolled over 200 for a team total of 1,016.

Roberts belaed O'Shea Rogers, Dundee was better than Mobilgas. Monroe swamped Levi's and Grain Dealers bowed to City Club.

M'LEMORE

Three Passers Tell How It's Done

BY HENRY M'LEMORE.

NEW YORK. (Copyright, 1938, UP). Three of the hottest chunkers of football leather this country ever saw sat around a hotel room Thursday night and told how they chunked it.

For two hours room No. 1100 at the Commodore was filed with nothing more dangerous than imaginary footballs as Benny Friedman, Sammy Baugh and Sid Luckman told how to knock out a receiver's eye at anywhere from 5 to 50 yards. Then some over zealous student of the aerial art went out and brought in three honest to goodness footballs. It was hellza-popin' and every man for himself after that.

"See that door knob?" Friedman asked. "Well, it's on the 5 yard line and has got its arms up. Here goes."

The old Michigan chunker, whose tosses to Oosterbaan made him pre-eminent in his day, faded behind a chair and, with a table blocking for him, rifled one that spun the knob so violently the door opened.

"That's fair tossing, pal," drawled Slingin' Sammy, the Texan, "but see that picture on the wall?"

He pointed to a print of Gainsborough's Blue Boy.

One for Touchdown.

"Well, it's 20 yards away and about to make a cut, and here goes one for a touchdown."

With that Sammy wrapped his long fingers around the pigskin, took a leap into the air, and whipped one high and hard.

"That's good for a touchdown," someone cried as the picture swung back and forth from the impact.

"And the house detective, too," a more cautious spectator added.

But the house man didn't seem to mind, so Luckman, the red hot Columbia passer, picked out a spot and smacked it with a lazy floater that drifted thru the smoke of the room.

"Just practicing for those Cornells on Saturday," he said.

When the targets ran out Friedman, Baugh and Luckman sat down and compared notes on the art of passing a football. They put the lie to the accepted belief that a tremendous pair of hands is necessary. Luckman's hands are smaller than the average man's. Short, stubby fingers, and only a moderate spread. Baugh's aren't extraordinarily large. Only Friedman's were large enough to cause comment. Benny's are modelled after a ham.

Friedman and Luckman grip the ball in the usual manner, that is with the tips of the fingers on the laces. Baugh says he couldn't throw a ball holding it that way. The Texan grabs the ball so that the base of his thumb is on the laces, and he holds it way back toward the end, not in the center.

Courage Is Needed.

All three agreed that the chief essential was wrist snap. The ball isn't thrown with the arm at all, but with a terrific whip of the wrist. This holds true whether the pass is one of 5 yards or 60. The second most essential item is courage.

"I hope it's courage, anyway," Baugh said. "Maybe it's just plumb craziness that makes a fellow hold onto that ball until he picks out his receiver when a pair of 200 pounders are charging him with murder in their eyes."

Luckman, who has been getting a terrible beating each week, smiled and gave his ribs an affectionate pat.

"I still got spots on me where a pair of Navy tackles named Wickhorst and Eddy worked on me," Friedman said. "And that was a long time ago."

I left about this time, because somebody suggested that I let Baugh knock a cigaret out of my mouth with a short pass.

HUMBOLDT WINNER STOPS NEMAHA, 18-7

NEMAHA, Neb.—The Humboldt Cardinals of Coach Roscoe Tolly spoiled the undefeated record of the Nemaha eleven by emerging with an 18 to 7 triumph here Wednesday as Bill Arnot, star Humboldt back, flipped a pass to Bailey for one touchdown and sped 40 yards for another. Butcher accounted for the third.

Nemaha's lone touchdown was made on a pass in the third period. As the game ended, Nemaha was bidding for another touchdown on the Humboldt 1-yard line.

JOHN HENRY LEWIS IS FAVORED OVER GAINER

First Meeting of Negroes in Title Match Since 1904.

BY JACK CUDDY.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP). John Henry Lewis is the 7-5 favorite to retain his light heavyweight crown Friday night against Al Gainer of New Haven in pugilism's first all Negro championship battle in 34 years.

A capacity crowd of 7,000 is expected at the arena to witness this twice postponed 15 round bout in which Lewis, of Phoenix, Ariz., makes his fifth and probably last defense of the 175 pound diadem. The gate will approximate $35,000.

Not since Joe Walcott, the "Barbados Demon," defended the welter title against the Dixie Kid and Joe Gans back in 1904 have two Negroes fought for the title in any division. Most Negro champions have "drawn the color line" and risked their laurels only against white opponents.

Lewis draws no line. Regardless of Friday night's outcome, John Henry is ambitious to launch a heavyweight campaign that will result in a title clash with Joe Louis, ruler of the big boys. Gus Greenlee, Lewis' manager, doubts that John Henry ever will defend the 175 pound bonnet again. He said, "Lewis had so much trouble paring down to 175 pounds for this fight, he might not do it again."

Asks For Postponement.

Difficulties in weight making caused Lewis to ask for the fight's first postponement more than three weeks ago. In his last bout, against Jimmy Adamick at Philadelphia on Sept. 15, Lewis scaled 184 pounds, and he felt at the time that he was close to his best fighting weight. "We won't know until Friday night whether the weight making weakened John Henry," Greenlee added.

Despite the uncertainty of Lewis' condition, he is favored because of his speed and boxing skill. Also because he won a 12 round decision over Gainer. New Haven's "Black Panther," in their first meeting in 1936. Moreover, Gainer has been suffering from a sinus infection. This bothered him so much last week that a second postponement was necessitated.

Lewis is 24 years old; Gainer 28. Both are hard punchers and rugged chaps. Neither has ever been knocked out.

NEW YORK (AP) Railway stocks held the buying play almost exclusively in Friday's market as recent industrial leaders were shoved to lower levels by shifting profit takers Utilities and electrical equipments were in the advancing limelight for a while following announcement from Washington by the national defense power committee of a huge expansion program adopted by the country's important utility corporations in co-operation with the governmental agency These stocks tho, quickly lost vitality and except for a handful were under water at the close The opinion was expressed by some analysts that the good news may have been discounted to a certain extent

Spurring carriers was word from the president at his press conference that the fact finding committee in the rail wage controversy would make its report after noon Saturday and hopes were revived at least part of the cut desired by the roads would be recommended

In dealings that approximated 1,600 000 shares for the day steels motors rubbers, aircrafts oils and specialties found the going a bit too rough for comfort, and with offerings stepping up at the close losses of fractions to around 2 points predominated

A contrasseasonal decrease in last week's freight loadings was without depressing repercussions The recession was thought to have been partly the result of the more than normal slump in traffic during the past several weeks The third quarter statements of General Motors and Bethlehem Steel coming after Thursday's close were about in line with Wall street forecasts

HIT "ONE ARMED BANDITS"

Chamber Directors Oppose Slot Machine Proposal

The directors of the chamber of commerce in a resolution, take a healthy swing at the "slot machine amendment" as a vicious attempt to lead voters of Nebraska into a trap

'The vices delinquency, crime and racketeering that would accompany the passage of this measure" said Harry Krusz chamber manager, 'would so far outweigh any advantages it might have that it is ridiculous to even consider the proposal

And when any interest will covet a gambling monopoly in the state of Nebraska and have the audacity to propose a constitutional amendment in order to further ends it is time that the people of the state take an active part in voting it out of existence It is inconceivable that such a vicious measure could get by the thinking people of Nebraska and it is our hope that all voters will assist in its defeat at the election Nov 8'

The resolution pointed out that any tax monies that might result from legalizing the one armed bandits would be so tiny in comparison to the profits of the "syndicate' that it would be ridiculous

It pointed out that the amendment is trickily worded so as to make it impossible for a small operator of one or two machines to compete with large syndicate operators who would gain control and create a statewide gambling monopoly

RAINS HURT WHEAT PRICE

Futures End 1 Cent Off as Nebraska Drouth Eased.

CHICAGO (AP) Moisture relief at various places both sides of the Kansas-Nebraska border led to 1¼ cents a bushel late downturn of Chicago wheat prices Indications that frost in Argentina had done no damage to crops counted also as a late bearish factor notwithstanding prospects were for frosts there again Friday night Export demand for North American grains was negligible

At the close Chicago wheat futures were ⅝ to 1 cent lower compared with Thursday's finish Dec 65@65⅛ May 66⅛@66⅝ corn ⅜ to ⅝ down Dec 45⅛ May 48⅝@45⅝ and oats 1/8 to ¼ off

Temporarily aiding an upturn of values was word that an export tax affecting all grains had been decreed by the Argentine government Forecasts of show ers however in sections of domestic winter crop territory southwest and west served as more than an offset Weak news shown by Winnipeg quotations counted also as a weight on the Chicago market

One handicap was the fact that it has been four years since Liverpool October wheat futures have been as low as at present It was emphasized also that the Canadian visible supply totaled 159 000 000 bushels or nearly 14 000 000 more than 145 700 000 bushels of durums The Liverpool market due to ½@½c lower closed unchanged to ½c up

Corn receipts continued of liberal volume 651 cars

GRAIN NOTES.

CHICAGO (AP) Unabated dry weather in the American southwest with increasingly unfavorable advices from some sections of that area contribute toward relative firmness in domestic wheat markets Hollis Griffin of J S Bache & Co reports He adds that there is little disposition on the part of speculators to take the selling side in view of possibilities of government support

Most of the unofficial crop experts will release on Wednesday No 2 at 10 a m central time their estimates of 1938 production of corn as well as acreage sown to wheat for harvest n 1939 It is probable one or two releases may be a day earlier

Crop reports from Argentina continue highly optimistic with prospects of harvest beginning in the northern provinces by the middle of November World visible wheat supplies increased 6 110 000 bushels last week to 367 000 000 This compares with 219 000 000 the corresponding time last year

LIVERPOOL WHEAT AND COTTON

LIVERPOOL (AP) Liquidation and hedging was absorved by local buying on the decline in cotton and final prices were unchanged to 2 points lower A good inquiry developed for cotton goods at Manchester

Wheat futures rallied from their earlier low prices and finished unchanged to ¾d up Prost reports from parts of Argentine and an improved demand for Manitoba and Australian grain were factors on the advance

LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO (AP). The hog market, governed almost entirely by supplies, continued to follow its backtracking trend altho light hogs held fully steady and most others showed little change A few sales, however, were 5 to 10 cents lower, but the top held at $8

The supply of 13 000 head was 2 000 larger than expected and 4 000 larger than a week ago The market found little stimulus from the fact that wholesale pork loin quotations have risen about two cents a pound in the past week or ten days in sympathy with the recovery of hog values from four year low levels

The cattle trade was quiet and most prices were unchanged Nothing choice was on sale and the best brought $10 10 with ordinary cattle clearing from $6 75 to $9 25

Fat lambs held steady with Thursday's close but were 15 to 25 cents lower than the high time Natives topped at $8 50

by being nursemaids to their husbands and, once a husband gets the habit of being waited on and all his whims satisfied, nothing short of a battle axe or a charge of dynamite will break him loose from it. A reasonable amount of waiting on at the start tends to tame a husband and get him housebroken but, beyond that, it is the part of wisdom for wives to watch their steps or they will be doing nothing else but stepping for them

2. It is very doubtful Of course mathematics teaches one to think about something more valuable than do detective stories, but that it teaches one to think better about problems of finance or government in which mathematics is not involved is still a matter of dispute among psychologists with most of them leaning to the negative side As Thorndike, psychologist, points out, we had great thinkers when we taught youth mathematics, also when we taught them Latin and Greek, and also when we did not teach them anything. What education does or should do is to teach people to organize their thinking into useful bodies of knowledge—to link facts together so they will have something worthwhile to think about

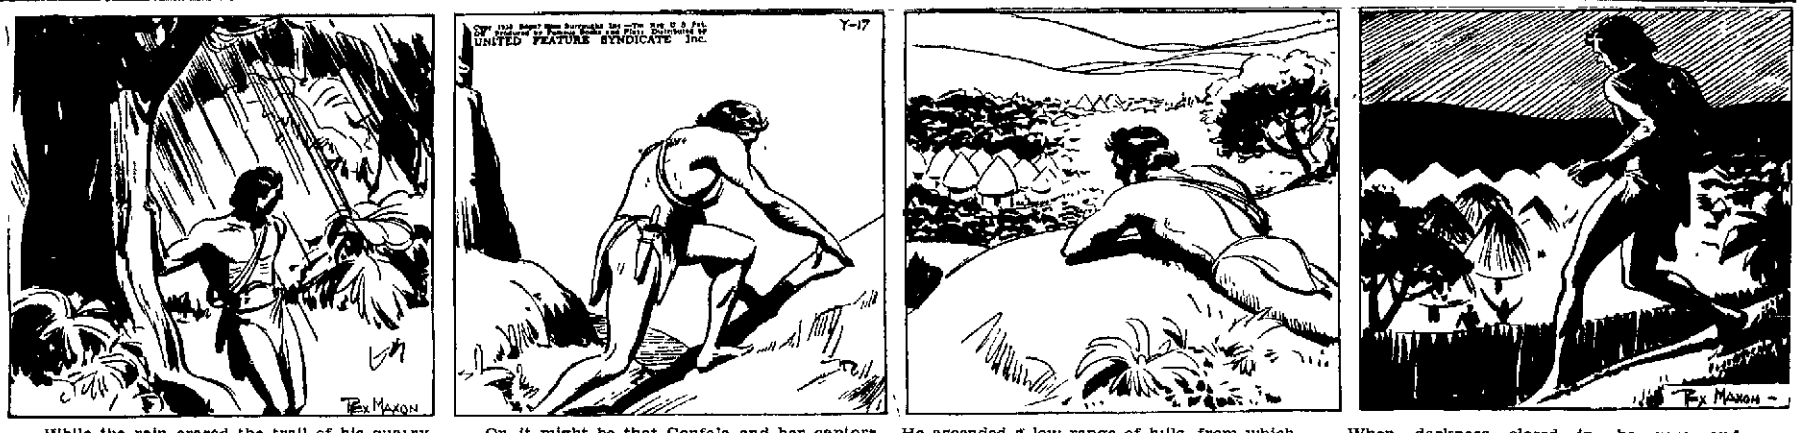
TARZAN AND THE ELEPHANT MEN



While the rain erased the trail of his quarry, Tarzan paused beneath a tree to consider his next move. He was in the country of the Bantangos, a warlike cannibal tribe Perhaps Gonfala's captors had come this way because there were Bantangos among them

Or, it might be that Gonfala and her captors had been captured in turn by the Bantangos In any case, the Jungle Lord decided, it would be well to pay a visit to the village of the chief. Just where the village lay, he did not know, but he would find it.

He ascended a low range of hills, from which he looked down into a broad and beautiful valley. There were spotted the kraals of the savages In the center lay a village larger than the rest. This, he knew, was his goal. But he must wait for night to fall

When darkness closed in, he rose and stretched So like a lion's were his movements that one might have expected the roar of the hunting beast to rumble in his chest. But Tarzan of the Apes remained silent as he strode toward the cannibal stronghold.

MAY END STOCKYARDS STRIKE

UNITED FRONT OF FRENCH LABOR IS SHOWING A SPLIT

Stores and Banks Not to Close in Strike—Chamberlain to Italy.

By the Associated Press.

The united front of French labor appeared to be cracking over plans for a general strike Wednesday in protest against Premier Daladier's labor-financial program.

The government has assurances that department stores, banks and insurance companies all would remain open despite the strike call of the General Confederation of Labor. Some independent unions also proclaimed opposition to the 24 hour stoppage.

But 5,000 metal workers struck in protest at Dunkerque while neutrals made appeals for peace and reason both to labor and the government.

The unions' determination to strike, nevertheless, and the government's insistence that public services be maintained aroused widespread apprehension.

The British government announced that Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Halifax would go to Italy to confer with Premier Mussolini early in January. The prime minister was confident that personal contact with Mussolini would lead to a broad scale accord among the European big four, Britain, Germany, Italy and France.

Jewish quarters in Berlin said they had evidence from various parts of Germany that arrests of Jews were continuing. All Jewish boarding houses, hotels and homes were said to have been raided within the past few days in

CITY STEPS FORWARD IN DEBT RETIREMENT

Last Year First Since Start of Depression Free From Refunding.

The city council Monday approved a resolution calling $4,000 of a Bethany refunding bond issue of $60,000 dated Jan. 1, 1926. Only the $4,000 is optional at this time. This is in line with the new debt retirement program which became effective some months ago. The last fiscal year was the first since commencement of the depression when refunding bonds were not issued. It is a 12 point program, each point a year. Purpose being to retire, in 12 years, the present $961,803 general bonded debt. It is proposed, if possible, to get away from the refunding business and to exercise options when and where possible—not to wish the indebtedness of one generation onto the next.

On June 1, $2,000 of College View water refunding bonds will be called and also, during the summer, $10,000 of aviation bonds will be paid, leaving $35,000 of the original $100,000 issue. Last summer $13,000 of the College View refunding bonds were called which, with the $2,000 of Jan. 1, leaves $20,000 of that issue.

In order to hasten the bond cleanup as rapidly as possible, the council, for the new fiscal year, levied $90,000 for bonds and interest, approximately $31,000 for interest. This does not include $25,000 for building warrants. If the payoff continues at this rate the interest will drop each year and more will be available for retirement of principal.

Next year's levy will be the last for buildings and storm sewers, both being specially authorized ten year programs, $250,000 for

TO TURN PLATTE INTO KINGSLEY RESERVOIR

Second Largest Earth Fill in World Will Make Lake 26 Miles Long.

OGALLALA, Neb. (UP). Tri-County public power engineers within the next ten days plan to shift the regular flow of the Platte river to the reservoir outlet tunnel thru which all the water of the stream is to be diverted during the period of construction of the gigantic Kingsley dam.

The move will permit crowding of the stream into a narrow, artificial channel, thus leaving the natural bed clear for work of constructing the dam to be the second largest earth filled dam in the world.

There will be no reservoir, engineers said, until the dam is completed. When that time arrives the water will be diverted to fill a reservoir 26 miles long, several miles wide and up to 200 feet in depth. Switching of the river from its natural bed will be an engineering feat that is expected to draw thousands of spectators.

SAYS TVA HALTED AUDIT

Comptroller General Claims Records Withheld.

WASHINGTON, (AP). The comptroller general's office charged that the TVA officials had handicapped an audit of the agency's affairs by withholding documents and records. Stewart V. Tulloss, chief of investigations for the comptroller general's office, told the congressional committee investigating TVA that "We found it very difficult to find records and reports."

He said he and his investigators had spent "months in Knoxville and other places trying to determine the correctness of" certain TVA transactions.

Tulloss said the accounting office then proposed that the TVA render its accounts to Washington "the same as other agencies." That procedure, he said, had been "agreed to in part."

only to Judge Edward F. Carter, 41, as youngest member of the high court.

His appointment was the third made by Gov. Cochran to the supreme court since he assumed the gubernatorial chair in 1935. Others were Justice Fred Messmore, who succeeded the late Edward E. Good, and Chief Justice Simmons, who replaced Charles A. Goss, who died last August.

Justice Johnsen is president of the Nebraska State Bar association, served ten years as association secretary, and is past president of the Omaha bar. Born at Hastings, he received his preparatory education in the Fremont schools. While attending University of Nebraska, where he was graduated in 1919 with scholastic honors, Johnson was private secretary to Chief Justice Morrissey of the supreme court.

He started practice at Omaha in 1920, and was a member of the Creighton university law faculty for five years. In 1931 he was appointed general counsel for the farm credit administration of Omaha, resigning after two years to engage in private practice. He was Gov. Cochran's campaign manager in Douglas county in 1936 and 1938. The new justice is a bachelor. His mother, Mrs. Mary Johnsen, resides at Fremont.

ABDUCT 2 MICHIGAN MEN

Gunmen Try to Elude Police and Sheriffs.

PAW PAW, Mich. (AP). Two Michigan men were abducted Monday by gunmen fighting their way across the southern part of the state in an attempt to elude a cordon of state police and sheriffs' officers. Those seized by the gunmen were Henry Matty, a Vicksburg farmer, and Claude Dennis, a gas station attendant employed near Vicksburg. Both men presumable were abducted to cover up the trail of the gunmen as they switched automobiles, refueled and sped on their way. At least one of the fugitives was believed wounded. The men were later freed.

MANDAMUS ACTION IS FILED AGAINST JOHN A. MAGUIRE

Judge Chappell Grants Order; to Speed Decision in Municipal Court Suit.

An order for an alternative writ of mandamus was signed by District Judge Chappell Monday requiring John A. Maguire, municipal judge, who refuses to give up his office to Edward C. Fisher, judge elect, either to give Fisher the office or to show cause by 9 a. m. Saturday why he should not do so. Application for the writ was made by Atty. Gen. Hunter. Ass't. Atty. Gen. Overcash and Sterling Mutz appeared with the application.

A quo warranto proceeding and injunction suit had already been filed, and a temporary order issued by Judge Chappell restraining Judge Maguire from exercising the functions of the office, pending a hearing on a temporary injunction. Hearing on the restraining order also was set for Saturday.

Filing of the mandamus suit was to speed action. In the suit previously filed, Judge Maguire would have five weeks to answer. In the mandamus action the court can hear the case and decide the issues at once. Fisher was elected at the general election Nov. 8 but when he made formal demand on Maguire last week, the latter refused to relinquish the office, contending that he was appointed for the full term vacated by Judge Polk and by resignation of O. C. Wood, and that he is to serve until Jan. 9, 1941. the present petition for mandamus says Fisher qualified for the office at 11 a. m. Nov. 22, and is entitled to serve from that time to Jan. 9, 1941.

MAY PUT TEETH IN THE NEUTRALITY ACT

Government Experts Plan to Amend It to Allow Embargo on Aggressors.

NEW YORK. (Copyright by UP). A plan to amend the U. S. neutrality act so that the president could apply an embargo on any nation he deemed to be an aggressor is being prepared by government experts for presentation to President Roosevelt.

The proposed amendments would be designed to transform the neutrality law into one of the most powerful diplomatic weapons in existence by embargoing an aggressor nation without taking similar action against a nation being attacked as now required under the law.

State department and other officials are preparing the plan, calling for sweeping changes which would put "teeth" into United States foreign policy. The proposals, after submission to the president, will be worked over with congressional leaders in an effort to clear the way for legislation amending the neutrality law at the next session of congress.

Allho government officials were silent or denied that the proposals had any official status, it was learned that amendments under consideration included changes that would:

1. Increase the discretionary power of the president in dealing with belligerent and with aggressor nations.

2. Give the president power to name the aggressor in foreign conflict and apply an embargo on that nation without also applying it to a nation being attacked.

3. Empower the president to prohibit shipment of all war materials to an aggressor nation.

4. Include Canada in the list of Latin American nations to which the act at present does not apply.

SAYS MARCANTONIO IS LABOR DEFENSE HEAD

Ex-Socialist Declares It Is Communist Group—Denies Baldwin Red.

WASHINGTON. (AP). House investigators received testimony that Representative-Elect Vito Marcantonio of New York "is the presiding head of the international labor defense," described as a "communist front organization."

Sam Baron of New York, told the Dies committee investigating un-American activities, the I. L. D. had sponsored a meeting in Jersey City last year at which Representatives O'Connell (d. Mont.) and Bernard (fl. Minn.) were to have spoken in protest against alleged circumvention of civil rights in the city.

Marcantonio, a former congressman, was elected to congress Nov. 8 on the republican and American labor party tickets, defeating the

Frank Crowninshield, Who Hired Dorothy Parker for $20 a Week, Here for 2nd of Town Hall Talks

The man who hired witty Dorothy Parker for $20 a week and Bob Benchley at $75 a week is in Lincoln. He's grey suited, sparsely haired Frank Crowninshield, who thought the dinner party, ballet ohing., legitimate theater ahing crowd would pay for magazines such as Conde Nast's Vanity Fair, Vogue and Town and Country.

Crowninshield, retired, now calls himself just a "bum," altho with the Nast publications he holds the title of "consulting editor," which gives him a reason to be in his office about three hours a day when he's in New York. He speaks at the second of the Town Hall series in Lincoln Monday evening.

He says:

United States has the best opportunity in the world to make great contributions to art, being the only part of the world not solely interested in physical survival.

If the United States were left to such "creatures" as Secretary of Interior Ickes or PWA Administrator Hopkins with their works and art projects, it would not be long before their government financed artists would be paintbrushing likenesses of Ickes and Hopkins, nothing else.

That the painter Picasso, of 1905, drew the art plans—shapes and colors—for the New York World Fair of 1939, but Grover Whalen, who manages the Fair, doesn't know it. Picasso got the laugh in his day for his "silly" cuhist experiments, but he was only erring by being 20 or 30 years ahead of his time.

That, no matter who writes them, nobody ever reads art criticisms.

Is Soft-Spoken.

Crowninshield is a soft-spoken man, the mark of the one long associated with the arts reeling from his tongue in an easy rolleall of the bright-mighty of pencil, brush and typewriter who have

BIDS FOR POWER LINE AND LINCOLN STATION

Loup River District to Study Proposals for Construction Dec. 17.

COLUMBUS, Neb. (UP). Loup River public power district directors will open bids Dec. 17 for construction of 115,000-volt transmission lines from Valley to Omaha and from the Lincoln substation to Omaha. Bids will also be received for erection of the Omaha line bay at the Lincoln substation.

The work will be financed by a $1,800,000 loan and grant approved some weeks ago by PWA. Under this allocation the Omaha substation also will be built, completing the district's "Omaha loop." D. J. De Boer, chief electrical engineer, said the district would advertise for bids on the Omaha substation after the first of the year.

He explained that the Valley-Omaha line will be an extension of the original transmission line built from Columbus to a point north of Valley, and halted there when it was decided not to make connection with the Nebraska Power company's line at Valley.

While main construction work probably will not start before early spring, the contractor will be required to take down and relocate, before Jan. 1, the three and a half miles of poles north of Valley on which no wire was strung when construction on the original Columbus-Valley line was discontinued. The new line will continue eastward instead of turning south.

The Lincoln-Omaha line will be new construction from the district's substation which will be constructed next year near Omaha.

WAR BUREAU CALLS DEFENSE CONFERENCE

Other armament developments included:

1. Secy. Woodring's urgent recommendation that the Panama canal be made "impregnable" hinted at new reinforcements for that vital link.

2. Senator Clark (d., Mo.), served notice that advocates of an expanded armaments program would encounter critical and determined opposition in the new congress.

BURKE SAYS FARM ISSUE PARAMOUNT

Declares Democrats Must Solve It by 1940—Wants Protective Tariff.

WASHINGTON. (UP). Senator Burke said that the democratic party must solve the farm problem before 1940 or face defeat in the elections.

Senator McNary, minority leader, also listed the farm problem as one of the biggest hurdles facing the new congress. He said that republicans would wait to see "what the democrats have to offer," but warned that the farm states in the last election showed themselves "against compulsion and coercion of the farmer when it comes to imposing the economics of scarcity."

Burke said that there was no chance of congress enacting a law embodying Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's plan for a two-price domestic system.

Burke believes congress will work out a farm program by "starting all over again" and adopting something like a domestic allotment system.

WASHINGTON. (AP). Bi-partisan support appeared in senatorial circles for enactment of protective tariffs on farm products. Senator Burke said he believed a protective tariff is No. 1 on the list of the things the farmer will demand from the next congress."

Burke thought there was widespread feeling among the farmers in the west that a protective tariff would help them obtain better prices for their crops.

"When a farmer ships his cattle into the Chicago market," he said, "and finds that a shipment of Canadian cattle arrived the same day and the price went down—whether it was for that reason or not—the thought naturally comes to his mind that a protective tariff would have kept those Canadian cattle out."

NEW TRUCK HEADQUARTERS

Transferred to Terminal Warehouse in Lincoln.

Paul Halpine, newly appointed secretary of the Nebraska Commercial Truckers association, announced the official opening of headquarters at 244 Terminal Warehouse building. Until a month ago, the offices were in Omaha.

A general meeting will be held in Lincoln the middle of December "to formulate a constructive legislative program and to discuss other problems confronting the trucker today."

"There is an apparent movement on foot, on the part of other forms of transportation," Halpine declared, "to squeeze the commercial truckers from the transportation picture. This is definitely an unhealthy condition, not only for the consuming public but also the shippers."

C. I. O. TO HALT WALKOUT IF FIRM WILL NEGOTIATE

Men to Return to Yards if Company Parleys on Written Contract.

CHICAGO. (UP). C. I. O. leaders offered to end the week old strike which has paralyzed the Chicago livestock market if the Union Stock Yard & Transit company would negotiate for a written contract.

An attempt to reopen the market with Federation of Labor stock handlers failed. A. F. L. leaders announced 350 handlers had returned to work but a survey of the yards at 10:30 a. m. showed only three A. F. L. men at work.

The offer of a settlement was made by Van A. Bittner, director of the congress of industrial organizers' drive to organize the packing industry.

Bittner proposed that the men return to work while the union and the company negotiate the other issues on which the strike was called last Monday—a closed shop, the check-off, time and one-half for overtime and pay increases for 65 men receiving less than 62½ cents an hour.

"The management's refusal to bargain is a serious defiance of United States law," Bittner asserted. (The C. I. O. has been designated as the bargaining agent of the stock yard handlers.)

Offering to call off the strike pending negotiations, Bittner threatened: "However, if it takes a strike in all the Armour plants thruout the country to enforce the laws of the United States, the Packing House Workers organizing committee, as an American organization, will do its part."

The C. I. O. massed 250 pickets before the main gate to the stockyards in early morning after the A. F. L. had announced its men were ready to resume handling stock and the company had said work would be resumed for all reporting back.

SOUTH ST. PAUL. (AP). Approximately 35,000 hogs, said to be the largest commercial run in the history of the market, arrived at South St. Paul. The heavy influx of swine was attributed by market interests to the fact that the Chicago livestock yards were strikebound and that shippers in the Chicago market area are diverting shipments to other markets.

LINCOLN MAN BADLY HURT IN COLLISION

Injuries to Adolph Weiberg Early Monday in Crash on Highway Cutoff.

Adolph Weiberg, 57, route No. 2, Lincoln, injured early Monday morning in a collision at the intersection of the Cornhusker highway cutoff and the old SYA road, was reported to have regained consciousness and "resting comfortably" Monday afternoon.

The attending physician said that Weiberg, at first in too serious condition to attend, was progressing satisfactorily. He sustained serious head and chest injuries, a shoulder injury, and deep shock. X-ray pictures were taken Monday morning, the physician reported.

Weiberg was an exhibition balloonist here in the early 1920's. He made many flights from Capital Beach as a part of the entertainment program there.

Deputy Sheriff Hasson who investigated said the accident occurred at about 6:10 a. m. He reported that an auto driven northeast on the highway cutoff by Eugene Batten collided with Weiberg's auto. Weiberg was driving east on the old SYA highway that runs thru the present city dump.

The Weiberg auto was struck almost broadside, Hasson said, and knocked off the road to the east. Both cars were badly damaged. Batten and a companion were uninjured, according to Hasson.

Hasson said the Weiberg auto rolled over several times, coming to a stop quite a distance from the point of impact.

ELLS OF NEBRASKA PWA ACHIEVEMENTS

D. Evans Tells Kearney Business Men of Variety of Projects.

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP). Joseph D. Evans, assistant PWA regional director at Omaha, told the Kearney chamber of commerce Monday 70 percent of the nation's schools in the past five years have been built thru aid of PWA. In Nebraska, he said, 75 schools have been built or rehabilitated.

"You and I say that this can be traced to the fact that federal money was available and school board would have been foolish not to use it," he said. "But the fact is, regardless of funds available, school building was at a standstill. It had stopped. Our children either had to attend classes in condemned and unsanitary buildings or they stayed home. That was the situation."

He outlined PWA work in fields other than development of educational facilities, then summarized the state's activities with this statement:

"In Nebraska 206 projects have been completed: 27 are now in progress PWA has given your state in outright grants for these completed projects $8,123,000 and has loaned at low interest rates $9,301,000. This is a total of $17,424,259 for the program now completed.

"The totals of allotments to your state to date are grants $31,837,000, loans $39,036,000, low cost housing $1,995,000, and federal projects $21,198,000. This gives a grand total of allotments to your state, during the life of the PWA program, of $93,026,000 for projects completed, under construction, or soon to begin construction."

AGE PAYMENTS INCREASED

Number of Recipients Over State Also Higher.

The monthly report of the old age assistance division issued Monday showed that the average grant in the state had increased 25 cents per person in October over September.

The increase was from $15.22 to $15.47. Payments totaling $411,883 were made to 26,631 needy aged compared to $402,656 to 26,456 the month before. Average October grants were $1.59 higher than a year ago with 1,094 more recipients and $57,489 more granted.

Highest paid in October was $20.79 in Duel county and the lowest was $9.76 in Brown county. Scottsbluff, Adams, Hall and Douglas were among those which paid higher than the state average and Dodge, Lincoln, Lancaster, and Madison were lower. Lancaster paid $13.28.

Obligations for all public aid in the state increased in October by $77,864 over September from $2,452,841 to $2,530,705, which included federal, state and local relief. Public aid receipients increased 6.3 percent, or 5,207.

DROP FOOD TO MAROONED

State Police Airplane Visits Hunters, CCC Camps.

AURORA, Me. (AP). A state police chartered airplane dropped food to snow marooned hunters and CCC youths in this northeastern Maine forest area while police, national guardsmen and game wardens battled snowdrifts in an effort to open travel lanes.

Thirty sacks of food were dropped to approximately 20 parties from the plane. They were among the 100 hunters and CCC youths reported cut off by huge drifts piled up by two blizzards since Thanksgiving day.

A second plane, sent out by the fish and game department, flew over a 20 mile area, and its pilot, Ned C. Hutchinson, reported spotting 18 hunting parties, most of them under canvas tents. He returned to Bangor and took off again with a load of food stuff to drop from the air. Two women, with their husbands, were among the isolated hunters reported living in tents.

Snowplows manned by rescue crews bit into heavy snowdrifts over a wide area, gradually releasing more than 100 persons.

CITY HALL NEWS

In consideration of an easement for drainage purposes and the waiving of right to appeal, the council Monday proposed to give to Sam Douglass materials in a service station which Douglass once owned and to refrain from building a drainage ditch between his land and the highway. The zone board of appeals had recommended local business classification for Douglass at 48th and Cornhusker for a service station.

The station he did operate in that vicinity was condemned by the city along with more than a half acre of land for the turn at 48th and Cornhusker. The condemnation court awarded him $5,750. He was dissatisfied and threatened to appeal to the district court. An easement was prepared by the legal department and properly signed permitting the city to cross a portion of the remainder of his land with a 20 foot drainage ditch.

The council also approved a resolution authorizing the legal department to proceed with condemnation of parts of three lots on the east side of 48th, south of the Burlington tracks, a narrow strip required in connection with underpass construction. The railroad will foot the bill.

A lease with the county was renewed for another year, same terms, giving the use of 20 acres in Oak Creek park next spring and summer, the land being west of 9th and south of Oak creek, for gardening purposes—for the raising of vegetables for needy people.

An ordinance, introduced on first reading, creates a paving district to include Bancroft street, 48th to 49th.

Contract awards were approved as follows: Two ton truck for commercial light department, chassis with closed cab, Lord Auto company, on Diamond T, $1,540 plus used truck; road maintainer for street department, J. D. Adams company, $2,123.85 plus used grader; two trucks for park department, Mowbray-Lyon company, $1,170 on Dodge, plus two used trucks; 100 western red cedar poles for water and light department, Western Electric Supply company, $1,022.

Application of George Klause for license to operate two domino tables at 1115 P was referred.

Also referred was request of the university board of regents for permit to cross 12th street in the construction of a conduit for chilled water to serve Administration hall.

The council was still considering the proposed amendment, pending for several weeks on final passage, adding lawyers and professional engineers to the list of those permitted to use their homes, under certain restrictions, for business and professional purposes.

NORTON WASN'T SURPRISED

Author Short Ballot Amendment Feared Would Lose.

John N. Norton, author of the short ballot amendment, asked as to his reaction to the vote on the amendment in the recent election said:

"I can't say that I was disappointed at the result since I had at no time during the campaign thought that the amendment would be adopted, much as I had hoped that it might be. Under the circumstances I am gratified at the consideration it did receive. I realize that it takes time and much educational effort to effect such a change, but I do feel that progress has been made and that the short ballot will be adopted eventually.

"For the present I would suggest that the next legislature resubmit that part of the amendment which relates to the election of state officers for four year terms, making them ineligible for re-election, and providing for staggering state and national elections so that the two would not occur at the same time. The amendment should apply to the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, state auditor and attorney general.

"I have discussed this proposition with some of the members of the next legislature and have found them favorable to it. They think as I do, that such an amendment would probably be adopted. In view of that situation I have every reason to believe that such a measure will be proposed, and that definite efforts will be made to have it submitted. The recall should be included as a part of the proposal.

"Of course, the legislature could go a step farther and include a provision for abolishing the office of lieutenant governor. The speaker of the legislature could serve as lieutenant governor, ex-officio. In that event the legislature would have a presiding officer of its own choosing. The change would effect a saving and would be in the direction of the short ballot. I realize that it might be undesirable to include such a provision at this time, and yet I have found considerable sentiment for it.

AVIATION GROUP MEETS

To Hold Ground School Course Monday Night.

Plans were made, at the first meeting Monday of the junior chamber's aviation committee, of the ground school course which will be held at 7:30 p. m. Monday at the chamber of commerce. Bill Brown, committee had, said that 35 are expected to attend the event, open to the public, which will be held under direction of I. V. Packard, secretary to the state aeronautics commission.

FEEDER LINES PROPOSED

Packard Discusses Air Mail Possibilities.

Secy. Packard of the state aeronautics commission is preparing to start a campaign to encourage organization of air mail feeder lines in this section of the country he announced Monday.

Beginning with an association in Nebraska, he hopes to interest chambers of commerce in larger towns and smaller cities thruout the state in the idea with a view to obtaining legislation to make the plan possible. Some of the cities mentioned in Nebraska included Norfolk, Hastings, Beatrice, McCook, Alliance, Chadron and Gordon.

The postoffice department, Packard said, has long been in favor of such a plan and would throw the weight of its influence behind the project. Packard said he will write to members of chambers of commerce in the various cities and also include cities in Kansas, South Dakota, Iowa, Wyoming and Colorado.

NORRIS SEES THIRD TERM

Says President to Run if Program Blocked.

WASHINGTON, (UP). Senator Norris predicted that President Roosevelt will be forced to run for a third term if his legislative program is blocked by congress.

Norris said that the November elections will have the effect of uniting progressives and "belittling the necessity of partisanship." "I think yet," he said, "that the president is popular with the people and at the present time there is no other man, in public life or out that could cope with him. What changes the next two or three years will develop I cannot say.

"The same voter who is for Roosevelt against anyone else will disregard his advice on voting for someone else. This was true also of Teddy Roosevelt, who tried the same thing and failed. But the man who thinks President Roosevelt has lost his grip on the American people has got another guess coming."

BOYS HELD IN CAR THEFTS

Charles Roper, 18, Said to Admit Several.

Police are holding Charles and Robert Roper, 18 and 16 respectively, of 1424 O st., in connection with a series of automobile thefts. Charles was said to have admitted the thefts. One of the cars, stolen last week from J. L. Welch of Omaha while it was parked at 2536 So. 20th in Lincoln, was driven out on O street and wrecked and abandoned about ten miles west of the city. Another, stolen from Dr. T. C. Moyer at his home, 2700 Stratford, was driven to Shelby, Charles said, and just after starting back he drove it into another car that had stopped to wait for a train, wrecking the Moyer car. He then appropriated the other car, drove it some distance and left it at a farm where he slept in a barn. He took the farmer's car and drove it back to Lincoln, where he abandoned it. He is also said to have admitted taking Herbert Gooch's car from its parking place at 18th and M.

BERRY FOUND GUILTY KIDNAP AND TORTURE

Life Imprisonment Recommended for Olympia Doctor and Associates

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP). Charges of "frameup" and promises of a grand jury investigation followed the conviction of Dr. Kent W. Berry and three others in the torture kidnaping of Irving Baker. The 50 year old doctor charged he was the victim of a frameup and said he would appeal his conviction on first degree kidnaping charges. He faces life imprisonment.

Dr. Berry allegedly plotted the kidnaping after accusing the 37 year old Baker, a former coast guard officer, of raping the physician's 27 year old wife following a party last July 4. Baker and numerous other defense witnesses contradicted the rape accusation and Trial Judge John Wilson refused to permit the jury to consider the "unwritten law" as a defense.

Convicted with Dr. Berry were William K. McAloon, a former town marshal; James Reddick, a taxicab driver, and Robert H. Smith, dairy farmer. All were held guilty of kidnaping, an offense punishable by death under Washington state law unless the jury specifies life imprisonment.

Dr. Berry, McAloon and Reddick also were held guilty of first degree assault, for which maximum punishment of 20 years in prison is prescribed. Smith was convicted of second degree assault, a ten year offense. It was said Smith might receive leniency because he allegedly dissuaded Dr. Berry from emasculating Baker.

The eight men and four women of the jury deliberated ten hours. They reported they took "many ballots." Judge Wilson said he would hear within two weeks a motion for a new trial.

NOT DEFENDER OF NAZIISM

Father Coughlin Objects to Such Interpretation.

DETROIT. (AP). The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin repeated in full his address last Sunday on the nazi persecution of Jews and asked his radio audience "to judge for itself whether the speech was either vicious or un-American."

"Following last Sunday's broadcast," said the Royal Oak (Mich.) priest, "a vicious campaign of misrepresentation, based upon fancy and not upon fact, has been carried on not only against me, but against the cause I represent." Father Coughlin added that "I am forced to defend myself, not for myself, but for the cause I uphold."

He described last Sunday's address as one "whose main objective was to point out the cause of all persecution — persecution of Christians as well as of Jews" and continued: "Admittedly, I did attack and will continue to attack the atheistic Jews and the atheistic gentiles and those who sustain them.

"But, as a matter of record, I will prove that actually I invited and still invite the non-communist, non-atheistic Jews, whom I respect and with whom I deeply sympathize, to join with me in combatting communism.

GRANGE REQUESTS FARM ACT REVISION

Equality of Opportunity Demanded and Fair Share of National Income.

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP). The executive committee of the national grange made public here its "platform for agriculture," calling for elevation of farm prices to the "reasonable profit" level, and revision of federal farm policies.

In a 15 point program evolved as the result of action taken at the recent national grange convention in Portland, Ore., the committee advocated "amendment and simplification" of the federal farm act, adoption of a monetary policy that will assure an honest measure of value of reasonable permanency and reorganization of government agencies "where efficiency or economy may be achieved."

It resolved to "permit no legislation to be adopted which will result in either immediate or eventual regimentation of the farmer" and voiced opposition to any "concentration of authority or infringement of state's rights."

Self Determination.

"We believe," said the platform, "in self determination by farmers, generally and in commodity groups, of their own program, and urge that in enactment of amendments to such legislation as the wages and hours law careful study be given to its effect upon agriculture."

One plank advocated a requirement that all trade treaties be subject to senate ratification and that opportunity be given for "study of their provisions." It also advocated the barring of farm commodity imports "if the net result adds to idle men or idle acreage or causes American products to be sold below cost of production."

60 Y LAYMEN HOLD RETREAT

S. S. Sidner, Fremont, Talks on Holy Land Sojourn.

Sixty laymen active in the Lincoln Y. M. C. A. program and various committee members met in a joint retreat Sunday afternoon seeking to co-ordinate various departmental activities. Reports on accomplishments of the Y during the past year were given, and recommendations for improvements in the program outlined.

Speaker at a dinner in the evening was S. S. Sidner, Fremont attorney and member of the Y. M. C. A. area board, who described a "religious pilgrimage" he made to the holy land last summer. Except for the Arab-Jewish strife, on which he said he didn't wish to comment, Sidner declared there appeared to be little change in Palestine from the time of Christ to the present.

"A traveler cannot visit Nazareth, Bethlehem, the Mount of Olives and Garden of Gethsemane without being conscious of the spirit of Christ," he said. Henry Grim, Y secretary, was in charge of the conference.

CHURCH YOUTH MEET HERE

Supt. Adams Speaks at Congregational Session.

Two hundred Congregational young people from Lincoln and neighboring towns attended a meeting at First Plymouth church Sunday afternoon and a dinner in the evening. Reports of national and state conferences, and discussion groups on various religious and social issues occupied the afternoon session.

In the evening, Supt. E. Merle Adams spoke to the group on the subject, "If I Were a Young Person in 1938." Succinctly stated, Mr. Adams' advice was divided into four main suggestions. "First, I would look about and see what was available for my help, namely, my home, school and church.

"Secondly, I would try to discover my motives and whatever they were worth. Then I would take a long look ahead and pick out some goal worthy of my life. Most important of all, I would try to keep a steady upward glance, to get help and inspiration."

Onetime Mayor of University Place to Live With Son.

TECUMSEH, Neb. (AP). Prof. W. H. Gardner, active in Nebraska educational circles 50 years, has gone to Denver to make his home with a son, John M. Gardner.

Professor Gardner was superintendent of schools at Wymore, Auburn, University Place and Tecumseh, and at one time was connected with the office of the state superintendent of public instruction at Lincoln. He is a former mayor of University Place.

BURNED AS STOVE EXPLODES

Pair, Not Injured Seriously, Trying to Light Burner.

Clarence Schmidt, 2373 O st., and Lloyd Jeffery, 1548 U st., suffered first degree burns on their hands and face Sunday afternoon when an oil burner they were attempting to light exploded at the D. O. Pettit home, 801 So. 36th st. The attending physician, who took them to Lincoln General hospital, said the burns were not serious.

Schmidt was lighting the burner and Jeffery was standing beside him when the explosion occurred. Letha Pettit, daughter of D. O. Pettit, was in the room at the time, but was uninjured.

The explosion did no damage to the stove or property in the room.

N. U. TEAMS WIN CROP, HOG JUDGING TROPHIES

60 Nebraska 4-H Clubbers in Chicago for National Livestock Show.

As 60 Nebraska 4-H boys and girls arrived at the International Livestock show in Chicago Sunday, the University of Nebraska crops and livestock judging teams had scooped up two first prizes.

The university's livestock team scored 477 points Sunday to win the American Berkshire association trophy for judging Berkshire hogs. Saturday night, the university crop judging team topped North Carolina state, Oklahoma A. & M., and Michigan State teams to take first in the intercollegiate competition.

The university team took second place in the collegiate livestock contest Sunday as Iowa State and Kansas State tied for first.

ROB SORORITY HOUSE.

Prowlers entered the Chi Omega sorority house on the University of Nebraska campus some time during Thanksgiving vacation and stole two radios and $8 in cash. Police reported that Mary Jane McMullen and Betty Flory each lost a radio, while Phyllis Jensen was robbed of two small banks containing $8 in pennies. Police said they could not find where the thieves entered the house.

RICHARD INCE KILLED.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP). Richard Ince, 23 year old son of the late Thomas H. Ince, pioneer Hollywood film producer, was injured fatally in a crash with two other motorcyclists in the 200 mile Pacific coast motorcycle championship race, won by Sam Arena of Watsonville. Young Ince, reputedly a millionaire in his own name, was thrown headlong against a fence.

SNATCHES PURSE.

A purse snatcher walked behind Phyllis Long, University of Nebraska sophomore from Grand Island, near 15th and S sts. Sunday evening and grabbed her handbag containing $1.50 in cash, keys and an identification card. The man, described to police as being six feet tall, heavy set and wearing a dark suit and coat, fled down an alley.

HEAR DR. HAUPT.

Dr. Charles Edgar Haupt of St. Paul, Minn., spoke on religion and its relation to life at the services of the St. Matthews Episcopal church Sunday morning. Dr. Haupt is the superintendent of the Breck school of religious training for boys at St. Paul.

FARM UNION HEAD HITS PRODUCTION SLASHING

Says Increased Purchasing Power Key to Problem of Midwest Farmer.

OMAHA. (AP). H. G. Keeney, president of the Nebraska farmers' union, asserted here Sunday the basic ailment of midwest agriculture is the low purchasing power of farm products in terms of manufactured articles.

The basic remedy, he said in an address before the Omaha Philosophical society, lies "not in a scarcity program — which has never worked in any country—nor in export subsidy programs, but in finding jobs for American workers."

Keeney said a recent warning to Nebraska and Iowa farmers issued by Prof. Shepherd L. Witman of the University of Omaha, was addressed to the wrong group.

Witman's statement, read to Keeney, asserted "if Europe pours its meager resources into war, it would have to borrow from us to pay for our farm goods. The United States is the source of credit, so American wheat will have to be paid for with American money—thus the old war debt problem again. Eventually this cost will have to be met thru taxation—which means that the farmer will pay for his own wheat."

Keeney declared farmers did not need the warning, adding "we also remember paying $7.50 a day to hired men who wore silk shirts, and trying to meet interest payments during depression years on mortgages based on land values inflated by the World war boom."

RUN OVER BY CAR.

SHELTON, Neb.—An automobile and a running gear on which a buzz saw was pulled from one place to another, passed over the body of L. F. Vacek at the O. M. Giles farm. Mr. Vacek's right leg was broken just above the ankle, and his left hip bone was crushed. He was brought to Shelton and then rushed to a Grand Island hospital. Vacek had gone around in front to crank the car, intending to back the machine a short distance. He turned the crank, and the car started forward, knocking him down against a fence and passing over him.

City real and personal taxes become delinquent Dec. 1, 1938, and will bear interest after that date. Payments made now prevent penalty charges.—Adv.

Henry Lehl was fined $15 and costs in municipal court Monday morning on entering a guilty plea to charges of petit larceny. The complaint charged Lehl with stealing lump coal valued at $1 50 from the Burlington railroad Nov. 26.

Suit of Fannie McHowan against Clarence McKinney for $3,000 damages went to trial to a jury in District Judge Chappell's court Monday. The suit grew out of an automobile collision March 9 on 23rd st. between F and G.

Suit of H. S. Hart for $975 damages against Francis V. Robinson, and suit for $1,000 by Robinson against Hart on a cross petition, went to trial to a jury in District Judge Shepherd's court Monday. The suits grew out of a collision Oct. 19, 1937 on highway No. 77 north of the city.

Howard Kirkpatrick, director of the University of Nebraska school of music, was speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Lincoln chapter, American Guild of Organists, at the University club Monday. Several of Mr. Kirkpatrick's compositions were sung by a mixed quartet composed of Mrs. Altinus Tullis, Mrs. Mary Shockey, Ruben Walt and E. C. Boehmer.

Hearing was held by the railway commission on the objections of the Yellow Cab company of York to the transfer by Kirkland Jack Calkins to the R. A. Fate Motor company of his rights to operate a taxicab. Involved also is the question of whether Calkins has a certificate, he having failed to provide insurance until the certificate was issued.

Under a rule, effective about six months ago, temporary postal employes as well as regulars must certify as to their citizenship before being employed. About 200 extras will be employed by the Lincoln postoffice during the Christmas rush. All must be citizens of the United States. The rule did not effect any of the 250 regular employes who all are citizens.

The case of Delberta Wilson, 11, by her mother, Della Wilson, against Howard Enslow and Charles C. Enslow for $10,000 damages went to trial to a jury in District Judge Broady's court Monday. The girl was injured May 8, 1937, when a car driven by Charles C. Enslow and belonging to Howard Enslow ran into her at 13th and B. Defendants deny negligence.

Supt. Charles W. Taylor, of the department of public instruction is attending the national convention of state education superintendents this week at Indianapolis. Particular interest has been shown thruout the country in the subject of national or federal support for public education and this will be one of the chief subjects discussed at the convention, Deputy Charles Dienst said.

Sheriff Davis paid $4,416 22 to County Treasurer Berg Monday, the second payment from collections in 1937 delinquent personal tax warrants. Time for payment of delinquent taxes under legislative bill No. 1 expired Dec. 31, after which time all interest accumulated before this bill was enacted is again added to the original amount. To avoid payment of the interest delinquencies must be paid before that date.

A "successful" duck and goose hunting season closes Monday, Secy. O'Connell of the state game, forestation and parks commission pointed out. The duck shooting was somewhat curtailed in parts of the state by the warm weather in the early part of the season and by the unseasonable freezing weather shortly after but the goose hunting was the best it had been in years, according to O'Connell.

Official tabulation of the vote will be announced Tuesday, the state canvassing board, which met Monday, announced after convening. Three members of the board were defeated—State Treasurer Jensen, State Auditor Price and Atty. Gen. Hunter. Other members are Gov. Cochran and Secretary of State Swanson. Certificates of election are being prepared and will be sent to winning candidates later this week.

Hearing will be held at Norfolk, Dec. 19 at 9 a. m. by the railway commission on the application of the Northwestern railway company for authority to discontinue passenger trains 511 and 522 between Scribner and Oakdale. Commissioner Maupin will sit in the case, and the same day will hear the request to substitute a custodian at Verdel. He will also hear at McCook on Dec. 15 the application of the Burlington to revise service on the line between Imperial and Culbertson, once denied with a proviso that application might later be renewed. On Jan 16 the commission will hear at Lincoln application of the Northwestern to substitute a custodian at Kennard. Two continuances were noted. Application of the Central States Motor Carriers association to establish commodity rates on building and fencing material was continued until Jan. 12 from Dec. 12, and of the Highway Motor Freight, Inc., for extension of operations from Nov. 25 to Dec. 3. Homer I. Kimberly of Wallace was granted a grain warehouseman's license.

Hearing was held at the offices of the railway commission Monday on the application of the Barnes Transfer company of Fairbury for authority to extend trucking operations from Fairbury into various parts of northeast Kansas. Seven wholesale houses of Fairbury backed the application on the ground that present transportation facilities were inadequate. Objections were filed by the Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and other railroads. Examiner Dawson of the interstate commerce commission and Commissioner McCullough sat in the case, Commissioner Maupin being absent.

Standard Auto Parts company of Lincoln appealed Monday to the supreme court from the action of the district court in affirming a finding that Charles Lowder was entitled to $12 a week for not to exceed 300 weeks for temporary total disability resulting from an injury suffered while at work. The company says his present condition is due to a tubercular affection acquired in the World war, for which the government paid him $45 a month. Lowder says this was arrested by treatment, but that the injury lighted it up. The district court said there was much contradictory evidence, but sufficient to sustain the finding of the compensation court.

Business men of Lanham, Gage county, petitioned the railway commission Monday to rescind its action in allowing the Burlington to substitute a custodian for an agent. They said they had been unfairly treated in that they had been given no opportunity to appear. They said the agent had been restored for but a short time recently, they had no opportunity to acquaint the people with the advantages of rail transportation; the wage and hour law was curtailing truck operations, and in due time the railroad will regain all lost business. It is pointed out that the railroad will lose good will by its act, and that there "will be no one to solicit for the railroad and no one to advertise or acquaint the people with the happenings in and about railroading."

A. C. Nelsen, Omaha automobile dealer, appeared before Administrator Tilley Monday to answer charges of selling a new automobile without being enfranchized to sell that particular make of car. The particular deal involved a car which it is alleged had been transferred from a Beatrice finance company and a Beatrice car sales company to Nelsen. The car was one of 55 that had been repossessed by the finance company and sold to the Beatrice car firm. It was transferred jointly to Nelsen. The state says Nelsen attempted to bring dealer from Council Bluffs into the transaction. The head bookkeeper of the Nelson Sales company testified she had notarized the bill of sale with the Council Bluffs dealer's name on it and that he was not present at the time. The hearing was to continue thru the afternoon.

Attorneys for the ten material men who hold unpaid claims totaling $6,271 against the Central Bridge & Construction company of Wahoo asked the supreme court Monday to affirm the judgment of the district court of Dakota county that they were entitled to preferences in that sum over the First National bank of Wahoo, which holds an assignment of the interest of the bridge company in claims totaling $12,157. The bank had appealed on the ground that the material men had notice of its lien by the records, and that they furnished goods on the credit of the contractor. The material men say equity gives them first lien. The bridge company failed before the contract was completed, and B. O. Dorn, a joint partner, finished it. He joins with the material men in asking that the assets of the partnership be applied first to payment of their bills.

worked with and for him. He has the air of giving opinions on art matters which are good, rather than the patter that just too often sounds good.

He declined to say whether the dinner party crowd, which has been his bread and butter, bores him.

He says a good writer is not necessarily New York born, even a good writer for the sophisticated Nast publications.

"They give me credit for launching such careers as Benchley's, Parker's, and Woollcott's, along with others like Robert Sherwood, P. G. Wodehouse, and the like. Truth is," he declares, "that I just happened to start a publication which used the kind of material they wrote, but for which there had been no previous market."

Top writing salary has until recently been $150 a week with the Nast company, he said, but now approaches $200. In this manner, Crowninshield says the office always has about 4 or 5 bright people on the staff, who are just on the way to bigger things to the loss of the publications.

"We give them limbering-up exercises," he said searches for Jews in the nazi dominated free city of Danzig.

Six brusque words by Prime Minister Chamberlain left no doubt that Britain has not committed herself to send an expeditionary force to France in case of war. Asked in parliament whether that had been a result of his recent visit to Paris, Chamberlain replied, "The answer is in the negative."

Broad hints were dropped in England that Chamberlain would try again to find appeasement for Europe.

In Japan munitions makers were exhorted to expand their industries.

French war veterans stepped in between Premier Daladier, firmly trying to hold the nation behind his plan to rebuild France's finances, and labor, angrily fighting to preserve the 40 hour week.

Warning of results that might "compromise the security of the nation," the war veterans urged the premier to try to calm aroused passions and labor to call off a general strike announced for Wednesday.

Chamberlain was understood to have decided to go to Rome about the end of January in an effort to win Premier Mussolini's favor for his plan for European appeasement, hoping that il duce would sway Reichsfuehrer Hitler also to support it.

In Tokyo, Lieut-Gen. Eiki Tojo, vice minister of war, warned munitions makers that "Japan must have sufficient armaments to fight a vast war on two fronts." He declared that the United States does not recognize "the changed situation in the Far East" and that a conflict between Japan and soviet Russia "apparently is inevitable."

Pope Pius XI, despite his 81 years and faltering heart, continued his amazing recovery from his seizure Friday. Again he rose from bed, took part in prayers in his chapel and attended to official duties.

In Spain insurgents went over the top in a surprise offensive in the Nules sector, resuming the long dormant push toward Valencia. Government advices, however, said the attack was repulsed in bitter hand tod hand fighting.

Chinese, asserting they still were blocking the Japanese spread from Hankow, China's captured provisional capital, declared they had inflicted heavy damage on Japanese arsenals and munitions plants in China thru fires and explosions.

Germany's standard annual on naval affairs, Nauticus, 1939, just placed on the bookstands, makes the assertion that Japan is building two battleships of 40,000 to 45,000 tons. It states Japan not only is reinforcing her naval bases in the Far East but is pushing new ones "as far as possible into mandated regions in the south and southeast."

buildings and $500,000 for sewers over that period. The building warrants will be practically wiped out this fiscal year, there being but $27,000 outstanding on Oct. 1. The building program included the new city building at 10th and Q and other structural improvements.

Wants City Contribute.

One complaint was registered Monday as the council considered assessment resolutions, assessments to be equalized Dec. 5 and 6 with these improvements involved:

Water district 150, 28th, Laurel to Sherman, Laurel, 27th to 29th; 27th, Woodsdale to Sherman, total cost $3,903.44.

Water 151, 42nd, Hillside north and Hillside, 42nd to 44th, total cost $1,596.07.

Sewer 350, Mohawk to C and 37th street east, total cost $525.94.

Sewer 351, Laurel, 27th to 29th; 27th and 28th, Laurel to Sherman, total cost $1,324.10.

Sewer 353 St. Paul to Madison, 59th to 60th, total cost $354.58.

Clifford M. Hicks, owner of two lots within water district No. 150 and sewer district No. 351, filed protest against proposed assessments. He charges that it is unfair and unreasonable to assess the entire costs in the manner shown without a contribution from the city for benefits not bestowed upon properties listed. Allowance of costs for relaying mains on 27th, Jackson to High, he says, is not a proper charge to district No. 150 since the work is not for the exclusive benefit of the district. Proposed benefits, he says, are available for servicing properties on the west side of 27th, High to Sherman. The city, he alleges, should contribute.

BURGLARS GET $85 IN CASH

Burglars entered the C. F. Baughan pharmacy, 3298 Holdrege, during Sunday night and robbed the cash register and a cash box of $85 in currency, police said Monday morning. Mr. Baughan indicated nothing else had been disturbed. The thieves had entered the store by removing the fornt door glass. The glass was replaced after the burglary. From the cash register $40 was taken and $45 from a small box under the counter. Baughan fixed the time of the robbery between 11 p. m. Sunday and 7:30 a. m. Monday, when he discovered the loss.

incumbent Representative Lanzetta, a democrat.

Baron resigned from the socialist party, he said, in order to appear before the Dies committee as an individual. He contended neither the American Civil Liberties union, nor Roger N. Baldwin, its head, were carrying out the communist party "line" in the United States. Dies said the committee had documentary evidence to the contrary and cited a Harvard university classbook of 1935 which he said contained this statement by Baldwin: "My chief aversion is the system of greed, private profit, privilege, and violence which makes up the control of the world today, and which has brought it to the tragic crisis of unprecedented hunger and unemployment. I see social ownership of property, the abolition of the propertied class, and sole control of those who produce wealth. Communism is the goal."

Dies told reporters the committee was not interested in obtaining testimony from Gypsy Rose Lee, former burlesque star, "about communist activities in Hollywood. The committee has asked several persons from the coast to testify in a few days including Detective Captain John J. Keegan of Portland, Ore. It was understood that Keegan's testimony would concern Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. leader.

Dies read into the record extracts from what he described as galley proofs for WPA state guide books for New Jersey and Montana. He has said that government officials had testified secretly that the guide books gave evidence of communistic influence.

Dies said he would ask the new house to give his committee $200,000 to continue its investigations for two years.

the conference on industrial mobilization was the first of its kind nationally and would be attended by procurement planning specialists of the army, navy and marine corps. They are the men responsible for detailed arrangements to obtain munitions and supplies.

Complete even to contract forms to avoid confusion and delay, the "M-day" (mobilization day) procurement plans have been in preparation singe the World war. They include the specific functions to be performed by about 10,000 plants.

NEW YORK. (AP) A plan for training 100,000 civilian pilots and 125,000 mechanics at government expense during the next five years to buttress the national air defense has been agreed upon by the army air corps and the civil aeronautics authority.

It must hurdle the scrutiny of President Roosevelt, to whom the scheme is scheduled to be presented late this week, and obtain the approval of the new congress meeting in January before it could become effective.

It would give the United States an air force reserve numerically approximating that which Germany is reliably reported to have at the present time.

Paul Fidler of Melrose, Mont., was third high man in the entire contest, falling only four points behind the winner of first place. Tom King, Albion, placed fourth on hogs; Edward Zahm, Spalding, fifth on cattle, and James Sanders, Lindsay, seventh on hogs. The Nebraska team placed first on hogs, winning the Berkshire trophy.

The team's high ranking at Chicago followed a second place this fall at the National Belgian horse show at Waterloo, Ia., and first place at the American Royal at Kansas City.

David McGill, Waverly, junior at the college of agriculture, won top individual honor in the intercolleglate crops contest at Chicago while the entire team was repeating Nebraska's 1937 victory. With 12 teams entered, Nebraska placed first, North Carolina second and Oklahoma third. Nebraska placed first in grading and identification, and second in judging.

Harold Schudel, North Loup, was third high in the entire contest, and Rundall Peterson, Grant, sixth. In the separate divisions, McGill placed first individually in judging and second in grading. Peterson was first in grading and identification. The team's victory carried with it a silver trophy, gold medals, and a $100 scholarship. McGill received a gold medal with diamond inset.

CURRY AGAIN CORN KING

Tipton, Ind., Man Wins Third Successive Title.

CHICAGO. (AP) William H. Curry of Tipton, Ind., was named 1938 "corn king" at the international grain and hay show. It was Curry's third successive title. He showed a sample of ten years of Reid's yellow dent.

The title of corn prince, the premier award to junior corn growers, went to Richard B. Blackwell, Franklin, Ind., who also showed a sample of Reid's yellow dent. Blackwell is a student at Depauw university.

Runner up to Curry with the reserve corn championship was Peter J. Lux, of Shelbyville, Ind., a four time corn king in past years.

F. D. R. RESUMES PARLEY

WARM SPRINGS, Ga. (AP). President Roosevelt resumed his conference on European oppressed minorities at luncheon with the ambassador to Germany and Italy. The group met at the "little white house" on Pine mountain after the diplomats—Hugh R. Wilson and William Phillips, envoys respectively to Berlin and Rome—had refreshed themselves with a motor ride.

They were called back after a four hour conference Sunday night. There were no official announcements following this meeting.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS—ACHES

It takes more than "just a salve" to bring speedy relief. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old soothing, warming Musterole to penetrate the surface skin and help to quickly relieve the painful local congestion and aches due to colds.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly.

Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong, 40¢. All druggists.

"Dedicated to the people of Nebraska and to the development of the resources of the state."—Sept. 1, 1867.

There is no place like Nebraska.

TAXPAYER MEETING.

The Nebraska Federation of County Taxpayer's leagues will hold a two day session at Fremont next week. At that meeting many phases of state, county, school and municipal government will be discussed. Those in charge of the meeting have made an effort to secure the attendance of a large number of members of the coming legislature. Every member has been invited and an afternoon program has been devoted to the matter of legislation. Senator A. L. Miller will be the presiding officer for that meeting and every member of the coming legislature will be given an opportunity to be heard briefly. Each will be asked to give his views on any subject pertaining to good government and taxation. A number of members of the legislature are on other programs as well.

This organization has been giving a careful study to the matters of state and county government. Efforts have been directed toward making the people of the state tax conscious. It is held that a tax conscious citizenry will result in elimination of many unnecessary costs of government. The association has made a survey of government costs in a number of counties and these surveys have resulted in giving to the people some striking contrasts.

Good results should follow any careful study of government. Waste in government adds to the taxpayer's bill. Economy in government should make unnecessary additional tax sources. The work of this Nebraska association has given the state a great deal of wholesome advertising. It is notice to the world that our people are tax conscious and will not long tolerate waste of tax funds. It has brought home to the people in a number of counties information concerning waste of public funds and maladministration of public affairs. So long as the organization works effectively for the taxpayer and the cause of good government it should prosper. The Fremont meeting should call out a representative attendance of public spirited citizens. Their efforts toward improving the government the state now has will benefit every citizen.

It is fitting that the association should meet prior to the gathering in Lincoln of the legislators. Those members of the unicameral who attend will be given advance notice of the desires and economy mindedness of the people of the state.

THERE IS WISCONSIN.

An object lesson that should not be lost on those democrats and republicans who have been urging coalition for the purpose of retiring the new deal leadership is to be found in an analysis of the recent election which resulted in the defeat of a La Follette for the first time in 48 years. In the past most of the La Follette victories have come about thru the unity of their progressive followers and the division of the opposition. While a democrat insisted on running for governor despite the compact apparently made by the party leaders to support the republican nominee, the compact held and elected the republican by nearly 180,000 over Phil La Follette, running for a fourth term.

The republican nominee received 521,000 votes, La Follette 337,000, and the democrat 75,000, representing a large decrease in the progressive vote. Gov. La Follette's run was being made for the purpose of keeping him in the limelight in 1940, when it may be necessary, because of an anti-Roosevelt victory within the democratic ranks when the time for naming a president rolls around, to launch a third party. La Follette's lightning rod consisted of a brand new third party. His smashing defeat as well as that of those who ran with him is generally ascribed to the change in public sentiment toward government managed from above.

While the result in Wisconsin will not discourage La Follette from pushing his national progressive party, its goose seems to be cooked thus far in advance of 1940. He may do a lot of whistling against the wind, but the wind this year was strong and pointed in one general direction—and that is not the direction in which La Follette is going. If anything more than the Wisconsin result needs be cited there is the debacle in Minnesota, where the farmer-labor coalition fell to pieces, and was followed soon after by John L. Lewis' statement that C. I. O. would continue to follow Roosevelt.

It is not possible to keep men from running for office on their own party ticket, but it is possible, as Wisconsin has shown, for a practical coalition to be formed which will enable the voters accurately to represent their wishes.

CURBING PRIMARY FILINGS.

In several communications to The Public Mind, J. C. Moore of Lincoln has defended the primary system. He regards attempts to modify this system as serious attacks on a reform.

And yet he will admit that it has some drawbacks. He will admit that the primary ballot is too long in many instances, thus making for the confusion of the voters and giving a familiar name an advantage over a less known name which may be possessed by a man of superior ability.

As a remedy, Mr. Moore would increase the filing fee for primary candidates. In the case of sheriff, for instance, he would charge $100. Mr. Moore's suggestion, if put in effect, would shorten the ballot. A high filing fee would keep men from filing who would otherwise offer their names at the primary. And yet, while shortening the ballot is desirable, the method is objectionable.

The requirement of a high filing fee is not in keeping with the spirit of democracy. It bars men who are not in a position to risk any such sum as $100 and creates an opportunity for men who are less qualified but who may have the cash ready to plunge on a venture of this kind.

The placement of a monetary bar in the way of filing is undemocratic. Any bar which is so high that it discourages filing by worthy citizens is too high.

There must be some other and better method of discouraging men from seeking office. One suggestion calls for a petition containing signatures of a substantial portion of the population as a pre-filing requirement. That device would be no bar to the man with money who could employ petition circulators. Yet it would not completely bar the man without funds for he could circulate his own petitions if anxious to run.

It is imperative that the best men for the office be induced to run. Possession of money is not a necessary qualification. Any monetary bar is entirely inappropriate.

Secy. Woodring is not quite as ambitious in a military way as some of the other administration leaders. He indicates that he will be content with an increase in the size of the army and the making impregnable of the Panama Canal zone. Woodring has not mentioned any such project as the defense of the whole western hemisphere. He leaves that for other administration spokesmen. He does feel great concern for the canal and would go to great lengths to make it safe. Woodring's recommendations alone are not so discouraging, but the sum total of all the suggestions made by various executive officers becomes a staggering military program.

While Father Coughlin was denied the air by a New York radio station there was no censorship involved. The radio priest had failed to meet a requirement placed upon him by the station for its own protection. Because of misstatements contained in his address last week, the station demanded the submission of a script by Sunday noon. The priest failed to comply and was denied the air. From one point of view this may be considered to be censorship, yet it is a process that goes on continually and must go on if the public is to be protected.

A New Yorker who was engaged in a night club brawl was beaten into unconsciousness. He suffered internal injuries and a possible skull fracture. And yet when he recovers, if he does, he will face charges of felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan (firearms possession) law. It is hard to feel sorry for him in spite of the drastic treatment he has received. If he had not carried a gun he might not have been so eager to engage in the brawl and he certainly would not have wounded a man dangerously.

Pope Pius has made a prompt and striking recovery. A heart attack seriously threatened his life late last week, but by Sunday he was able to walk unaided and meet a group of pilgrims. At 81 he cannot expect to recover perfect health. His recovery, such as it is, however, has been remarkable.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL.

Grain men say that the recent plan of the government to loan 57 cents a bushel on sealed corn offers an opportunity for a pretty safe speculation. The tenant farmer can purchase his landlord's corn where the farm is eligible and also other eligible corn within limits approved by the local committee, and seal it with his own. If the price goes down the government takes the corn and if it goes up he takes the profit. The administration is advising farmers to seal all of their corn but what they need for feed at prices much below the 57 cents guaranteed. Outside the commercial area, meaning western Nebraska, loans are but 43 cents.

C. W. Eubank is chairman of the state board of control. Dr. D. G. Griffiths was superintendent of the state hospital at Lincoln. Dr. Griffiths has resigned. "Mr. Eubank and myself couldn't agree on the matter of policy, that's all," is the superintendent's reason for resigning. The hospital is a state institution. Its conduct is a matter of public concern. The public should be given more adequate information concerning this change than the superintendent's cryptic statement contains. It is not the part of wisdom to permit the public to guess about such matters. A clean cut statement concerning the disagreement might be the best explanation.

W. C. Condit, former state sheriff and Lincoln police chief, has been checking up on sheriffs elected in Nebraska counties at the recent election. He finds 62 sheriffs reported are republicans and 30 are democrats. One county has yet to report its selection.

A young Lincoln matron, who says her mind was pretty much centered upon a Thanksgiving dinner at her home, hurried into a downtown store. She had in mind to add to her costume one of the silk flowers which the ladies wear quite generally just now. She waited on herself and looked the stock of these over hastily. She spied one that suited her taste. She took this to the clerk, holding it in place against her street coat as she wanted to get the effect. When she had the clerk's attention she asked, "How much is this flower?" The clerk diplomatically said, with a quiet smile, "Oh! I am so glad you like that hat. I like it too." The flower and/or hat went back to the counter, and the young matron hurried home.

Some idea of the high cost of insect pest destruction was brought out in a talk between two Lancaster county farmers recently. One man was about to move away to another farm. He had planted 40 acres to fall wheat. This he sought to sell to a neighbor. No difficulty was found in agreeing on the value of the newly planted wheat per acre, but a casual viewing of the tract revealed that a strip, varying from a few feet to a few rods in width entirely around the field, had been "taken" by grasshoppers. In discussing this phase of the deal, the farmers decided that the grasshopper damage had already amounted to five acres. This means that almost as quickly as the new wheat was planted one-eighth of the crop was destroyed by these pests. The crop must pass thru the winter and into the next growing season. The new crop of grasshoppers of 1939 will demand a part of the crop. What that damage will be depends upon a number of conditions, which cannot be predicted. It is quite possible that grasshoppers will take quite as much of the crop as the landlord's share. Grasshoppers are not taxpayers.

Not long ago Senator Nye expressed dissatisfaction with present methods of fighting grasshoppers. He referred to poison bran as expensive and not as effective as the prevalence of hoppers demands. Bran has been used in Nebraska with varying success. It is costly and unless applied at the right time and in the right manner is not effective. Senator Nye suggested the propagation of insect eating birds and expressed the belief that greater progress toward killing off insects would be accomplished in that way.

Beet harvest in the North Platte valley is over, and growers estimate that gross revenue per acre this year will reach $88.89, including government bounty of $27.37, the beet sugar company contributing $61.62 an acre. This compares with $107.55 gross for last year. Labor costs were $1 a ton more this year, reaching $25.50 per acre, or 28.7 percent of the gross revenue. The latter will probably be increased as the initial payment of the beet factory of $4 a ton is all that is included in the amount given. Later payments depend largely on the sugar market. A drop in sugar content this year is one of the factors in reducing gross revenues.

FOOTNOTES.

Missouri's fight against trachoma has taken a new turn with the breaking of ground here for a modern trachoma hospital—the first state owned institution in the United States for the exclusive treatment of what has been termed "the worst world scourge among eye diseases," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The hospital will be a new and powerful weapon in the campaign against the disease and headquarters for an offensive which may lead to arresting all active cases in the state within ten years, says Dr. James E. Smith, superintendent. The building, which will cost about $137,000, financed by state and federal funds, will more than double the capacity of the present hospital, a remodeled frame residence acquired in 1923 by the United States public health service, which made it the center of trachoma research in the United States.

Trachoma is an infectious disease of the inside of the eyelid and the cornea which shuts off the cornea with opaque scar tissue. It causes total blindness in about one case in 27 in Missouri. It is responsible for more blindness than any other single cause. Immediate sensations are a stinging eye, excessive secretions often causing the eyelashes to be "stuck" in the morning, lowered resistance of the eye, increased sensitiveness until the victim flinches from the light, is unable to bear even normal daylight. The typical patient, Dr. Smith pointed out, usually thinks he merely has something in his eye. He rubs it and increases the infection. The woodsman complains of "dust" in his eye, the farmer may think that some chaff affected his eye while thrashing; some of those in communities where the disease is common regard it as inescapable, one of the vicissitudes of life.

Much of the work against the spread of trachoma and to curb the active cases is educational. The educational process is extremely difficult. Ignorance and suspicion are the allies of trachoma. It takes an average of three visits by a field nurse to induce most sufferers to go to the hospital for treatment. Once treated, however, the average patient becomes a warm advocate, and brings in others, even some unfortunately suffering from eye diseases not dealt with at the trachoma center. The hospital, for Missouri citizens only, will be one of the two principal centers for the treatment of trachoma in the United States and the largest west of the Mississippi river. The only comparable institution, Dr. Smith said, is at Richmond, Ky., where the state operates a hospital lent by a medical society.

The most advanced and virulent trachoma cases among white persons in the country are found in Missouri and Kentucky. Dr. Smith said he has received scores of letters from trachoma sufferers in Arkansas, but is unable to treat them, and he does not know of any facilities for their care in that state.

Trachoma originated in Egypt before Biblical times, he related; spread to southern Europe during the Napoleonic campaigns, and then appeared in this country. It is not hereditary, he added, and has no connection with any other disease. It is a specialized ailment requiring specialized care and one which challenges participants in the field of preventive medicine.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

Q. What is the story of the Holy Ghost orchid in Mexico?

A. Natural History says: "The Spanish friars who came to Mexico found a strange, exquisite, magnolia like blossom with which they were able to illustrate a point in their teaching. In a terrestrial orchid of alabaster whiteness, from which there drifted a heavy, compelling fragrance, lay the snow white image of a dove. "Espiritu Santo!" exclaimed the first priest who saw it. He called it the Dove of God, the visual form of the Holy Ghost. In their teachings, the Spanish priests use the dove orchid to illustrate the miracle of the Holy Ghost. The Indians ever since have regarded the flower with unwavering devotion.

Q. Do motion pictures rank among the largest industries in the country?

A. The motion picture industry ranks fourth in the large industries and represents a two billion dollar investment.

Q. How many accidents occurred in homes last year?

A. The national safety council reported 28,000 in 1937.

Q. At what age can a man obtain a position in the secret service division of the U. S. treasury department?

A. The age range of applicants is from 25 to 35 years. All permanent employes of the secret service must pass civil service examinations and applicants must have had at least two years active and recent experience in the field of criminal investigation.

Q. What does the mark of the Indian Arts and Crafts board mean on a piece of Indian silver?

A. This mark was created to preserve and to encourage the production of only that silver which in style as well as in workmanship carries out the very best of the tribal tradition and therefore expresses the sense of beauty and the individuality of its Indian maker.

DAVID LAWRENCE.

WASHINGTON.—Altho the new dealers are often twitted by the conservatives for being inconsistent, the occasion will soon present itself when the new dealers may be able to question the sincerity and consistency of the conservatives. Such an interrogation will grow out of the fight about to be made in the U. S. senate to reject the nomination of Donald Wakefield Smith for a second term as a member of the national labor relations board.

While the American Federation of Labor has started the controversy and announced at the Houston convention recently that it would line up its forces in the senate against approval of the nomination, many conservatives who dislike the labor board and its decisions are preparing to go along with the A. F. of L.

The objections of the A. F. of L. to Mr. Smith's reappointment are not personal, but impersonal. They relate to his decisions and rulings, which, it is contended, are unfavorable to the A. F. of L. and favorable to the C. I. O. No one has suggested that Mr. Smith is not conscientious in the discharge of his duty or honest in his convictions as to how the Wagner act shall be construed. The whole case against him admittedly is that the A. F. of L. doesn't like his formal opinions.

But Mr. Roosevelt didn't like the opinions of certain justices of the supreme court, and the main reason why his "packing" bill was beaten was because it was insisted persuasively by friends of constitutional government that judges should not be changed just because a president didn't like their decisions. The members of the national labor relations board are virtually judicial officers. To threaten their removal because their decisions are disliked by one pressure group is to introduce the political factor. For, if members of government boards and commissions feel they must keep a weather eye on what the special groups think of their decisions lest they find themselves thrown out of their jobs by the political influence of these groups in the senate, then independent judgment by these board members will become a practical impossibility and confidence in the fairness of the decisions will be questioned by the public.

The principle underlying the attack on the reappointment of Mr. Smith is just the same as the effort to make court judges conform to group pressure. Thus, the American Federation of Labor is consistent in opposing Mr. Smith because the A. F. of L. has for years attacked certain justices of the supreme court for their labor decisions and lately the C. I. O. has adopted the same tactics. These labor groups have a political conception of the duties of a federal judge or of a member of a quasi-judicial commission.

But, while the labor groups are insistent that public officers permit "public sentiment" or other politically derived factors to govern their decisions and rulings on points of law, the conservatives inside and outside congress have never championed that point of view. That is why they will be confronted with a serious dilemma if they join in the fight against confirmation of Mr. Smith's appointment. Undoubtedly, many of them will use the controversy as a means of opening up a discussion by congress of the whole operation and administration of the Wagner act, but this is attempting by indirection to do something which, if it is done at all, might be justified only if it is a direct effort by a committee to study necessary amendments in the provisions of the law itself. But this has nothing to do with Mr. Smith's capacity to serve as a member of the labor board.

Much prejudice has been built up against the members of the national labor relations board on the ground that they are biased in behalf of labor, but it is a noteworthy fact that a proportion of nine out of ten decisions of the board have been upheld by the U. S. circuit court of appeals. The truth of the matter is that many opponents of the Wagner act do not recognize plainly that their real objection is to what congress did in writing the terms of the law rather than to the men who are conscientiously trying to administer the law as it was given them by congress.

The case of the Smith appointment to a second term on the labor board may furnish a precedent of far reaching importance. If a coalition of conservatives on the democratic side and republicans should be formed to defeat Mr. Smith, it will be a strange corroboration of the much denounced theory of President Roosevelt who removed a member of the federal trade commission, the late William E. Humphrey, because, as the president wrote frankly, the viewpoint of the commissioner "did not go along with" the mind of the chief executive.

Mr. Roosevelt's contention was repudiated by a unanimous opinion of the nine justices of the supreme court of the United States and the entire conservative group in America applauded heartily. Will they now reverse themselves when the A. F. of L. or any other organization insists that Mr. Smith must be removed because his mind "does not go along with" the pressure groups? This is the question which the forthcoming controversy over the Smith nomination will raise, and it will be interesting to see how the "friends of constitutional government" line up on the issue.

DR. BRADY'S HEALTH TALK.

Valvular Incompetence.

Provided the heart itself, consisting mainly of involuntary muscle, is well nourished, that is, has an unhampered supply of blood thru the coronary arteries, and the blood brings the quantity and quality of nutriment required, notably, among other essentials, sufficient vitamin B complex and vitamin D, its functional efficiency or competence to maintain good circulation under varying circumstances of rest, work, play or strain, will depend upon the state of the heart valves.

It is not perversity nor a desire to make the problem more difficult that causes me to inject the vitamin B into a talk about heart efficiency. Whether there is a valvular lesion or leakage, or not, recent observations by good clinicians in large hospital wards have proved that habitual or prolonged deficiency of vitamin B complex and sunshine vitamin D must be considered a factor in the crippling of the patient by loss of heart efficiency in the majority of cases. Patients who are compelled to give up work and spend many weeks in bed or at rest because of dilated heart or decompensation or impairment of the capacity of the heart to maintain adequate circulation, recuperate in considerably shorter time and recover fitness to work if they receive extra large rations of vitamin B complex and sunshine vitamin D during disability. By the same token, any one whose heart is so handicapped, is less likely to suffer from such loss of compensation or from cardiac dilation, if he or she gets enough of these vitamin every day.

In order to understand what valvular disease or incompetence or leakage means one must know that there are four chambers in the heart. These chambers are, as the blood circulates, first the left auricle into which freshly oxygenated or purified blood comes thru the large pulmonary veins from the lungs. From the left auricle the blood passes thru the mitral valve into the left ventricle during diastole in the interval between the contractions or beats of the heart. When the heart beats, the mitral valve closes, preventing return of blood from the ventricle, and the blood is pumped out into the great artery or aorta thru the aortic valve. Following this contraction or systole, during the rest interval between contractions or diastole, the aortic valve is closed so no blood can return to the ventricle from the aorta, but instead the elasticity of the great artery propels the blood along thru the smaller arteries. Eventually the blood reaches the smallest arteries, called arterioles, visible only thru microscope. Then it passes into the capillary spaces—not vessels, mere spaces between the cells; the blood on the tissues, where interchanges of oxygen and carbon dioxide occur, is no longer in blood vessels, but rather is seeping thru the tissue substance as water seeps thru sand.

THE PUBLIC MIND.

Says Teachers Should Not Ask to be Pensioned.

LINCOLN.—I am sorry our legislature must again face pensions for teachers. Why are teachers entitled to pensions any more than many other classes serving faithfully in their lines? The faithful physician, the dentist, the carpenter, the farm laborer and many others have no pensions in sight and are not asking for any. The teacher is better paid than the average worker. They can buy endowment insurance, make investments and otherwise provide for old age. Oh, I know their standard arguments as to the good they are doing, etc. Every worker, employed or not should try to give good service and not expect special favors for it.

It is likely that very few teachers pay any taxes. The average married citizen cannot hide his meager amount of property and is taxed the limit and chiefly for the schools. The worker in mercantile lines puts in longer hours and six days in the week and for smaller pay.

Our teaching force is largely made up of young women just out of college and devoting a few years to teaching before settling down to married life. I spent 20 years as a teacher and know something of the schools. Our schools have become very expensive and taxpayers are in no mood for the adoption of further burdens.

There seems to be a clamor for old age security even tho it bankrupts the present generation. Therefore I am opposed to any $200 a month plan, $30 a week or any other such plan. The millions that are drained from our state into the national treasury each year and then used as expense money undoubtedly is a great factor in retarding recovery.

As yet we have free choice as to what task we will undertake. We are not required to become teachers. Let us play our part the best we can, striving to encourage our fellow workers toward independence and self reliance. Too many are looking to others to carry the main burden. We must think of the welfare of our country. We have been going in the wrong direction. Teachers should see this very clearly.

Another Denial of a Recent Story Concerning Hunting on Lake Babcock.

COLUMBUS.—A perusal of a recent item would lead the reader to believe that Mr. Kramer, manager of the Loup River Public Power district, was using Lake Babcock for his own private hunting grounds. The facts are that Mr. Kramer and the entire board of directors of the Loup River Public Power organization have co-operated whole heartedly with the Izaak Walton league, which organization we believe represents true sportsmen of our state, in agreeing to our request to establish the water and adjoining district property as a game preserve. This haven for wild fowl has justified itself by improving the hunting thruout this vicinity, just as we figured it would. We further positively know that there is no shooting on this lake, either by Mr. Kramer or any other employe of the district, or friend. The facts further show that Mr. Kramer, altho he does not hunt, possessing neither a gun nor a license, nevertheless is an ardent and consistent member of our organization.

The Golden Rule Still Applies and Should Be Considered.

LINCOLN.—In a late number of the Reader's Digest is the statement, "You fellows are trying to work the Golden Rule." Well, so they are, but not from ethical considerations, simply because it's practical. There's the rub, ethics and religion are not practical. That has always been the issue. Religionists have decried morals. The practical have decried religion. They need not conflict. Religion is concerned with the motive for action, morality with action itself.

The ten commandments of Moses and the two commandments of Jesus would not have endured thru the centuries if their urge were not necessary for human weal—practical.

Unity, reverence, loyalty, fidelity, idealism, sympathy and love for each other are practical. That's the reason they are always insistent. A world without the insistence on honesty would be awful. A world without reverence for both the Supreme Good and parents would be worse than brutish. We cannot think of the ultimate weal of humanity except in terms of co-operation, mutual sympathy and love for each other. These goals of religion are practical—necessary. They are not the creation of superstition. They have grown out of human needs. If man had no inner qualities he could get along with no ethics. But, having them, they must control his destiny. Having them, they must have command—hence religion—the highest idealism.

Human eyes must be on the highest thruout, if man is to be noble and not a brute. Morals are the practical fruitage of divine ethics.

"You sound as if you could tear love from limb to limb. As a matter of fact, if you loved a girl—oh, how you could love!"

"I repeat—love is a nuisance."

"Not—not your love," she said faintly, and reached out her hands to him.

As any gentleman should, he took them, found them pleasantly warm and soft. Immediately, she was beside him again, her head on his shoulder, her hand caressing his cheek.

"After that capital joke Kay and Webb played on you at the Junior League party, you'd better put her out of your mind, dear. I'm your cousin—I have your best interests at heart, you know."

"I can't believe Kay meant to be so—so unkind—but perhaps she did. It's certain I'm not her pattern of a man."

Adele laughed throatily. "Kay's too smart to love a poor man. Forgive me, darling, for putting it so bluntly. But I grew up with her—I know her so well. All she wants is some one with a great fortune—like Henn."

"Possibly you're right. Anyway, Adele, you've been a great little pal to me. I thank you for that."

"And why have I tried to be—please ask me that."

"I—I hadn't specially thought of your reason. It came from your sweet, generous heart, I presume."

"Darling—why are you so blind? Cousins do fall in love—they even marry, you know." Her soft hair blew gently against his cheek.

"I—I hadn't thought of that," he said helplessly.

"If you like—you can think of it—from now on."

With that deep thrust at his inner consciousness, she slid abruptly from his arms and back to her seat at the oars. She had insisted upon rowing the boat tonight, bound to have her way with him in this secluded spot.

"Gad!" he thought, as the boat moved slowly back toward the Sanders' elaborately appointed camp. "Adele is sweet—but in a different way from Kay. I wonder if a man could be content—married to a woman he didn't love? Could constant association with her make him love her in time?

CHAPTER THIRTEEN.

On a day when Kay was feeling low spirited, Cora came breezily into her daughter's hospital room accompanied by a tall, dark, good-looking stranger. Kay noticed that the warm dark gaze of this middle-aged man rested with fond approval on Cora, as if she were nothing short of his ideal.

"Kay, darling!" exclaimed Cora, in her most affected, high pitched voice. "This is Horace Peek from Buenos Aires. You've heard me speak of him. We met three years ago on the Riviera."

Kay, now nearly free from bandages, looked straight into the blackest eyes she had ever seen. She immediately liked the owner of them.

He came beside her bed, took her hand in his firm one. In a deep, cultured voice, he said, "So glad to meet you, Kay. Knowing your mother has been one of the most delightful experiences of my life. Now, to know her lovely daughter gives me double pleasure."

"I can return that compliment, Mr. Peek," Kay said, with a short laugh. "Cora has made you out a superman. I was rather afraid you couldn't measure up to it—but now I'm inclined to share her opinion."

"Fine! Then we shall be friends. You must visit my home in Buenos Aires. You would enjoy the country."

"Yes, darling." Her mother was standing on the other side of Kay's bed now. She began smoothing back a few golden locks from Kay's forehead. "Horace and I—" she flushed becomingly, "we're going to be married."

"Your mother," he added soberly, bowing gallantly from the hips, "has done me that honor."

Kay's eyes filled with happy tears. Her beautiful mother would have security for her latter years, the devotion of a husband. "I'm so glad for you both," she said unsteadily.

Cora turned to Mr. Peek with, "Please Horace—let me have a word alone with Kay. If you won't mind waiting in the corridor—I'll join you presently."

"Certainly, my dear," he agreed instantly.

He gently lifted Kay's white hand to his lips, then left the room.

"It's too good to be true, isn't it!" gushed Cora. "I'm really very fond of him. Besides, now you won't be obliged to marry any man you can't tolerate. Henn-ington's such a bore. You'll never know, dear, how I've worried over you. I've been frantic because you were literally being forced into marrying him. Aren't you happy, my love?"

She leaned down and kissed Kay's flushed cheek.

A little line came between Kay's narrowed eyes.

"But, Cora—all we owe Henn—makes it awkward. I can't go back on my word now—it wouldn't be sporting, would it? If we could only manage to pay what we owe him, it would be different."

"Listen, Kay—I have the whole business figured out. Horace is to give me a generous allowance. I'll send Henningtom a little on account, now and then. Before you know it, the debt will be settled."

Kay looked doubtful. This beautiful, slightly frivolous mother of hers loved fine raiment too well to be able to pay any obligations from an allowance.

"Cora—you know you've never saved money—it hasn't been expected of you. You haven't the faintest notion of how to go about it."

Tears began abruptly to roll down Cora Millstrom's creamy cheeks, threatening to ruin her make-up. "I will save—I will from now on," she declared. "For your—your sake. I can't have you marrying Hennington, my darling. Can't you see—I can't have it on my conscience?"

"All right, dear—all right. Hen-nington Blare is out. Now—dry your tears and don't keep that fine man waiting. You're lucky, darling."

Kay's words had instant effect. Cora sniffed back further tears, opened her handbag, took out a lace-edged handkerchief, and dried her eyes. She found her compact, powdered and rouged her now radiant face. Financial perplexity, no matter how serious, never rested too heavily on Cora. For so many years she had been such a petted, privileged wife that it took very little now to convince her all would go on as before.

A feeling of thankfulness encompassed Kay. She discovered that she had been far more concerned over her mother's future than her own. Suddenly she was filled with new courage. Clouds, which had only recently been grimly black, might now be lifting.

"I'm going to talk to Hennington at once—because Horace has to go home next week. Of course, I'll go with him, if you won't mind, dear."

"I'll be all right," Kay assured her cheerfully. "And please don't bother about Henn. I'll explain that you will reimburse him as quickly as possible. I'm sure he'll understand."

After her mother left, Kay began to do some intensive thinking.

Goodnight Stories

By Max Trell

Mother and the two children—and, of course, Knarf and Hanid, who were the two children's shadows—had come into town to have lunch with father.

They went into the office building, which was big and crowded with people hurrying in and out. Mother had the children by the hand. Finally they all stopped in front of a big door. It wasn't a regular door. It was tall and separated in two parts down the middle.

"Is this the door to father's office?" Knarf whispered to Hanid. The children didn't hear him. Shadows can't ever be heard when they speak.

"No. This is the elevator," Hanid answered.

"Elevator? What's that?"

"It's a little room. It goes up and down. Father's office is on the fifteenth floor of this building. If there wasn't an elevator to take us up, we'd have to walk up."

At that moment the elevator door opened. Sure enough, it was just like a little room, for there were walls, a floor and a ceiling. There was also a man in it, dressed in a blue uniform.

"He looks like a soldier," Knarf whispered again. "Is that what he is?"

Hanid shook her head. "He's the man who makes the elevator go up and down. Hurry—we're going in."

Mother started in with the two children, and Hanid and Knarf hurried after them. The moment they were all in the man in the uniform shut the door. Then he pushed down a handle and up went the elevator.

"O-oh! This is wonderful!" Knarf exclaimed. "I hope it never stops."

"But it has to stop. We'd never get to father's office if it didn't stop."

"I like it here. It's just like a regular room only it goes up. I'm going to live here. I'm going to ask that man to let me. He won't mind." Then Knarf started shouting: "Mr. Elevator Man, will you let me live here? I won't take up much room. I won't make any noise. Please let me live here."

"Knarf, you're silly."

But all the elevator man said was: "Fifteenth floor!" Then he opened the door and mother and the two children and Hanid went out. Oh! did Knarf stay? No, he had to go out, too, for a shadow must go where his master or mistress goes. Poor Knarf.

Marriage Meddlers

A Sequel to "Married Comrades"

By Adele Garrison

Synopsis: In New York City to train for the leading role in her Aunt Madge's play, Mary Veritzen has discovered that she is being trailed by detectives thought to be in the employ of her father-in-law, Philip Veritzen, producer of the play. The sleuths follow Mary, Madge and Mary's brothers, Hank and Bill, while on an afternoon outing, and Mary and Madge are trailed back to the hotel after the boys take a train back to school. Now preparing to go to another hotel to meet her husband, Noel, for a secret reunion, Mary suddenly confronts Madge with the query of whether she thinks Hank will "ever stain out of his propensity to cruelty," which was the reason for his visit to a hotel psychiatrist earlier in the day.

At Mary's anguished query, a sudden chokiness in my throat kept me from answering her for a second or two.

This, then, was the dread with which the poor child had been living, the fear that her beloved young brother, Hank, was doomed to go thru life the victim of the propensity to cruelty which the inheritance of their unfortunate mother had given to him, alone of her four children.

"Thank heaven! you are all wrong, Mary," I said when I could speak calmly. "Hank is all right. You are torturing yourself needlessly—"

She interrupted me ruthlessly.

"Uncle Dicky didn't tell everything that Dr. T. said when he was appearing to give us all the low down on it," she said. "I knew by the funny quirk in the corner of his mouth that always is there when he's lying," she said calmly, and I doffed a mental chapeau in tribute to her keenness. She had named a little idiosyncracy of Dicky's which I had discovered early in our life together, and the knowledge has been beneficial to me many times, as well as a source of secret amusement.

Her eyes were holding mine expectantly, and I spoke quickly.

Didn't Tell All.

"He wasn't lying, Mary," I said defensively, as a loyal wife should. "He simply didn't tell you everything that Dr. T. had said. Every word that he did tell you was the truth. Hank is not in any particular peril at present. He can go back to school, but he is restricted in his smoking, must eat more and must stop cheating the regular school routine by reading in bed with a flashlight beneath the covers."

The ghost of a smile quirked the corners of Mary's lips.

"That takes me back a century at least," she said. "How many times I've done that!"

"So many, many years ago," I mocked, and the smile vanished.

"I feel at least a million years old today," she said, and then returned to the attack.

"What else did Dr. T. say?" she asked. "All of it, if you don't mind."

"I doubt if anybody save Hank and the specialist could tell you 'all of it,'" I retorted. "Your uncle said only that he 'guessed Dr. T. had scared Hank out of a year's growth by telling him just what was the matter with him, and painting the probable consequences of his continuing to indulge his propensity to cruelty.'"

The color drained suddenly from Mary's face.

"Oh! the poor kid!" she exclaimed comprehendingly. "So that was what was eating him in the torture scene! He must have figured that in a few more years he'd be just like that horrible devil of a rajah, or whatever he was."

Mary Relieved.

She stopped and looked at me fixedly.

"You can't imagine how relieved I am," she said, and stopped short. I knew what dark reservation of fear had been in her soul during that torture scene, and hastened to speak nonchalantly.

"Oh! yes, I can," I returned cheerily. "I'm much relieved myself. I'm sure Hank is going to be all right now, and I am so happy to think your uncle managed it so that Hank does not suspect we know anything about it. He believes that only he and Dr. T. have any idea of the truth."

"Yes, poor kid!" his sister said with compassionate understanding. "He'd simply curl up and die if he thought we had the slightest suspicion of the real state of things. I don't imagine he'd mind Bill so much, but the rest of us! Phew!"

She was looking at me again, and I knew that there was one last question on her lips.

"Yes, dear," I said encouragingly.

"Don't you think it was a good sign that Hank was so horrified at that torture scene?" she asked.

"Indeed I do," I replied promptly. "But now, if you please, suppose we say goodbye to Hank's problem, which stands in a fair way of being solved, and begin getting ready for our trip to Noel's hotel."

Contract Bridge.

(Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.)

LAST MONDAY'S QUESTION.

Question 38: Both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Double	7

You are South and hold:

♠ 9 7 6 5 4 2 ♥ — ♦ 5 4 2 ♣ J 8 4 3

What call do you make?

Answer: You should bid one spade. This is the only situation in bridge that permits (demands, rather), a "free" bid which is really a rescue. A minimum (nonjump) bid directly over a takeout double is not strength-showing, but, on the contrary, is an announcement to partner that the bidder is afraid to pass—that he fears a penalty pass by the next opponent. [20 points demerit for passing; 30 points demerit for any other bid, including no trump.]

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question 45: The bidding was:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

You are East. Dummy and your hand are:

Dummy (North)
♠ A 6
♥ Q 7 4
♦ A Q 10 8 5 2

You (East)
♠ K 10 7 5
♥ K 8 3 2
♦ K J 4

West, your partner, originally led the deuce of clubs and declarer won with the eight. Declarer then led the nine of diamonds and passed it. You won with the diamond jack. What card do you return, and why? (Short explanation will suffice.)

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Double	1 spade	2 clubs
2 diamonds	Double	2 spades	Pass
2 no trump	Double	Pass	Pass
3 spades	Double (final bid)

John C. Stablein of Seattle, Wash., reports a neat bit of declarer's play, as follows:

"West led his top diamond and East's ace took dummy's queen. East returned his singleton club. South ducked and the nine forced dummy's ace. The contract seemed hopeless, but declarer did not give up. He played a low diamond from dummy and ruffed with the seven of spades. The spade four was led and dummy's queen was taken by East, who returned the queen of hearts. Dummy won, and at this point declarer took time out for a checkup. East's holding could be counted out. He had shown five diamonds and a singleton club (with more than a singleton he would have continued the suit). Therefore he must hold seven cards in hearts and spades. With five spades he probably would have bid that suit instead of doubling, so in all likelihood he had four spades and three hearts.

"The declarer now went to work. A low diamond was ruffed with the ten of spades and a heart was returned to the ace. A heart was then ruffed with the spade eight. After this the spade king, followed by the three of spades, put East on lead. After cashing his trump trick East faced the disagreeable necessity of leading a diamond from the J 8 up to dummy's K 9. Declarer had found a means of making his contract against what looked like insuperable odds."

Health Talks

BY DR. HERMAN BUNDESEN,
President, Chicago Board of Health.

A generation ago, baby deaths from diarrhea were common. With the education of the mother, and the pasteurization of milk, baby deaths from so-called "summer complaint" are rare today.

There is another kind of diarrhea in children which, some authorities believe, comes from infections of the breathing apparatus, such as sore throat, tonsilitis, colds, influenza and sinus infections. These infections may also lead to indigestion and abdominal pain, and may damage other tissues in the body, such as the kidneys and the brain. Brain abscess, acute kidney inflammation and pneumonia (lar-in-ji'tis) may follow infections of the breathing apparatus.

Appendix Inflamed.

The appendix, according to Dr. C. H. Webb, of Shreveport, La., may likewise become inflamed following nose and throat infections. Acute appendicitis often occurs during the course of nose and throat infections. Symptoms in the abdomen are particularly frequent in epidemics of infections of the nose and throat. In such cases the child often complains of sharp pains, usually around the navel. There may be vomiting and diarrhea.

In a child who is crying, and who is nervous and resistant, it may at times be difficult to tell this condition from acute appendicitis. However, in appendicitis there is rigidity and tenderness in the right lower part of the abdomen.

In certain of the infections of the nose and throat, acidosis, which means a lessening of the amount of alkali in the blood, is present. This causes continued vomiting, pain in the abdomen and rapid breathing. There may be a "fruit-like" odor to the breath and the lips are usually a cherry-red color. The child may have a fever which is rather high, and there may be some increase in the number of white cells in the blood. The urine contains substances such as acetone (as-et-on) or diacetic (di-as-et'ik) acid. Chemical tests can be carried out to tell whether or not these substances are present.

Proper Diagnosis.

It is important in these cases that a proper diagnosis be made and the acidosis not be confused with appendicitis because a child with acidosis does not stand operation very well. On the other hand, acidosis may occur in children with appendicitis. However, with careful study the conditions can be told apart. The pain brought on by appendicitis is rarely severe. It usually comes in waves, that is, it comes and goes. As a rule, the pain is located around the navel, but there is always tenderness over the lower part of the abdomen.

There is always the question as to whether there really is an inflamed appendix or whether the abdominal pain comes as a result of infection of the breathing apparatus.

Dr. Joseph Brennemann, one of the world's leading pediatricians, was one of the first to show that infection of the nose, throat and lungs may cause symptoms of appendicitis. He states: "If in doubt it is better to err on the safer side and do an exploratory operation."

GOES TO STANFORD.

Robert L. Luckhardt, graduate student in the department of botany at the University of Nebraska, has gone to Stanford university in California to begin work as a biological assistant for the federal government. While in school here, he did research on the effect of wind on seedling trees and cereal crops.

Lincoln Has Chance To Get National A. A. U. Track Championships

I May Be Wrong

By John Bentley

Lincoln may be the scene of the national track and field championships of the Amateur Athletic Union next July.

Three times these games have been held here and the officials have appreciated the treatment and interest so much that each time the pre-Olympic year rolls around Lincoln is considered at the top of the list.

San Francisco is also bidding for the 1939 championships but there is a feeling that the games would be buried in the maze of activity which will surround the holding of the world's fair in the Golden Gate community.

Whether the games will be held in Lincoln hinges upon the junior chamber. There are some long hours of hard work connected with the promotion and ticket selling campaign but this isn't stopping the jaycees.

Some of the details of staging the games will have to be cleared up before the junior division will accept, Max Roper, president of the organization said. He thought that the jaycees would be inclined to sanction the bid.

There would be no dearth of Missouri Valley interest, what with John Monski, Missouri's great middle distance runner; Elmer Hackney, Big Six champion shot putter and also holder of the intercollegiate crown in the same event; Edsel Wibbels, Nebraska sophomore who may toss the discus out of the park and Red Littler, Husker sprinter, would add more local color.

It was the concensus of those who have been weighing the matter for the past two weeks that Lincoln would bid for the meet.

What of the ice skaters?

Capital City blade fanciers are having a hard time trying to find a spot big enough to handle all those who like this form of recreation.

Jimmy Lewis, recreation director, was trying Monday to get a lease on a lake 2½ miles north of University Place which would afford about 40 acres of ice. As it stands, the only available place is Lake Street.

The spot in Antelope park has been lined with clay but no water has been turned in and the Muny layout has been patched but it also is dry.

There is no use flooding these areas until the mercury drops to near zero, Lewis explained. The area in the Sawyer-Snell tract is a doubtful affair, as the water when poured in is likely to be sucked into the dry ground.

If the lake north of University Place can be obtained it would relieve congestion at the other spots. If it isn't a lot of us taxpaying ice skaters are going to be pretty darned sore. Some of us are a little mad to start with over the draining of Oak creek. We may go so far as to do a little old fashioned crusading.

The tipoff on all star teams is presented by the case of George Seemann. A late blooming wingman who played his best ball in the final half of the season, George hasn't had a mention, thus far. Can't even find his name in the honorable mention list. Yet Wes Fry said after the Kansas game that George had shown him more end play than he had seen since he took up his residence at Manhattan. How the boys overlooked him against Kansas U. is a mystery. But George made the mistake of saving his best play for the final games. The early birds get the worms in this all star business, principally because most of them are chosen before the season really ends.

SHOW MOVIES KANSAS STATE-NEBRASKA TILT

The movies of the Kansas State-Nebraska game will be shown at the coliseum Monday night at 8 o'clock. The pictures show more of Elmer Hackney's fine cracking charges, and are unusually clear.

AMBERS MEETS CROSS.

PHILADELPHIA, (UP). Lou Ambers, Herkimer, N. Y., hurricane, who lost his lightweight boxing title to Henry Armstrong by a narrow margin, arrived at the first crossroads on his comeback trail Monday when he meets Philadelphia's veteran Tommy Cross in a ten round bout at the arena. Ambers was a 9 to 5 favorite.

STELLA CAPTAINS ARMY.

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP). Harry A. Stella of Kankakee, Ill., Army's great right tackle, was elected captain of the 1939 Cadet football team as the squad made the journey home from the Navy game in Philadelphia.

ELWOOD COPS FINALE.

ELWOOD, Neb.—Elwood finished its season with a 34 to 0 victory over Bertrand here.

JUNIOR CHAMBER TO MEET TUESDAY AND TAKE FINAL STEPS

Senior Organization Willing Underwrite Necessary Guarantee.

FIX SITE THIS WEEK

Lincoln may be host to the A. A. U. national track and field championships again this summer.

The bid, which calls for a $6,000 guarantee, will not be made until the junior chamber of commerce accepts the responsibility of again handling the promotion and ticket sales.

The junior chamber will meet Tuesday to take final action. The senior chamber has agreed to underwrite the necessary guarantee, provided the junior division will handle the work of putting on the meet.

The national championships have been held here three times previously, in May 1927, 1931 and 1935, each time in a pre-Olympic year. The 1939 meet again would be a pre-Olympic meet when interest in track and field is at its highest peak.

Bill Thomas, Omaha, chairman of the Midwest A. A. U., will be asked to come here Tuesday and attend the junior chamber session.

Plenty "Local Color."

With Elmer Hackney, Kansas State shotputter, John Monski, Missouri's distance runner and Edsel Wibbels in the discus, this section would be well represented in the meet.

San Francisco is the other bidder, the western city seeking the meeting as one more attraction for the world's fair. If the Lincoln chamber decides to bid for the championships, it is likely that Thomas will present the invitation personally at the meeting of the A. A. U. dated for this week end in Washington.

LINCOLN PIN TEAM IN SECOND POSITION

OMAHA, Neb. (AP). An 11th hour bombardment, with Don Pine, 31 year old "rookie" and Babe Bunning, 53 year old veteran, showing the way, gave Chicago keglers a virtual monopoly on top prizes in the Midwest bowling tournament which ended here early Monday.

Pine rolled a sensational 749 Sunday to win the singles title, and Bunning turned in a top flight performance to win the all events, share the doubles championship and finish third in the singles of the $5,420 show.

Bunny carded a 2,054 for the all events lead and with Jim Burke posted a 1,341 for the doubles leadership.

Championship team honors went to Baby Ruth candy crew of Chicago with 3,105, Goetz Pilsner of St. Joseph, Mo., captured the Booster division with 2,933. Final top pinings:

LINCOLN CAGE SQUAD OPENING ITS PRACTICE

Beechner Has 14 Days in Which to Prepare Quintet.

Faced with the task of rounding 18 green hopefuls into a high caliber quintet in 14 days, Coach Ralph Beechner will hold his first formal cage practice at the Whittier junior high gym Monday afternoon. Several performers not out for football have been holding informal practice sessions for two weeks.

Fred Metheny is the only returning letterman from the squad that last season surprised state prep circles by annexing the class A championship after a mediocre regular campaign, and he saw only a little service at a forward post.

Beechner will be forced to count heavily on members of last winter's reserve team, which won 11 out of its 15 contests. This group is led by Tom Rice, sharpshooting center who is almost certain of a starting berth, Bob Williams, Dick Gellatly and Bill Jennings.

A pair of top notch performers are lost to the squad because they will be graduated in January. They are Dean Jackson, ace guard on the 1937-38 five and Franklin Burke, 6 foot forward from Sioux City East high. However a capable newcomer to put in his appearance is Joe O'Connor, junior forward from Columbus high school.

How They Size Up.

Judging from their performances of last season, Metheny and Jennings are the top flight forwards, Rice is the best of those out for center and Bob Williams and Howard Debus or Gellatly pace the guards.

Also vieing for forward spots are O'Connor, Eugene Irick, Henry Reichel, Clair Miller, Joe Wise, Don Hansen and Bob Younkin. Besides Rice at center is Bob Jordan, who has already won his spurs as a high jumper of note, while Debus may be shifted to the pivot post. Other guards trying for a spot on the squad are Harvey Lauer, Bob Johnson, Bob Ogden and Bud King who lettered at Riverton, Wyo., as a freshman.

The opening contest of the current campaign is set for Dec 16, on the Whittier maples, with Omaha Central providing the opposition. Eight of the 15 games on the schedule are slated for the home courts.

WHITE SOX PITCHER MAY LOSE ONE LEG

Monty Stratton Wounded as He Hunts Rabbits in Texas.

DALLAS, Tex. (UP). A pistol wound threatened to end big Monty Stratton's career as a baseball player thru amputation of his leg.

Stratton, 6 foot 4 inch pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, was in Parkland hospital in serious condition from the wound. Dr. A. R. Thomasson said a decision on the amputation would be reached Monday or Tuesday.

Stratton was hunting rabbits when the accident occurred Sunday. Wearing the pistol strapped to his thigh western fashion, he was walking a half mile from his mother's farm home near Greenville when the weapon discharged.

The bullet entered the outer thigh and ranged downward and backward to the knee. Dr. Thomasson feared it had cut a large artery in the back of the leg.

After the accident, Stratton, a 205 pounder whose pitching prowess had been handicapped by an old arm injury, crawled toward the house.

Brother Sees Him.

He had almost reached it when a brother saw him and picked him up. He was rushed to Greenville but doctors there were unable to find the bullet and sent him to Dallas. He was suffering from loss of blood.

Hard luck has dogged the big Texan during the past two baseball seasons. Overcoming early wildness, he had performed brilliantly until 1937 when the arm injury appeared. He stayed on the sidelines many weeks that year. Last year the same injury cropped up again and from March onward, Stratton lost much time.

Stratton's first baseball experience was in North Texas semi-pro leagues. He attracted the attention of White Sox scouts in 1934.

M'LEMORE

Duke May Get Bid Play in Rose Bowl

BY HENRY M'LEMORE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (UP). "Man those telephones, boys, and let not a long distance call escape!"

Such was the order issued at Duke, Tennessee and Texas Christian universities in the hope that the next jingle of the bell might bring a $100,000 call from Southern California.

Sometime this week or the next the football teams of one of these schools will get the bid to play in the Rose bowl on New Years day, and it is a bid that is worth just one tenth of a million dollars, win, lose or draw.

Which team will get it? Not even Solomon could have answered that one Monday because the choice, if it has been made, is locked deep in the noggins of the Southern California athletic officials, and these noggins are deep, dark vaults indeed.

But in an effort to find which way the wind blows I made a casual poll of the press box babitues at the Dartmouth-Stanford game here Saturday, and the result would indicate that Duke will be invited. Those who leaned toward Duke offered varied reasons for their belief. The Blue Devils' amazing record—no defeats, no ties, and no points scored against them—was one. The fact that Howard Jones, Southern California coach, once served in the same capacity at Duke, was another. One man questioned said he thought Duke would come because it is low scoring, defensive team, and would be less likely to whip the Trojans as badly as the high scoring Tennessee or T. C. U. teams. Another opined that Wallace Wade, Duke coach, is highly regarded out there because of the success he had when he brought Alabama teams out for the bowl, and that the coast boys would like to take another crack at one of his clubs.

Not Big League.

Not all those questioned favored Duke. There were those who thought Duke's schedule wasn't big league, and that its record was largely a paper one, despite the closing game triumph over mighty Pittsburgh.

One of the reasons advanced by a man who thought Tennessee would get the bid was that Southern California, having been beaten by Alabama, would like to play a team that had licked Alabama.

"Southern California reasoning is very exotic," he said, "and it would give the Trojans a great measure of satisfaction if they could beat the team that had beaten the team that had beaten them."

The team that everybody in the press box expressed a hope would get the bid is T. C. U. Out here the boys from Fort Worth are regarded as the strongest team in the United States, and the folk are anxious to see Davey O'Brien & Co. in action. But it is felt that T. C. U.'s very greatness, its ability to run up big scores and beat the living daylights out of its opponents, will bar it from the bowl. No one feels that Southern California is going to stick its neck out and take on the Wild Westerns just for the hell of it. Not after already taking two lickings, and being none too sure it won't suffer a third defeat when Notre Dame comes to Los Angeles next Saturday.

Awaiting the Call.

Southern California, of course, hasn't been officially named as the far western bowl representative, but there is little or no chance that it won't be. The Trojans ended the Pacific coast league season in a tie with California, but the fact that they defeated California is certain to swing the ballots their way. If by any chance they shouldn't be chosen, and California given the honor (and what is more important, the dough), life wouldn't be worth a nickel in the entire state. Rioting would start at once, and continue until the only thing left standing was a redwood tree or two.

By WHITNEY MARTIN.

KANSAS CITY, (AP). Oklahoma, a football team so well balanced it wasn't necessary to hitch its wagon to a star, Sunday looked back on 13 straight victories, and ahead to another prospective victim and the possibility of a bowl bid, altho the Sooners aren't thinking, out loud anyway, of bowl games as long as there is unfinished business. It's no bowling during the regular season for Tom Stidham's boys.

The Sooners meet Washington State at Norman next Saturday to close the regular campaign.

Oklahoma A. & M. was the 13th straight victim Saturday, 19 to 0, in a game which further emphasized the Sooners' remarkable defense. The Aggies never got to midfield. Only two touchdowns have been scored against Oklahoma. Rice earned one in the opening game, and Tulsa was presented one as a gift by the Sooner third string.

Nine opponents were held to an average of approximately 47 yards by rushing, Texas finishing with a two yard gain and Tulsa with seven yards. The Sooners averaged approximately 130 yards in their nine games.

Altho considered by many teams as merely a power team, the Oklahoma forward passing record is even more remarkable than its rushing attack and defensive play. Against the Aggies Saturday the Sooners completed 14 of 28 passes for 167 yards, and in the first seven games their percentage of completions was 53.4 for a gain of 659 yards.

Stidham's consideration for opposing teams and coaches in cutting off the power when his team had two or three touchdowns is responsible for the comparatively low yardage and low scores of the Sooners. With two or three exceptions his third string has played the fourth quarters.

Altho Roland "Waddy" Young, a great end and All America candidate, is a standout, even he can be out of the lineup without wrecking the team. In fact, replacements can be made in the line or backfield almost at any time and the team will continue to function as a well oiled unit.

Nebraska salvaged some prestige from a disastrous season by defeating a good Kansas State team, 14 to 7, the victory giving the Huskers a tie for third place with Missouri, which defeated its ancient rival, Kansas, in a well played game, 13 to 7.

TWELVE PREP CLUBS FINISH 1938 SLATES IN UNBEATEN CLASS

Five Outfits Have Ties on Records; Six Drop Out in Last Games.

THREE ELEVENS REPEAT

By DALE M. JOHNS.

Twelve teams, one less than last year, found themselves at the pinnacle of Nebraska's high school football kingdom with no defeats after last week's final blast, while six aspiring elevens went tumbling off the list in their closing games.

Unbeaten and untied are Bethany of Lincoln, Genoa, Lincoln high, Ord, Oshkosh, Pilger and Winnebago.

Undefeated but tied are Aurora, Columbus, Hebron, Valentine and York.

Three of the teams are repeaters from the 1937 list of undefeated teams. Lincoln high and Ord were unbeaten and untied in both seasons, while Pilger was tied last year by Madison.

Drop Last Game.

Edgar, Gothenburg, Neligh, North Platte, Orleans and Silver Creek found the last barriers too high.

Nelson took Edgar's measure, 13-7; Lexington spilled Gothenburg's unpredictable Swedes, 12-7; Albion tripped Neligh, 7-6; Alma won the Republican Valley league championship by smashing Orleans, 20-0; Genoa downed Silver Creek, 7-0, in a battle of unbeaten teams, and Lincoln high grabbed the state mythical championship with a 13-6 victory over North Platte.

Following are the records of the undefeated, untied elevens:

Pilger won the state's high scoring eleven recording 318 points to opponents' 2, while Ord ran its victory streak to 37 consecutive games while totalling 202 points to opponents 7. State Champion Lincoln high tallied 228 points against 33, no team scoring more than one touchdown against the Red and Black Bethany, the second undefeated Capital City eleven, allowed only 13 points while chalking up 217.

York Ties Five.

In the unbeaten but tied division, York closed the season by whipping Grand Island, 27-13. York won only four of its nine games, playing scoreless ties with Columbus, Fairbury and Beatrice, and finishing 6-all against Aurora and 7-all against Albion, while beating Seward, Havelock of Lincoln, Hastings and Grand Island.

Valentine finished undefeated and was the only prep eleven in the state not scored upon. Of its Nebraska foes, Valentine beat Rushville, 7-0, Atkinson, 19-0; Bassett, 25-0, and played a scoreless deadlock with Ainsworth.

Aurora and Hebron completed their schedules a week earlier.

RACES HOT IN BOTH PRO GRID DIVISIONS

New York, Washington in East; Detroit, Green Bay in West, Lead.

NEW YORK. (AP). The National Pro Football league, never noted for runaway races, heads into two of the closest division finishes in history this week with New York and Washington in the east and Green Bay and Detroit in the west bidding for the sectional and national titles.

Washington's Redskins, with Slingin' Sammy Baugh close to top form, walloped the hapless Pittsburgh Pirates, 15 to 0, and drew within a half game of the New York Giants. They meet next Sunday in the game that will decide the eastern championship.

Detroit stayed in the running for the western title Thursday by banging the Chicago Bears, 14 to 7. The Lions are now a half game behind Green Bay and will draw even if they beat Philadelphia on Sunday, thus necessitating a playoff for the western crown, a game that probably will be held in Chicago on Dec. 11 with the league championship contest, between the winner of this game and next Sunday's encounter here, held in either Washington or New York on Dec. 18. The Giants' last outing was a 7-7 tie with Brooklyn, Thursday.

Cardinals Surprise.

The Chicago Cardinals' sutprising display in outscoring Cleveland, 31 to 17, in the only other game meant nothing to the standings, but provided two new league records and tied a third. The Cards, who had won just once before this fall, also over the Rams, ran their total of completed passes to 112, four more than Green Bay made in 1936. One of these was from Doug Russell to Gaynell Tinsley for a 98 yard gain and a touchdown, to top Tinsley's 97 yard mark set last year. He pulled in half a dozen other passes to bring his total to 41, tying the 1936 mark of Don Hutson of Green Bay. Standings:

IOWA NAMES EDDIE ANDERSON COACH HAWKEYE FOOTBALL

Holy Cross Mentor Arrives in Iowa City Tuesday for Meeting.

SALARY OVER $10,000

IOWA CITY, Ia. (UP). The University of Iowa athletic board announced that Dr. Edward C. Anderson of Holy Cross has been signed to coach the Iowa football team for three years.

In a brief statement issued by E. G. Schroeder, athletic director, the announcement said:

"The athletic board by unanimous action has appointed Dr. Anderson as head football coach for three years, beginning with next season.

"The president of the university (Eugene A. Gilmore) has approved the appointment.

"Dr. Anderson will in due time submit to the board his recommendations concerning the rest of the staff."

Succeeds Tubbs.

He will succeed Irl Tubbs, who came to Iowa from Miami in the spring of 1937 and whose teams won only two games during his two year regime.

Anderson will arrive in Iowa City Tuesday and will meet with the athletic board in the afternoon.

Monday's announcement put to rest all rumors that Anderson would reject the Iowa bid in favor of a lucrative offer from Holy Cross.

Neither Schroeder nor members of the board would comment on the salary Anderson will receive but it is believed to be in excess of $10,000 annually.

Tubbs received $7,800 annually and was on a year to year contract basis. He was notified Monday that his contract would not be renewed.

In Full Charge.

"Anderson will be in full charge of football," Schroeder explained.

"No games will be scheduled except at his request and all details concerning football will be entirely in his hands.

"An open date on the 1939 schedule will be filled only when he has time to consider all angles."

Anderson is expected to bring his two assistant coaches at Holy Cross, Jim Harris, line mentor, and Joe Shekeetski, backfield coach.

The new coach, who played under Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, is a native of Mason City, Ia.

He signed the Iowa contract a week ago but had requested that no announcement be made until his Holy Cross eleven finished its season. The Crusaders completed their schedule with a 29 to 7 victory over Boston college Saturday.

GRID OFFICIALS MEET.

Lincoln football officials will hold their annual dinner Monday evening at the Student Union at 6:30. Ralph Beechner is in charge of arrangements.

NINE SENIORS, TWO JUNIORS NAMED AS STARS 1938 SEASON

Young Best End Among Terminal Men of Last Season.

BOCK LONE REPEATER

BY CARL LUNDQUIST.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP). Five senior football players who were outstanding thru three years of college competition and who received the unanimous vote of every coach in the conference are the dominant members of the 1938 all Big Six team announced by the United Press.

The team contains nine seniors and two juniors and all six schools are represented. Oklahoma placed four men, Iowa State three and Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Kansas State one each.

Coaches, game officials and sports writers assisted in the selections and all saved most of their praise for Everett Kischer and Edward Bock of Iowa State and Gilford Duggan, Roland Young and Hugh McCullough of Oklahoma's champion Sooners.

The remaining six players, Charles Brock of Nebraska, Charles Helleman of Iowa State, Earl Crowder of Oklahoma, Ferrel Anderson of Kansas, Kenneth Haas of Missouri and Elmer Hackney of Kansas State, shaded many others because of their consistency in play both in and out of the conference.

Young Fine End.

With the trend toward passing, the ends had a greater responsibility than usual and big strong terminal men who were able to rush the passers were invaluable. Young of Oklahoma was better at this than any of the others and his ability to stop some of the nation's top passers, accounted for the fact that only two touchdowns were scored against the Sooners in their first eight games.

A serious contender for All America honors, Bock of Iowa State was the only standout guard. The big even tempered youth played in every game and cleared the way for the swift runners in State's backfield. He is the only repeater on the team, being an almost unanimous choice at guard a year ago.

Another member of the Oklahoma line was the circuit's tackle stand out. Duggan, who suffered a fractured cheek-bone in mid-season didn't let that stop him and after missing a couple of games was back, fiercer and harder to take out of a play than before. Haas of Missouri, one of the two Juniors on the team was the other nominee. He was a big help to Missouri's fancy passers because of his shielding ability on offense. He also was a great tram man and helped to keep the young Tigers in balance.

Brock and Kinnison.

Every first string center in the conference, was a good one, but two of them, Brock of Nebraska and Jack Kinnison of Missouri were great ones. The coaches were about divided in their selection, but Brock has been a bulwark in the Cornhusker line for three years so he took the honor.

The backfield consists of four entirely different types of players, but each was regarded the best at his specialty. Kischer of Iowa State and McCullough of Oklahoma were two of the finest field generals to play in the circuit in many years. Kischer, who can pass, punt, run, placekick, block and tackle, probably is the most versatile man on the team. His fiery leadership transformed the Cyclones into one of the greatest teams in the middlewest. The best at the Iowa institution since 1912. McCullough also was a triple threat, usually stayed in every game until victory was assured. Crowder was one of a few good blocking backs in the conference and altho he seldom ran with the ball, it usually meant a gain when he did. Hackney, of Kansas City, the other junior, averaged about five yards each time he carried the ball.

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed bids for the furnishing of three centrifugal pumps, two electric motors, and four electric oil circuit breakers will be received by the City Council of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, at the office of the City Clerk up to the hour of ten o'clock a. m. All bids shall be made on the printed forms attached to and made a part of the Contract Documents. The Contract Documents may be examined at the office of the City Clerk, or may be obtained without charge by bidders for their use in preparing bids at the office of the City Engineer

The City Engineer's estimate of the cost for furnishing this equipment is $13,800.00, delivered f. o. b. cars on the C. B. & P. Railway side track at "A Street Station."

The character and amount of security to be submitted by bidders is stated in the proposed Contract Documents

THE GATE OF PARADISE.

Pakpattan or Adjudhan is a little town in the Montgomery district of the Punjab, India. It is famous for containing the shrine of Farid ud Din, a Mohammedan saint who died here in 1265. Farid purified himself, it is related, by a dint of continual fasting, until he could eat stones which turned into sugar in his mouth.

Pilgrims from all over India, Afghanistan and central Asia flock here during the month of Moharram. On the principal afternoon and night of this festival, 60,000 people try to enter the shrine thru a very narrow door in the adjoining wall. The door is known as the Gate of Paradise, because of the belief that whoever can force his way thru the narrow opening during the prescribed hours, is sure of a free entrance into heaven. The crush is very great, and severe injuries result from the great crowding.

Two Sun Dodgers Landed For Havana's Improved Racing Season

BY JOHN LARDNER.

Copyright, 1938, by the NANA, Inc. (The Lincoln Journal and other newspapers.)

NEW YORK.—Havana expects to steal much of the winter racing play this season with her track at Oriental Park, and, by way of a start, she has lured two of America's most conspicuous stay up all nighters and conversational bag punchers to her side to help make the track go.

One of these is Signor Francis Albertanti, the exploiter of fighters, who played the trumpet so lowly for James J. Braddock a few years ago that James, to his own surprise, became nationally known as the Cinderella man and got a shot at the heavyweight championship of the world.

Signor Albertanti used to boast, with some justice, that he never infested a losing fight camp. He was with Schmeling when the Uhlan prepared for the first fight with Louis, and Schmeling astonished everyone but himself and Signor Albertante by knocking the Bomber cold.

Introduced to Old Sol.

Signor Albertanti camped with Schmeling at no small sacrifice of his own peace of mind, for Schmeling's mountain quarters were lousy with birds, as Signor Albertante expressed it, and these feathered funsters some times crooned so forcefully that they roused the signor out of bed by noon, compelling him to expose his sensitive hide to the sun, which he knew only by hearsay up till then.

"I have heard people knock the sun," said Signor Albertanti at the time, "but I always figured they were just knockers. Now I know different. The sun is eight times as bad as they say it is, and I would write my congressman about it, if I thought he could read."

They say the sun is pretty savage in Cuba, but I expect that Signor Albertanti will find a spot in the shade of the clubhouse at Oriental Park and pass the hours in a fair degree of comfort until evening comes and the mob can adjourn to Sloppy Joe's. It's enough to make you go out and flag the next steamboat to think of Signor Albertanti's evenings among the rum swizzles.

This week, the neon waving exploiter will be joined in his new lair by John Tecumseh Doyle, dean of Broadway betting men, who plans to promote his health and possibly his bankroll in Havana—at the track by day, at the National casino by night. Mr. Doyle will be on the house's side, which is the only way you can promote either health or business at the National casino.

NOTRE DAME LISTED ON TOP BUT TOUGH CONTEST REMAINS

Elmer Layden's Irish Team Goes West This Week to Play U. S. C.

OKLAHOMA NO. 4 TEAM

BY HARRY FERGUSON.

NEW YORK. (UP). The end of the road is a week away for Notre Dame and anything can happen this Saturday, but today the Irish of South Bend still stand astride the football world.

Undefeated and untied thru a bruising schedule, Coach Elmer Layden and his boys go west this week for a game with Southern California, an outfit that started the season slowly and then came along with a rush that may end in the Rose bowl.

If Notre Dame falters in California, two other teams are ready to step in and claim the national championship—Texas Christian, the irresistible force of the southwest, and Duke, the rock of Dixie.

Five major teams remain unbeaten and untied as the season dies, and they rank about like this: 1, Notre Dame; 2, Texas Christian and Duke in a tie; 3, Tennessee, and 4, Oklahoma.

Notre Dame was idle over the week end, and so the great adventure of the day befell the Blue Devils whom Wallace Wade coaches at Duke. Many an eyebrow had been lifted at Duke's none too strenuous schedule and the word was passing around to wait until the Blue Devils caught a tough one. So they caught Pittsburgh at Durham, N. C., Saturday and when the game was over Duke had won, 7 to 0, and had come thru the season without having its goal line crossed.

Duke and T. C. U.

Nothing can happen now to spoil the perfect records of Duke and Texas Christian unless they get bowled over in one of the post-season bowls. Oklahoma and Tennessee are not so lucky. Mississippi, a tough team with one of the nation's great backs in Parker Hall, plays Tennessee Saturday. Oklahoma has to get by Washington State this week.

Dartmouth, classed at midseason among the great teams of the nation, ran into a hitherto indifferent Stanford club in California and woke up to find itself on the wrong end of a 23 to 13 score. Let that be a warning to Notre Dame.

Games were scanty over the week end but every section of the country had at least one good battle, including one with fists between players and rooters of Louisiana State and Tulane at Baton Rouge, La.

In the east the Army rolled along on a third period drive that won a 14 to 7 victory over the navy in one of the best games those ancient rivals ever played.

Christians March On.

Texas Christian reinforced its claim to national recognition by trampling Southern Methodist at Dallas, 20 to 7.

Oklahoma took to the air to gain an easy 19 to 0 victory over the Oklahoma Aggies. Oregon State punched out a fourth quarter victory over Oregon, 14 to 0, and Washington crushed its old rival, Washington State, 26 to 0.

The surprise of the day occurred in Jacksonville, Fla., where an underdog Florida team rose up and smote Auburn, 9 to 7.

DETROIT SLAPS COAST FOOTBALL WITH 7 TO 6 WIN OVER SANTA CLARA

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP). Striking swiftly with a pass and sensational run, University of Detroit Titans defeated Santa Clara's Broncos, 7 to 6, and delivered a smashing blow to far western football prestige.

Some 16,000 fans, watching the Titans in their first appearance on the coast, saw a team apparently doomed to defeat suddenly turn the tide of battle in the third period, then stave off desperate rallies of the Santa Clarans.

LINCOLN QUINT SECOND IN MIDWEST PIN MEET

OMAHA. (AP). Five Chicagoans bowling under the colors of the Baby Ruth Candy company stood at the top of the championship team division in the annual midwest tournament with a 3,10b.

Goetz Pilsener of St. Joseph, Mo., won the Booster division with a 2,933, while City Club of Lincoln was second with 2,833.

KEEP SAM BUSY.

OMAHA. (UP). Sam Francis, Nebraska university All America football player, did more than play a bangup game in the all star contest at Creighton stadium Sunday. When the gun sounded ending the first half, the players of both sides started for the gym. Francis was besieged by a mob of autograph seeking youngsters, who kept him busy for the entire 15 minute period scribbling his name on programs and scraps of paper.

On All Star Card.

In the opening bout of the all star matches on this week's rassle program at the fair grounds, Armin Zimbelman, above, another Nebraska offering to the ranks of ring rioters, meets Bill Sledge.

Headlining the show are those perennial favorites, John Pesek, and Steve Savage. Smilin' Steve, who recently returned from an Australian tour, says he wants just one more crack at Pesek, then if he can't beat the Ravenna Tigerman, he'll quit trying. Joe Dusek and Marvin Jones appear in the semwindup.

Jock Sutherland Staying at Pitt

PITTSBURGH. (AP). Dr. John H. Sutherland, veteran Pitt gridiron coach, spiked a flurry of rumors that he would resign by asserting that he intended to remain at Pitt.

Informed that he was reported to have signed with Navy, Jock commented:

"There's no truth to that report. I have not been in contact directly or indirectly with any other school. As far as I know now, I'll be at Pitt next year."

The Navy rumor was among a score or more that sprang up on the heels of dissension over Pitt's athletic policies. They had Sutherland bound for the Detroit Lions, Temple, Southern California and Duke, among other spots.

Sutherland's contract at Pitt provides for a two-year notice of resignation or dismissal.

FRANCIS STARS IN 14-14 PRO CONTEST

Stages One Man Show Aided by Another Ex-Husker, Les McDonald.

OMAHA. (AP). Sam Francis, Chicago Bear fullback and former University of Nebraska All American, staged a great one man exhibition here as professional all star elevens from Nebraska and Iowa battled to a 14 to 14 deadlock in a charity football game at Creighton university before 7,000 fans.

Francis led a first quarter attack that netted the Nebraskans two touchdowns and ran 25 yards in the third across the Iowans' double stripe on a play that was called back because of a clipping penalty. Sam's punting was one of the biggest factors in giving the Nebraskans an even rating with the Iowans, who as the Des Moines Comets, topped the Northwestern professional loop this season.

First Nebraska touchdown came on a pass from Francis to Bill Kulper, former Lincoln high ace, good for 33 yards. Francis placekicked the extra point.

Rhea Scores Touchdown.

The second came when Vandever, ace Iowa Negro back, faded back to pass and was hit by End Les McDonald, another former Cornhusker and Bear teammate of Francis. Vandever dropped the ball and Hugh Rhea, former Nebraska tackle, flopped on it for a touchdown. Francis again kicked the point.

NEW YORK (AP) Late buying came into the stock market Monday and chopped down extreme losses running to 3 or more points in Steels and motors led the forenoon retreat of the industrials Utilities held fairly well for a time, but some of these eventually weakened Rails were rather resistant thruout while the majority remained behind minus signs.

Brokers could find no outstanding reason for the extension of last week's decline Tax selling for income returns, more beneficial for speculators and investors than under the law in existence last year, was believed to have had as much as anything else to do with the setback

Foreign affairs were spoken of as a deterrent at least At that sterling rallied briefly when there was a delay in fixing the gold price at London and the British exchange control began to sell dollars extensively Inspiring covering among sterling shorts also was a mild recurrence of the often denied rumors of dollar devaluation Wall street paid little attention to this talk

Business news continued moderately comforting and a drop of 1 2 points in this week's steel mill operations was in line with expectations Dealings were slow the greater part of the day but volume picked up at intervals Transfers approximated 1 300 000 shares

Copper issues had to contend with another cut in the prices of export and scrap metal With the foreign copper rate now nearly a cent a pound under the domestic quotation of 11¼c some in the financial sector were looking for a reduction in this basic bellwether sentiment was the lore cast of the National Association of Purchasing agents that inventories of industrial materials at the coming year end were likely to be at the lowest point in several years

A hopeful note was also sounded by the national industrial conference board which estimated the expanding building industry had provided jobs for about 111 000 additional workers in October Adding the rails were optimism expressed in transportation circles that net operating revenues for the principal roads in the final quarter should be well above the same 1937 months

GIRL LEAVES SLIPPERS BEHIND IN THRILL OF ARMY-NAVY GRID FRAY

PHILADELPHIA. (AP). A girl spectator can have the suede slippers she left behind in the thrill and chill of the Army-Navy game if she calls at the Municipal stadium's lost and found department.

Stadium officials said absent mindedness among the 102,000 who attended the classic reached a new high and that the miscellany collected would form a good stock for a general store.

Your Problems

Dear Mary Gordon: Never toched liquor yet and don't want to, either. Bnt why did I drink so heavy that night? Because I tried very hard to keep my home together, as I loved my children dearly, but my wife turned cold toward me.

I wanted companionship, some one to love and to be loved and to talk to, she denied me all of that. And I think that is why many men start to drink, just as you said some time ago, Mary Gordon, many men start to drink because there is some thing lacking at home. It was in my home and had it not made me so sick, I am sure I would still drink, but thank God, I got sick. And thanks to my dad that he would not let me use it until I was 17, and then I did not care to start. Only in time of trouble and loneliness.

I could never afford to spend money for drinks and smoke, I had my wife and children to support. I finally divorced my wife last year, and altho I want to get married again, but I would not marry any woman who does drink or smoke. So I think, if any man who drinks a lot, if their wives would start to think, "Do I really love my husband the way he likes me to? Do I cook a nice meal which he especially likes? Do I keep the house neat to please him? Do I greet him with a smile when he comes home after a hard day at work? I wonder if I treat him better that he would stop drinking?" I think this has a lot to do with, when I came home after ten hours work instead of having my wife meet me with a smile on her face, she many times looked at me just as if she wanted to say, "What do you want home."

I wanted some one to talk to when home ,and to enjoy home life, but I did not get that at home, so I started to run around with male friends and played cards, but did not gamble, just for fun. No use staying home and look at the four walls. I know now I made many mistakes, and I can sure make a better husband in the future than I made in the past.

But when a man and wife have a quarrel they must both get together and talk things over and whoever is wrong to give in. And not only one party to give in all the time. I gave in all the time, But one day I made up my mind I would not give in, because I was not to blame. She did not believe me, that I would keep my word when I said it, but I was thru giving in all the time. But I still do say, if any man who drinks so much and makes a hog out of himself should be put away to get cured. Always remember before buying a drink, do your wife and children have all the things they need to live, can I really afford to drink my money away? Does my wife like it?—I Hate Drunkards.

TARZAN AND THE ELEPHANT MEN by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

"You may be sure that somehow Tomos will kill you," Gemnon declared, "and I am here to save you if I can, but I have no plan. A friend of mine is captain of the guard tonight, but if I were to leave your door unbarred, my friend would be executed by Tomos."

"I see no way to escape now," said Tarzan, "and you must go. You endanger your life by staying. Give me your dagger; it may come in handy." Gemnon left, and Tarzan was soon asleep. His was more the untroubled temperament of a wild beast than that of a man.

Tarzan's eyes opened with the dawn, as was his habit. Thereafter he sat waiting, patiently. Today, he believed, he would learn the doom that Tomos, his mortal enemy, had planned for him. Nor could he imagine how he might escape from the wrath of his foe.

About an hour before noon he heard footsteps. Perhaps the guards were bringing him food and water. But when they entered, the ape-man saw that their hands were empty except for their weapons. What need for food and drink had a man who was about to die?

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND by EDWARD A. WIGGAM

DO MEN'S IDEAS OF FEMININE BEAUTY CHANGE FROM ONE GENERATION TO ANOTHER? YES OR NO—— 1
IF ONE FEELS TONGUE-TIED IN COMPANY AND CANNOT THINK OF IDEAS FOR CONVERSATION, DOES THIS INDICATE HE LACKS INTELLIGENCE? YOUR OPINION—— 2
IF THE SPARTAN METHOD OF DOING AWAY WITH THE UNFIT WERE REVIVED WOULD WE SELECT TODAY THE SAME TYPES THEY DID AS "UNFIT"? YOUR OPINION——

Answer to Question No. 1.

1. Yes. To prove this for yourself, just see a movie where they show a bunch of "beautiful" chorus girls of the gay nineties. The audience instantly bursts into laughter. Yet those corn fed rotundities represented visions of female loveliness to the men of that ancient esthetic world. The Floradora sextet of that general period were pretty hefty girls. At the present rate of reducing we tremble to think what the morrow will bring—probably a mere antimated willow wand.

Answer to Question No. 2.

2. Not at all. Often the one who has the best and brightest thoughts when alone is the one who is most tongue tied in company. His confusion is due entirely to fear and bashfulness. How to converse well even when you are bashful can be learned by following the rules of psychology.

Answer to Question No. 3.

3. No. What they wanted was soldiers. Consequently a frail child with genius as a scientist, musician, writer, artist or statesman was thrown over the cliff while the strong, healthy moron was given every care by the state. Heaven forbid we shall revive the custom or anything like it, but if we did we would at least preserve the genius. Teddy Roosevelt was a frail child and the Spartans would have made a losing bet throwing him over the precipice.
